

Barkeepers face new test: telling 'kids' from 'old folks'

by JOE SWICKARD

Tonight the new state liquor law will face its first test as thousands of 19- and 20-year-olds line up for their first legal lagers. And barkeepers throughout the state will face a severe test of their nerves, patience and possibly their licenses.

The new law, which took effect at 12:01 a.m. today, enables 19- and 20-year-olds to purchase and consume beer and wine, but not the stronger spiritous ferment. There lies the rub.

The problem for alcohol dispensers is separating the beerhounds from the ones who drink the hard stuff. The clerk or bartender who errs in pouring the libations faces a stiff rap and possibly the loss of his liquor license.

TO COMBAT this problem several remedies have been put forward, ranging from marking the beer drinker, to special identification, to new legislation that protects the seller from taking a fall for serving some one with phony IDS.

Bob Burton, manager of Worldwide Liquors, Palatine, said the Illinois Liquor Association has provided cards designed to protect the shops from selling to mature looking 18-year-olds or denying service to youthful-looking 19- and 20-year-olds.

The cards, already used for 21-year-olds not marred by the ravages of time, are signed by the customer. On the back of the card, which remains file at the store, Selective Service, or driver's licenses numbers are listed. This, according to Burton, enables the clerk to run a quick check on the presented IDs against the information on file.

DOBBY DOBKINS, owner of the store, admits the cards are a stopgap measure at best. He feels the new law is "one we can't live with."

Dobkins and others in similar situations around the state are almost universal in disapproval of the new law. Most label it halfway measure that just breeds new problems. Many said they favored one age for drinking all alcoholic beverages.

This is the night when tavern operators probably will bear the brunt of the thirsty youths. Short of setting aside separate rooms or areas for the beer and wine crowd, few see any ready answer for the problem, except the bars in Arlington Heights where the law doesn't take effect until Oct. 6.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS passed an ordinance lowering the age, but by law, ordinances do not take effect until 10 days after they are published in a newspaper. The revised liquor law was not published until Sept. 26; hence the lag twist cup and the lip.

In hope of preventing underage acceptance, Bill Roscoe, owner of the Blarney Stone, Inne, Mount Prospect, said he will ask for three identification cards to protect himself. For the guys, these would probably be a voters card, draft card and driver's license.

But what of the young woman who lacks the draft card? A spokesman from Lum's Restaurant, said he would probably settle "for two good ones. Hopefully one would have a picture."

Some spas say they will go to an ink-stamping system for the beer drinkers.

BUTCH McGUIRE, who owns taverns in Mount Prospect and Chicago, said doormen will stamp the right or left hand according to the drinker's age. This, he said, will tell the waitress at a glance who may drink what.

He, too, admits there will remain, "a

New condos may worsen drainage woes at school

A newly proposed condominium development in Wheeling may compound drainage problems at the John Muir School in Prospect Heights if a solution is not found soon.

For nearly two years, School Dist. 23 and developers of Pleasant Run condominiums on Elmhurst Road have been battling over stormwater drainage. Currently, storm water from Pleasant Run flows onto the Muir School site on Drake Terrace, resulting in ponding on the school property. School district officials have charged this ponding is a hazard to school children.

Now developers of The Forums, a proposed 150-unit condominium project just west of Pleasant Run, plan to connect their drainage system with the Pleasant Run storm sewer. Thus, drainage from both developments would empty onto the school site.

EARLIER this year, a solution to the drainage problem was proposed by the Larwin Corp., which at that time was planning to develop the property east of the Muir School. In exchange for school district approval of their 1,000-unit apartment project, Larwin officials agreed to accept the storm water from Pleasant Run in their development's retention basin.

When plans for the Tara Village apartment project fell through, the drainage agreement was lost.

Village Mgr. George Passolt, however, said Pleasant Run developer John Glorioso is currently negotiating to build the storm sewer proposed in the drainage agreement with Larwin.

"All I know is that Glorioso is trying to get the necessary easements," Passolt said. "I don't know the exact status of the project."

WHEN ASKED if Wheeling would allow The Forums to be built if a drainage solution is not found, Passolt said he did not think the village could stop the development. "I don't see how we could disallow him," Passolt said. "That's the storm sewer. That's the natural flow of water there from west to east."

Developers of Pleasant Run maintain that that is in fact the natural flow. They have charged that school district officials filled in the school property, thus preventing the natural flow of water. In fact, developers initiated a lawsuit against the school district, but dropped it in April when the Larwin agreement was reached.

The Wheeling Plan Commission has approved preliminary plans for The Forums. According to developer Victor Smigel, the project will include a number of three-story buildings housing a mixture of one-, two-, and three-bedroom condominiums. Two dry basins will provide storm water retention for the 10-acre parcel.

THE DEVELOPMENT also will include a swimming pool, tennis courts and tot lot. Smigel said he hoped construction would still get under way this year.

School Dist. 23 officials are scheduled to meet with Smigel Wednesday to discuss the proposed development. Assistant Supt. Tom Rich said he expected the drainage problem to be a major consideration in negotiations with Smigel for donations to the school district.

Preliminary plans for The Forums must now go to the Wheeling Village for approval before final plans can be submitted.

ON THE MOVE. Wheeling's Ken Smith drives for short yardage against Schaumburg Saturday afternoon, one of the few times the Wildcats were able to move on the ground. Schaumburg choked off the Wheeling rushing attack, did yield two scores in the air, but posted a 21-14 victory.

Street, sidewalk program falls short

by LYNN ASINOFF

Wheeling's 1973 street and sidewalk maintenance program fell far short of its goal, but Village Mgr. George Passolt said village residents should not experience any major problems as a result.

"I'm sure some of the residents will be unhappy their sidewalks didn't get fixed," Passolt said. "But they can rest in comfort that the village manager is in the same boat."

Passolt said the amount of street and sidewalk work was limited by the late start on the program this year. For the first time, the village decided to have its own employees do the street maintenance and sidewalk replacement work.

BECAUSE THE program was an experiment, Passolt said the paperwork was not finished until July, with actual work starting in August. "The first time around I don't think you can expect everything to run smoothly," said Passolt.

Public Works Director Larry Oppenheimer said village employees removed and replaced about 6,000 square feet of sidewalk. The goal for the program was originally 10,000 square feet. Sidewalk replacement will continue through October.

The major problems in the program were in the street maintenance area, according to Oppenheimer. Village employees were originally supposed to use 330 tons of asphalt in repaving bad sections of road in the village. Only 44 tons have been used so far.

OPPENHEIMER explained that the public works employees do not like working on the streets, since removing the bad sections of roadway is more difficult than removing bad sidewalks. He said the employees had difficulty removing just the asphalt without damaging the road bed.

"They're leaning more towards the sidewalks than the streets because the sidewalks are easier," he said. "I don't think we're equipped to do both. I think

Crane hears federal aid program complaints

by M. MESSERSCHMIDT

The increasing federal tax buck stops in Washington and never returns to the suburbs, Northwest suburban officials told U.S. Rep. Philip Crane, R-12th, Saturday.

The mayors, city managers and trustees assaulted, with a mixture of humor and statistics, disbursements of federal revenue sharing funds and called for changes in federal grant formulas.

Local suburbs received an average 4 per cent return of taxes paid to the federal government, Crane told the 21 officials meeting in Palatine. "It's costing $1.67 across the board to get $1 back from Washington," he said, based on 1970 reports.

"Last year, we got $100,000 in revenue sharing," Palatine Mayor Wendell Jones said. Palatine residents paid between $24 and $30 million in federal taxes in 1972.

If suburbs received a 10 per cent rebate of federal taxes, local property and other taxes could be eliminated, Jones said. "We're paying for more than our share. We're becoming the have nots."

THE OFFICIALS complained, during the three-hour session, that:

- Federal grant formulas block purchase of golf courses for open space — in Schaumburg, Buffalo Grove and Mount Prospect — but would finance a similar sale if the land was a cornfield.

- Small municipalities built large post offices, but larger communities — like Schaumburg and Elk Grove Village — are without local mail centers. Schaumburg, with a population of 32,000 sends mail through Roselle (population 6,000). Elk Grove local letters travel to Arlington Heights, then back to the village.

- Noise from O'Hare International Airport flights is getting louder and planes are lower and more frequent.

- Solid waste disposal, water supply, flood control are top priorities in this area," Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher said.

- "Could we as a group get money for landfills? Could we go for a block grant to run a 72-inch water line to Lake Michigan?" Atcher asked.

- Jones, who last week proposed an area-wide water cooperative, supported the proposal. "I think we could come up with the legal agreement. The borders are already drawn."

- "If we're committed to a regional concept we can't have all kinds of sub-regions," Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Teichert said.

LARGE CAPITAL projects cannot be built with limited revenue sharing allotments, the officials said. "You can't build a fire station with $100,000," Jones said. "We need water towers, sidewalks and we can't build them unless we go back to property taxes or bonds."

- "I don't think taxes are too high," Teichert said. "They relate to the services you get. I have no problem in my community."

CRANE TOLD the officials that he "is not sure" how to attack duplication of services and waste in government that could cut federal taxes. "What I resent is the federal government moving into areas where it has demonstrated incompetence. It's a rule of life. I shake my head at the squandering of taxpayers' money."

The two-term Congressman said President Richard Nixon should send a balanced budget to Congress.

Rep. Philip Crane

"Is he listening to you at all?" Ray Geraci, Highland Park mayor, said.

"No, I don't know who he's listening to," Crane answered.

Sanitary district tax cut?

Metropolitan Sanitary District trustees will begin a review today of a $225.6 million proposed budget that could cut taxes 1.4 cents per $100 assessed valuation, a 3.9 per cent drop.

The proposed budget, revealed by MSD General Supt. Bart Lynam on Friday, is down 25.1 per cent from this year's $301 million. The decrease is due to severe cuts in the amount of money the district will budget for construction and engineering design work.

MSD officials said the cuts reflect the reality that federal grants for major construction and design projects have been sharply decreased under new regulations imposed this year by the Nixon administration.

Among the Northwest suburban projects planned during 1974 are the White Pine Ditch flood reservoir planned on Arlington Country Club near Buffalo Grove and expansion of the Hanover Park Water Reclamation plant.

ALSO INCLUDED are $15.8 million in interceptor sewer lines to collect sanitary sewage in Palatine, Schaumburg, Elk Grove townships, Streamwood and Hanover Park.

The budget also includes funding for a water main to extend from Meacham Road to the Salt Creek Water Reclamation plant, for a filtering system to be used in meeting effluent quality standards at the plant and for development of unused land at the plant site as an experimental sludge farm.

Money is also included for the MSD to purchase a site for a retention reservoir in Lake County to help flooding in Buffalo Creek and the Wheeling Drainage Ditch, to purchase land for the Willow-Higgins flood reservoir and to purchase land for four of the reservoirs planned under the Upper Salt Creek Watershed Work Plan.

New booze law goes in effect

different policing job" that puts the operator in "a very precarious position."

Durty Nellie's West Irish Pub, Palatine, plans to have the younger patrons write a big "NO" across their right hand. Those who refuse will not be admitted.

Ed Weigt, manager of Ye Olde Town Inn, Mount Prospect, expects a rush of business and has laid in an extra stock of beer and wine in anticipation. He, too, plans to require three pieces of identification, instead of the present two.

On the whole, he said the new law is "a good thing" but added the age should be uniform for all drinkers.

DeKALB, HOME of Northern Illinois University, has taken a totally independent route. The city has passed an ordinance setting the legal age at 10 for all potent beverages.

The ordinance does not take effect until Jan. 1, 1974 to allow time for a court test.

Reaction from the new drinkers has been mixed. Most favor the new law, but feel it has not gone far enough.

They point out there are many older adults who can't handle the hard stuff very well and persons have been known to become drunk with just beer or wine. Most of the new upplers said the law should also allow them to sample the hard stuff as well.

One teenager said the new law, with its inconsistencies, makes no difference to her.

"Why not just go to Wisconsin? There you can have anything you want at 18," she said.

As Bob, the bartender at Durty Nellie's said, "I think we're ready. But, it's going to be rough. Very, very rough."

Government unit hurting for money

Lack of state funding support may force the Council of Governments of Cook County to reorganize, possibly as a joint operation with the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission.

Hoffman Estates Mayor Virginia Hayer is one of eight or nine COG members who will study alternatives. The decision has been forced by the resignation of Executive Director Rowland Schlegel, because COG must determine whether to replace him and how to pay a replacement.

At a monthly luncheon meeting Tuesday, COG members agreed the committee should investigate the possibility of joining with NIPC for staffing. Representatives of NIPC have offered services to COG because of the report that state financial aid will not be continued as of this year.

COG is a voluntary cooperative organization of 73 municipalities including schools, townships, villages, cities and park districts in Cook County.

It's Junior Miss Pageant time...

Scholarships totaling $1,700 will be awarded at the eighth annual Paddock Publications Junior Miss Pageant Nov. 23.

An orientation meeting to acquaint eligible girls with pageant procedures is being held this Sunday at 7 p.m. in the library of Rolling Meadows High School.

Applications have been mailed to senior high school coeds residing in Paddock Publications' circulation area who have B averages or better. Altogether, 1,035 girls meet the scholarship requirement.

Debbie Brown of Prospect Heights, one of last year's two junior misses, and Anne Chaliki, director of the pageant, will attend the meeting to answer questions. Applications may be returned at the meeting or sent to Mrs. Chaliki at Paddock Publications, 217 W. Campbell St., Arlington Heights. Deadline for entering is Oct. 18.

THE TWO Paddock Publications Junior Misses chosen to compete in the Illinois Pageant will each receive a scholarship of $500. Two runnersup will receive $250 apiece. A talent award and scholastic achievement award of $100 apiece will also be given out the night of the pageant.

Finalists will be chosen from personal interviews scheduled Oct. 28 at Rolling Meadows High School. Girls entering the pageant are judged on talent, and poise and appearance, in addition to scholarship.

High schools included in the circulation area of Paddock Publications are Arlington, Conant, Elk Grove, Forest View, Fremd, Hersey, Palatine, Prospect, Rolling Meadows, Sacred Heart, Schaumburg, Wheeling, Maine West and Maine East. Only Des Plaines residents of the latter two high schools are eligible for the Paddock pageant.

Additional information is available through Mrs. Chaliki, 394-2300.

Justice Dept. proceeding; dismisses Agnew's attack

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Department, reaffirming faith in its chief criminal investigator, continues presentation of evidence to a Baltimore grand jury this week relating to kickback allegations against Vice President Spiro T. Agnew.

The vice president, who in a Los Angeles speech Saturday criticized as "unprofessional and malicious and outrageous" the conduct of Assistant Attorney General Henry E. Petersen, remained in seclusion Sunday at the home of his friend Frank Sinatra in Palm Springs, Calif.

Agnew was scheduled to return to Washington today from the long weekend in California, during which he took the occasion of an address to a group of Republican women to again declare his innocence of wrongdoing and pledge: "I will not resign if indicted."

Agnew did not mention Petersen by name, but pointedly referred to him by saying: "The conduct of high individuals in the Department of Justice — particularly the conduct of the chief of the Criminal Investigation Division of that department — is unprofessional and malicious and outrageous."

In Washington, Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson responded in a statement: "The vice president has singled out for criticism a career public servant constrained from defending himself by the ethical standards governing a criminal investigation."

"Henry Petersen is a distinguished government lawyer who has had more than two decades of prosecutorial experience and is greatly respected by his colleagues in law enforcement."

Petersen, head of the criminal division, had no comment on Agnew's remarks.

Richardson said he took full responsibility for Petersen's actions and other aspects of the investigation of the vice president.

The Justice Department began presenting information on Agnew to the grand jury in Baltimore on Thursday. Agnew's attorneys Friday asked Federal District Judge Walter E. Hoffman in Norfolk to halt the investigation.

Hoffman took the request under advisement and arranged to receive briefs and oral arguments from both sides through Oct. 12. But he ruled: "The grand jury may continue in session pending final decision on the motion unless otherwise ordered by the court."

Agnew was informed Aug. 2 by Maryland U.S. Attorney George Beall that he was under federal investigation in the kickback matter.

Agnew's attorneys are challenging the grand jury investigation on constitutional grounds that a vice president can't be indicted before being impeached. Sen. Walter Mondale, D-Minn., a possible 1976 presidential prospect, challenged that position Sunday, but conceded there has been no Supreme Court ruling on it and the question is still "legally vague."

INSIDE VIEW — and one not often seen — is this scene the home, a source of some controversy for the amount showing President Nixon in solitude at his San Clemente, Calif., home. Enormous security is kept around of government money spent on equipping it.

Hearings postponed until Wednesday

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An alleged campaign spy known as "Fat Jack," and Dwight Chapin, President Nixon's former appointments secretary, have refused to testify before the Senate Watergate committee, delaying resumption of the hearings until Wednesday.

Sam Dash, chief counsel for the committee, said Chapin and John R. Buckley had been scheduled to testify Tuesday, but the committee decided not to call them when they said they would invoke the Fifth Amendment in response to all questions. He identified Buckley as "Fat Jack."

As a result, Dash said, the committee will not resume hearings until Wednesday when the witness was expected to be Donald H. Segretti, an admitted political saboteur for Nixon's 1972 reelection campaign.

Committee attorneys also obtained a three-day delay until Thursday of oral arguments on a suit seeking to obtain tapes of five Watergate-related conversations between the President and his aides. The arguments originally were scheduled Monday before U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica, but the committee requested postponement because of the death of Dash's brother, Harold, a Philadelphia architect.

The first public reference to "Fat Jack" occurred in committee hearings last week when Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt was questioned by Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., about spying efforts on behalf of the White House.

Hunt said a man he knew only as "Fat Jack" last year hired an unidentified person to spy on Sen. Edmund S. Muskie's campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination. He said "Fat Jack" also supplied him with photographed copies of documents from the Muskie camp.

Buckley, 53, is a former FBI agent who retired last June 30 as chief of the inspection division of the Office of Economic Opportunity. Chapin, who now works for United Air Lines in California, has been identified as the White House aide who hired Segretti to conduct political espionage and sabotage.

Segretti was expected to plead guilty today before a federal judge on charges of carrying out political sabotage against Democratic presidential candidates. Following his court appearance, he was expected to be granted limited immunity from further prosecution in order to testify before the Senate committee.

Dash said Judge Sirica will grant immunity today to Robert M. Benz, 25, a Florida Young Republican Club chairman who allegedly worked for Segretti, and Martin D. Kelley, also identified by sources as one of Segretti's operatives in Florida.

Last chance for Senate defense cuts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate military spending critics prepared for several crucial budget-cutting votes on the $21 billion weapons authorization bill today as Democrats complained of heavier than usual Pentagon pressure to keep the bill intact.

An amendment offered by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., would cut $750 million, and Democratic Whip Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia, proposed a $500 million reduction in the annual military procurement authorization bill.

It was the last chance for defense critics in the Senate — who thus far have failed in repeated efforts to slash weapons systems from the bill — before the expected final vote on the measure late today.

Meanwhile, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, echoing other Democratic complaints of intense Pentagon lobbying against the proposed cuts, said that throughout the bill's debate there has been "much heavier" pressure this year than in previous years. He declined to elaborate.

Humphrey said Sunday that the Pentagon "is the logical place to begin a sensible modest reduction to provide for the essential needs of our citizens and eliminate waste."

"The defense budget can no longer be immune to reasonable reductions and economic facts of life," he said.

Also scheduled to be taken up today was a foreign assistance bill, which narrowly passed the House earlier this year. A key issue in the debate was expected to be an administration-backed program of subsidies for U.S. exports to developing countries aimed at opening up new markets for U.S. goods and easing the balance of payments drain.

Brandt cuts trip short as aide undermines him

BONN (UPI) — Chancellor Willy Brandt cut short his American tour and returned home Sunday in a political uproar caused by one of his top aides who announced after secret talks with Soviet leaders in Moscow he was opposing Brandt's Berlin policies.

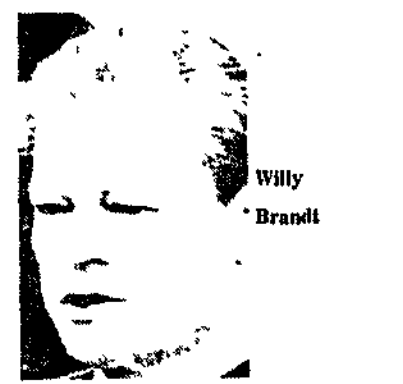

Herbert Wehner, the "grand old man" of Brandt's own Social Democrat party, confided secretly with Soviet leaders in Moscow last week and sided with the Kremlin in opposing the government's stand on the divided city.

The explosion of headlines and denunciation by West German politicians overshadowed coverage of Brandt's own tour, and the chancellor announced in Washington he was returning home two days early.

Brandt said he needed the extra time to prepare for a busy week of business.

But West German politicians did not accept that explanation. They said all business had been taken care of long before Brandt even left for the United States.

Political sources said the chancellor was anxious to get control of a challenge to both his leadership and foreign policy.

Sunday newspapers bannered such headlines as "Now comes the Big Collision." Cause of the dispute was the status of Berlin — a Cold War leftover that has never stopped bedeviling West German policy despite the recent years of détente.

Brandt's government insists West Germany has the right to represent West Berlin citizens and institutions through its embassies in foreign countries. The Soviet bloc says Bonn can represent West Berlin citizens but not institutions such as businesses and courts.

Major vaccination campaign; too many kids unprotected

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government announced a major publicity campaign Sunday to increase vaccinations for preschool children, fearing that the "alarming decline" of immunization in recent years might provoke epidemics of polio, measles and diphtheria.

The problem is especially acute among black children ages 1 through 4 living in city slums, but suburban children also are potential victims of public and medical indifference to preventing the diseases, according to the Center for Disease Control (CDC).

A CDC official noted, in response to questions, that federal funds for buying vaccine for needy persons and other immunizations activities have been cut by the administration in recent years. In fiscal 1972, $17 million was available, according to Jack Kirby, program operations chief in CDC's immunization branch, and the amount dropped to $10.2 million for the year that ended June 30 and $6.2 million this year.

The goals are to have 2.3 million more pre-school children vaccinated against polio during the next year, in addition to the 9 million normally vaccinated; 2.7 million more against measles, in addition to 9 million; 2.5 million more against rubella, up from 7.9 million, and 2.3 million more against diphtheria, whooping cough and tetanus, up from 10.5 million.

School district wrapup

Changes weighed to aid students

School Dist. 21 will take steps to improve pupil skills in areas where results of last year's annual achievement tests indicate work is needed.

The Iowa Test of Basic Skills, a package of tests in all academic areas, is administered to students in grades three through eight in the district each spring.

Dist. 21 serves Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and portions of Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect.

Administrators and teachers in the district are analyzing test scores to see what changes, if any, should be made in materials and techniques used in classroom instruction.

Marjorie Beu, curriculum director, said the results are studied to determine several things including:

- The appropriateness of material used in each grade.
- The effectiveness of teaching techniques on all levels.
- The varying abilities of students.
- The need for specific extra training for teachers in a particular area.

Miss Beu cited the current Dist. 21 math program as an example of how achievement test scores are used to improve the effectiveness of instruction.

About four years ago, math scores in the district were low, she said. Teachers adopted a new textbook shortly after the results of the tests were released and the scores have improved ever since.

Compared to last year, achievement test scores were lower for fifth and sixth grade students this year, especially in the area of language arts.

Miss Beu said part of the reason for the low language arts scores could be the emphasis placed in the district on creative writing. She said creativity will not be deemphasized, but teachers will increase work on grammar skills this year.

Junior high bids to be awarded

The school board plans to award the contract of the construction of $1.8 million in additions to the district's three junior high schools Oct. 11.

The additions will provide extra classrooms besides providing areas for a new vocational arts program.

The district hopes to begin construction as soon as possible after the contract is awarded and have the additions ready by the time school opens next fall.

Several alternative ways of funding the construction are being studied including the possibility of state aid and using $340,000 in funds from the district's 1970 referendum.

The referendum monies were intended for the purchase of the Irving and Stevenson school sites. Because those sites were donated, the district may still sell $300,000 in bonds authorized by the referendum.

Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill said if the referendum funds can be used for the junior high additions, the district will probably wait until March to sell the bonds.

Transportation request denied

The Dist. 21 School Board last week denied a request from a group of parents of students attending Stevenson School for bus transportation.

The parents, most of them residents of nearby apartment complexes, feel it is dangerous and too far for their children to walk to the school on Wolf Road in Wheeling.

The board rejected the busing request because the students involved live less than 1½ miles from the school.

Anticipating the school board decision, the parents have agreed to pay $60 each annually to finance their own bus.

LEARNING BY DOING is the philosophy of the Dist. 21 junior high school science program. The program, that includes physics for seventh graders and chemistry for eighth-grade students involves much laboratory work. Two Cooper Junior High students, Robin Bartlett, left, and Amy Ferguson check the next step in performing their experiment.

Science is life

Students learning that methodologies apply anywhere

Begoggled eighth graders, clustered in small groups, hover over small plastic bags filled with seashells and HCL (hydrochloric acid) completely absorbed in an experiment to study mass and matter.

The students are working in science class at Cooper Junior High School, Dist. 21, Buffalo Grove. They say they like the class because they not only read about science in their textbooks, they learn to use it.

"It really helps you understand better to do experiments," said Chris March. "I like seeing what happens," added her friend, Kim Kreuger.

Learning by doing is the philosophy of the lab-oriented science program conducted in all Dist. 21 junior high schools.

Dist. 21 serves Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and portions of Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect.

BY CONDUCTING experiments, seventh-and eighth-graders are able to see how scientific methods and principles apply not only in the laboratory, but in their daily lives.

"They learn problem-solving techniques that can be applied to anything," said Julie Wester, science department chairman at Cooper. "I think it also gives them an appreciation of science. For example, if they didn't know how really difficult it is to send a man to the moon, they'd say, 'so what?' But learning some of what's involved they understand and appreciate it more."

The seventh-grade science program focuses on principles of physics while the eighth-graders study chemistry.

Some of the topics explored by seventh-graders include the metric system, forces, work, forms of energy, motion, electricity, heat and temperature.

The eighth-grade program is designed to give students the background they need to build an accurate particle model by the end of the year. They study mass, matter, characteristics of different particles, acids and bases, among other subjects.

UNTIL THE PRESENT science program was adopted by the district three years ago, biology was taught on the junior high level. Mrs. Wester said because physics and chemistry are needed to really understand biology, the decision was made to offer those subjects first. Biology is now taught in high school.

"These kids really study some pretty sophisticated science," Mrs. Wester said. "Some of it is stuff that most people didn't get until high school, but it's watered down so they can see things."

"We're hoping to make science more interesting for the kids," she continued. "They've had too many lectures from teachers on clouds and cloud formations and not enough of them have been taken out to look at the clouds."

Sen. Nimrod to attend PHIA meet

A fifth state official has said he will attend tonight's meeting of the Prospect Heights Improvement Association (PHIA) to discuss legislation affecting unincorporated areas.

State Sen. John J. Nimrod, R-4th, will join State Rep. John E. Porter, R-Evanston; State Rep. Aaron Jaffe, D-Skokie; State Rep. Robert S. Juckett, R-Park Ridge, and State Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights. The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. at St. Alphonsus School, 411 N. Wheeling Rd.

Gov. Daniel Walker was invited but is not expected to attend as his office only received the invitation on Friday. State Sen. Bradley M. Glass, R-1st, who will speak at a dinner tonight, said he will try to send an aide to the meeting.

PHIA has drawn up 11 proposals for legislation affecting unincorporated areas. The proposals include reducing or eliminating the assessed evaluation of airport and golf courses, establishing a state land use commission, setting up a regional transportation authority and giving townships limited zoning and land use approval. PHIA is also calling for an investigation into the rights of mobile home owners and a more equal distribution of the state sales tax rebates.

Lost during Chile upheaval

No word on missing youth

Concern increased over the weekend for the fate of a Des Plaines man who now has been listed as missing in Chile.

U.S. State Department officials reported that Frank R. Teruggi Jr., 23, of 7311 S. Third Ave., Des Plaines was not being held by military officials in the South American nation which underwent a massive political upheaval earlier this month.

This latest information contradicted earlier reports that the young man, who was studying economics at the University of Chile, was being held with hundreds of other persons in a Santiago soccer stadium.

The government said Saturday that after exhaustive inquiries the young man's whereabouts are unknown at this time.

Teruggi's father, Frank told The Herald over the weekend that he still has not heard from his son, but had been told by the State Department he had been released on Sept. 21. The family last heard from their son on Sept. 17.

"Today I am very concerned about my son, they have told me that he is not being held, and he is not in any hospital, but I know that he would have called by now," the father said.

THE YOUNGER Teruggi's roommate, David Hathaway, was released from Chile on Wednesday, but he has apparently not been able to shed any light on the local man's condition. State department officials said they had conflicting reports as to whether or not Teruggi was with Hathaway on the day Hathaway was captured. The Herald was not able to reach Hathaway over the weekend for additional information. He is expected back in the U.S. today.

When the Des Plaines family last heard from their son, he told them he was in good condition and planned to leave Chile by way of Argentina. State department officials said they have also made inquiries in Argentina, but have received no information on Teruggi.

"This is all very confusing," the senior Teruggi said. "Everytime the telephone rings I hope it is Frank or someone with information about him."

"From his letter to us and his sister, Frank did not seem to be involved in anything political down there, so I do not know why they would want to hold him for any time," the father said.

TERRUGI HAD been in Chile for about two years. He had previously been an engineering student at the California Institute of Technology. He is a graduate of Notre Dame High School in Niles.

At the request of The Herald, representatives of U.S. Senators Charles Percy and Adlai Stevenson and U.S. Rep. Samuel Young, R-10, have interceded with the government in an effort to learn more about the young man.

Even the state department has given the family conflicting reports about their son. Teruggi said the two calls he received late last week indicated his son had been released on Sept. 21, but another state department spokesman told them it was highly unlikely the government would take someone into custody one day and release them on the next. Most persons taken prisoner during the military overthrow have been held at least a week, government officials said.

In the meantime, the family's concern's are mounting daily.

"I would like to know where my son is and what his condition might be," the father said, adding he and his wife

Jeanie feel helpless because their son is so far away.

"I guess about all we can do is wait and hope that the government or the newspapers got some information about Frank. We sure would like to hear from him," he added.

PTA notes

The week of Oct. 9 will be Cooper Junior High School PTA membership drive week.

Officers of the parents' group have been elected and several activities are planned this month.

One of the main events will be an open house at the school scheduled for 8 p.m., Oct. 15. Parents will be able to tour the building and meet administrators and teachers.

Anyone interested in joining Cooper PTA should contact president Bob McKenzie at 537-5444.

Street program falls short

we tried to undertake too much using our own forces."

Passolt, however, said he favors trying the program again if it is feasible. "I think it might be a little ambitious," he said. "But it would seem to me that in the long pull, if you can use your own people and be reimbursed with motor fuel tax funds, I would be able to lower taxes or at least not raise them."

MEMBERS OF THE village board reviewing the program said they would probably use village employees for the sidewalk program next year. They also said they would begin the paperwork in January so that actual repair work could begin with the warm weather.

Trustee Ed Berger has asked Oppenheimer to look into the possibility of getting a Cutler repaving machine to do the street work for next year. The machine, which is expensive to rent, scrapes the old street surface up, recycles it, and lays it down as a new surface.

Oppenheimer said it would be possible for public works employees to do the sidewalk program next year, but said he did not think the village workers could handle both streets and sidewalks.

"We're not a construction crew," he said. "We're a maintenance crew. And it required a lot of work and a lot of manpower."

What can family do for a troubled son?

My husband and I are concerned about whether or not we are doing all we can for our son.

He was discharged with honors after four years of active duty in the Navy during the Korean War. Shortly afterwards he broke down completely with what was diagnosed by one of our leading psychiatrists as paranoid schizophrenia.

During all these intervening years we have tried everything, and, as far as we know, there is nothing else left to try. There is no use going into the agonies of the situation and the impossibilities of trying to live with him because of his violence. He also has a drinking problem (they say he is not an alcoholic) that greatly aggravates his condition. After trying countless times to make a home for him (he has been in and out of mental institutions of all kinds), we have now been forced to abandon him to the veterans hospital. Yet, we still have hope that something can be done because he seems so rational so much of the time. His worst times are when he is under the influence of large amounts of beer or stronger liquor.

My question is, is there a place that might be able to help him that we do not know about — such as a particular medical center that you know about? Or do you think everything is done that can be done for such patients in veterans and state hospitals for the mentally ill? He has been in a private institution for only short periods, and that was quite expensive. We do not have a lot of money but we are willing to spend what little we have if it would restore him to health.

Schizophrenia is so varied that I couldn't possibly comment on a case without knowing the details, and the outlook is unpredictable from one case to another.

It sounds as if you have had a variety of professional evaluations of your son's problems, and, apparently, most of the specialists who have seen him have agreed generally with the diagnosis.

No, I don't think everything is being done that could be done in either our state hospitals or in the veterans hospitals, particularly for the mental illness problems. But, for the amount of money available and the trained personnel available, it is pretty good. I doubt you will be able to get any better treatment that would have a significant effect on your son's future. There are no great secrets to treating these problems that wouldn't be known to a competent psychiatric staff in any fairly large hospital facility.

I really wish I had something to offer so many people who are faced with this problem when mental illness strikes. Perhaps just telling you that chasing after a new opinion or a false hope will be more of an exercise in futility and heartbreak than a reward for your efforts will help you avoid that pitfall. Try to protect your own, and your husband's, well-being at this point rather than exhaust your few resources. You may need these for yourselves for something you can do something about later.

Oswald: "We have had so many questions about the Jacoby transfer bid that some articles on it should be appropriate."

Jim: "Dave Carter of St. Louis was the first man to conceive the transfer idea. It is not certain who started two-level transfers, but there is no question that you developed the bid and are responsible for its great popularity."

Oswald: "I am inclined to think the bid made itself popular. It is artificial but is so easy to learn that anyone can use it and profit from its use. Today's hand is a good example. Either North or South will have no trouble making four spades and if declarer stops to ruff one of North's diamonds with one of South's three trumps he will make an overtrick at his four-spade contract."

Jim: "The problem is how to get there after the no-trump opening. It is easy with Jacoby transfer. North's two-heart bid guarantees at least five spades and asks South to bid spades. South does this and North rebids to two no-trump. He has told partner that he holds at least five spades, 8, 9 or maybe 10 high card points and a balanced hand."

Oswald: "South has a near maximum no-trump with good spades and jumps to the spade game. With a minimum he might pass or bid three spades. With poorer spades he might bid three no-trump."

'No identity, no business'

Herald editorial

Let's open land trusts

A proposed Des Plaines ordinance that would require identification of land trust beneficiaries in zoning cases and government property purchases deserves consideration by other Northwest suburbs.

Arlington Heights and Hoffman Estates plan commissions have additionally insisted on trust identification. The pattern should spread.

Like a Swiss bank account, the trust is an all-too-convenient method of avoiding ownership accountability. The hidden-owner trust is an age-old target of criticism by persons advocating government and business openness.

The pattern of trust use in metropolitan Chicago is confusing but, unfortunately, familiar. Newspaper exposes and grand jury investigations involving zoning bribery or kickbacks and probes of quick-profit land sales to government invariably involve bank trusts.

A similar proposal to require disclosure on a statewide level, House Bill 1508, failed to pass the legislature in the last session.

Des Plaines' proposed ordinance originated during last spring's aldermanic campaign. Ald. Thomas Koplos announced that he was tired of dealing with trust numbers and said he would seek a disclosure ordinance.

The Des Plaines City Council judiciary committee approved a draft ordinance in April requiring disclosure of trusts that seek city zoning changes or sell land to the city. The proposal was sent to Corporation Counsel Robert DiLeonardi, who will send the ordinance to the city zoning board of appeals "within a week." The "rather simple amendment" will require naming of all trust beneficiaries when a zoning application is filed.

Two trust misuse methods appear in the suburbs:

—Politicians or close friends seek profitable zoning changes.

The amount of political influence used to secure a favorable decision becomes impossible to determine because the property owner is never revealed.

—Politicians or close friends sell land for a quick profit to a government. The property could be for a street right-of-way, a baseball field or a new building. The trust holder's purchase may be recorded a few months before the sale to the public, although price of the land doubled.

Both sides of the trust ordinance should be argued.

Opponents could claim that in zoning cases, best use of the land, not ownership, should be criteria for change. Examination of best land use can be lost in the debt of friendship if the landowner is concealed, however.

Trust tax advantages would not be eroded by a local ordinance.

But public ability to evaluate qualifications of proposed developers seeking zoning or prices offered in land sales would be bolstered.

As indictments and investigations of politicians multiply, proposals for broadened ethics legislation have increased. The Des Plaines council recently discussed local ethics guidelines. The General Assembly will meet Oct. 15 in special session to reexamine ethics legislation that is ineffective.

A simple local ordinance that cuts through trust numbers and digs to land owners names could be a first-suburban step toward elimination of temptation.

Washington window

Scandals prompt ethics review

by ROBERT F. BUCKHORN
WASHINGTON — When a corporate executive whose firm does business with the government makes a large donation to a political party, is he:
—Practicing good citizenship?
—Knuckling under to a veiled threat of blackmail?
—Posting a down payment for future favors?

There is nothing improper in a corporate executive making a personal political donation any more than there is any illegality in John Q. Public sending a check to his favorite candidate.

But the Watergate scandal raised questions that has the business community looking at its ethics.

What triggered the boardroom discussions is the fact that over the past couple months, seven top U.S. corporations — American Airlines, Goodyear, Gulf Oil, Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing, Phillips Petroleum, Braniff Airways and Ashland Oil — acknowledged to Watergate prosecutors that they made a total of nearly $500,000 in donations from their corporate treasuries, an action specifically barred under the campaign financing laws.

Why did they do it? One of the executives, George A. Spater, who this month was ousted from his job as chairman of American Airlines, put it this way:

"A large part of money raised from the business community for political purposes is given in fear of what would happen if it were not given."

What is the club that a political candidate holds? In the case of the airlines, they are a regulated industry. The Civil Aeronautics Board, whose members are appointed by the President, can approve or disapprove crucial items for an airline — fare hikes, mergers, route awards.

In the case of other corporations which confessed to illegal contributions, the story was the same — they all dealt with the government as part of their day-to-day business.

But some observers claim that it is not always true that corporations are the victims. In some cases, they were not pressured by a political party, but eagerly offered under-the-table donations in hopes of influencing a public official to make a favorable decision on questions involving their corporations.

Illegal corporate contributions to both

Finally, Thomas Eagleton and Spiro T. Agnew may have something in common.

For the Democratic liberal and the GOP's conservative, both men shortly may share a unique bi-partisan historical footnote related to the 1972 election: Both were vice presidential candidates who somehow never made it to the ends of their 1972 political footpaths.

Eagleton's tenure, of course, was far briefer, for he was booted off the Democratic ticket last summer shortly after it was learned he had concealed his psychiatric record of treatment for mental depression.

Agnew, of course, was reelected last November to a second term as vice president. As of this writing it is uncertain whether impeachment or indictment could be his first calamity.

One way or another, Agnew can fall. Even if he can elude the U.S. Justice Department, the Democratic majority in Congress and the Federal grand jury in Baltimore, he seems dead as a Presidential aspirant and as a politician.

The footnote, however, ends the similarity. Eagleton is a moderately successful politician who's faded back into the U.S. Senate, while Agnew's star once rose towards the Presidential heavens.

For a short time, Agnew had all a politician could wish for. Shortly after entering office, his name became a certified household word, for he hurled such rhetorical thunderbolts as "nattering nabobs of negativism" at the likes of campus "bums" and the news media, whom he charged with slanting the news against President Nixon.

His towering rages were popular in the late 1960's, for he echoed the public's concern about disorder. One can remember how the liberals and radicals pondered in fear how the Nixon Administration would throw them into prison as dissenters against the coming repression.

Now, however, Watergate's crippled the Nixon administration and the Agnew woes have increased the mortality of the regime which achieved a landslide. There must be a sense within some corners of the White House of when-will-this-end?

These scandals, too, do not possess the ordinary shabbiness of the acts of money-hungry politicians. There's a horrifying sense that this administration, which spoke so strongly for law and order, was the first to violate its own proclamations in the smoke-filled backrooms of politics. In Agnew's case, the violations may have occurred before Agnew became Vice President, but there is still a sense of hypocrisy involved.

The hypocrisy is perceived by the public, too. According to pollster Louis Har-

Tom Wellman's column

Seymour again!

In response to the September 25 Buffalo Grove Herald's request for Seymour-style opinions:

No, do not bill the Pearsons!

Having watched the newspaper and TV saga while our boys in blue hunted Seymour with shotguns (?), aided and abetted by the suggestions of the village board and the entire Palatine Police Dept., the thought crossed my mind you had basis for a splendid TV comedy series there.

After you split up the cost between yourselves and the police departments of Buffalo Grove and Palatine, you can hold an annual dance to defray the cost of future non-poisonous snake hunts. Then I'd suggest you send a check for one million dollars to the Pearsons for all the free advertising Buffalo Grove gained due to their efforts.

Thomas J. Lally (Taxpayer)
Buffalo Grove

A medal to Mrs. G. Leopold of Buffalo Grove for starting the ball rolling! Yes, I do believe the Pearsons should pay something. Mr. Pearson Sr. should have known better than to permit his son to have such large snakes in an open garage. People say the snake is harmless. I say it is just as deadly even if he could bite. Myself, I would drop dead if I saw a snake, any size, in my garage or on my driveway.

If Mr. Pearson's son is interested in making a career handling snakes or any reptile or animals, fine. But go to a school or a hospital and do it right.

Considering we are all taxpayers and homeowners, I would suggest that the village board or the proper authorities charge from $500 to ????. Assuming the homeowner and taxpayer is entitled to some protection, just deduct the so-called amount of protection that the Pearsons were entitled to and then let them pay the balance or a charge that would not cause any hardship on the Pearson family. The boy is old enough to work and earn part of this charge or fine. They did disturb the peace, almost caused a riot, caused harassment and had the public "poking fun" at the police and the people trying to help.

My opinion is yes, they should be billed, but not for the entire amount of $1,338.

Mrs. D. Omahon

P.S. What is the fine for a person screaming FIRE! in a theatre, auditorium or a public place where hundreds or thousands of people are gathered under one roof?

Incorporation opposed

These were not my thoughts until I read Gloria Jaworski's letter against incorporation and decided to call Mr. Gilligan, the president of PHIA, for his views. Our conversation was lengthy and extremely informative.

During our talk, Mr. Gilligan made a surprising statement, that people do not really wish to know where their monies are going, and that the knowledge will only confuse them.

This led to the statement that an uninformed voter is a "yes" vote for incorporation. I personally think that people do want an accounting for their money which is spent by their representatives. I asked Mr. Gilligan if there was some way we could, at this time, curb the building of multi-family dwellings which is constantly being done in the fringe areas of Prospect Heights. He said that the main reason for incorporation was to stop this type of building. He then went on to inform me that there is an environmental law on the books now that could be used to stop the building, but that he did not want, at this time, to enforce this law as it would be his "powerful tool" in case incorporation was defeated.

Admitting that I am one of Mr. Gilligan's uninformed voters, I still am capable of adding up this situation and arriving at a decision of my own. That Mr. Gilligan is more interested in Mr. Gilligan's political position and its ensuing power than he is in the actual problems of unincorporated Prospect Heights.

After trying to read Mr. Gilligan's article in the PHIA Bulletin, I wish to state that he only confuses the issue and offers no direct answers. The one issue that he has made a definite stand on and that cannot be misunderstood by anyone, is that he doesn't want to be mayor of Prospect Heights but he guesses that he will have to be.

Let's save Mr. Gilligan from this terrible fate by not voting him a town to be mayor of.

An 'inside look' at insurance

by LEA TONKIN
First of two parts

Consumers may gain their first inside look at the cozy ties between insurance companies and the people who are supposed to act as watchdogs for the mammoth industry at a landmark conference that begins today in Springfield.

The setting for this conference is the Zone IV (Midwest) regional conference of the National Association of Insurance Commissioners.

According to Fred Mauck, director of the Illinois Department of Insurance, the conference will feature the first public discussion of a controversial issue — the funding of special NAIC projects. Mauck, a panelist, says the discussion will provide a healthy beginning for public scrutiny.

The public's right to know the findings of insurance regulators who review insurance company performance is a second issue to be spotlighted at the conference.

ALREADY KNOWN as a boat-rocker in insurance industry, Mauck gained wide publicity in his censure of insurance firms for scare tactics in advertising and other questionable practices. Now he's tackling the broader issue of NAIC funding, with the hope that the full commission will consider reform measures.

Thomas Connelly, counsel to Mauck, adds that the inherent conflict when an industry pays for the activities of a commission that is supposed to regulate its operations is a dangerous one. Whether or not the regulators are coddling or blackmailing the insurance companies, or simply doing their job right, "it looks lousy," says Connelly.

A specific funding issue is the financing of a $500,000 study by an outside consulting firm, McKinsey & Co. The study, being conducted for NAIC, is supposed to dredge up regulatory problems and suggestions for needed NAIC reforms. The money for the study came from private insurance firms. This was confirmed by an anonymous NAIC spokesman. The NAIC spokesman contends that it "bent over backwards to make sure the industry didn't call the shots. The money was solicited in advance of the McKinsey study "with the understanding that donors would have no influence on the outcome." He adds that utilities and the banking industry foot the bill for the costs of their regulator's examinations.

The public's right to know how decisions are made and who pays for these decisions by insurance industry regulators is finally coming up for public discussion. The Herald considers this issue, and the public's right to know the regulators' findings on insurance company performance, in a two-part series.

MAUCK PROPOSES that special NAIC projects be funded under statutory authority, rather than leaning on the insurance companies to shell out money for the regulation of their industry. His department is drafting such a proposal for consideration by NAIC at its June, 1974, convention.

Whether or not a change is made in the funding of special NAIC projects, the public should know where the money comes from, says Mauck. Most NAIC business is now supported by contributions from state insurance departments. Added licensing fees or higher individual taxes could supply the remaining funds for special projects.

The comparison of utilities and banking to the insurance industry is a misleading one. The network of federal controls for the first two industries is set up on a statutory basis. But NAIC functions as a voluntary overseer of insurance standards. It has no statutory authority. Its members are the insurance directors and commissioners of each state, with the express purpose of working towards uniform insurance regulation.

THE NAIC WIELDS tremendous power even though it is strangely lacking in legal authority. Individual insurance directors may voluntarily follow its recommendations. "But it has some teeth," the NAIC spokesman explained. "You want to have a uniform system from coast to coast, so everyone is singing the same song, so to speak."

Uniformity, it is explained, allows insurance companies to streamline operations to reduce costs.

But NAIC refused to participate in the Zone IV discussions of funding as a "hot potato" that's too sensitive to publicly discuss. Industry representatives such as Larry Faustich of the Des Plaines-based National Association of Independent Insurers says the matter should await the findings of the McKinsey study, now slated for release in April, 1974.

Connelly and Mauck contend the funding issue should be brought before the public. "I don't think you could attribute the lack of aggressiveness in the insurance industry solely to the financing aspect," Connelly says. "You could attribute it to the relationships that have been allowed to develop between the insurance companies and the regulators."

PART II: The public's right to know the findings of state regulators on private insurance companies.

ONE OF AMTRAK'S two new turbo trains rests overnight in Pittsburgh during its maiden voyage from Port Elizabeth, N.J., to Chicago. The two trains go into service today between Chicago and St. Louis.

Amtrak

New Chicago-to-St. Louis run now open

Ever want to go to St. Louis but didn't have a ride? Ever get the urge to see the relatives in Bloomington or take a trip to Springfield to tell those state legislators exactly what you think?

Starting today, it will be a lot easier to make those trips when Amtrak begins service on three new trains between Chicago and St. Louis and stops along the way. With the new service, there will be a train running between Chicago and St. Louis at least twice a day.

The new "State House," operated by both Amtrak and the state, will run daily, making stops at Joliet, Pontiac, Bloomington, Lincoln, Carlinville and Alton. Amtrak's two new French turbine trains will make the trip in four hours and 59 minutes, stopping at Joliet, Bloomington, Springfield and Alton. "THE STATE HOUSE" will depart Chicago at 6:15 p.m., arrive in Springfield at 9:35 p.m. and St. Louis at 11:15 p.m. Monday through Friday, a turbine will leave Chicago at 8:10 a.m. and Sunday through Friday at 5:10 p.m.

Amtrak will keep its Saturday-Sunday only service with its conventional equipment and announced there will be no fare increase because of the new trains. One-way fare between Chicago and St. Louis is $14.50 between Chicago and Springfield, $9.25.

Return trips from St. Louis will leave at 5 a.m. daily, 4:25 p.m. Monday through Friday and 7:25 a.m. Monday through Saturday.

AMTRAK AND THE state plan to work together to encourage state employees traveling between Springfield and Chicago to use the new service. The Chicago-Springfield segment of the run is partially paid for under the Rail Passenger Act of 1970 which gives state and local agencies the right to request additional rail service if they reimburse Amtrak for not less than two-thirds of the associated losses. Gov. Daniel Walker signed legislation this summer providing $1.5 million in railroad subsidies, including money for the "State House."

Amtrak's two new French turbine trains were developed for the French National Railways for high-speed intercity service on non-electrified track. The trains are capable of sustained speeds of up to 125 miles per hour on conventional track and consistently operate up to this speed in France. Lower speeds are being observed on Amtrak routes, however, until it is clearly established that operating conditions warrant higher speeds.

Each train is 423 feet long and each power car is propelled by a turbine engine similar to those developed for aircraft use. Total seating capacity of the five-car train is 296 plus 24 chairs at tables in the bar-grill dining area. Amtrak's new maintenance facility in the Brighton Park area of Chicago is equipped to service turbine trains as well as other self-propelled equipment.

Clothing exchange planned at school

Students in the Young Adult evening program at Wheeling High School are trying to set up a clothing exchange and are looking for donations.

The exchange would be set up for students in the program and for other members of the community, according to Charles Birch, a teacher in the program. Donations of clothing of all types, particularly for teenagers, may be made at the Young Adult office at Wheeling High School. Arrangements can be made to pick up the clothing.

The Young Adult program is for students living in High School Dist. 214 who are between 16 and 20 and have dropped out of school. The students attend school at night and work during the day.

School Lunch Menus

The following lunches will be served Tuesday in an effort to provide a change without cost.

- Dist. 211: Main dish: choice of spaghetti or chicken; choice of beef or pork; choice of vegetable; choice of salad; choice of dessert; choice of drink.
- Dist. 212: Main dish: choice of spaghetti or chicken; choice of beef or pork; choice of vegetable; choice of salad; choice of dessert; choice of drink.

Suburban Living

Especially for the Family

WIRE RIMS are still a favorite in the area. Fashioned after Ben Franklin, aviators and granny, they accounted for 47 per cent of total eyewear sales last year.

NO LONGER IS just the front view important when choosing glasses. The profile takes on added emphasis with the new frame designed to make you look good from all angles.

Girls who wear glasses

Look as good as you see

by KAREN THOMPSON

The old adage, men never make passes at girls who wear glasses, has been proved as bogus as the tale that if you eat carrots you will have good eyes.

Glasses are a fashion accessory for some people and a necessity for a lot more. But whether they needed them or not, Americans, last year, spent almost $2 billion on eyewear — about $120,000 million more than in 1971.

Groucho Marx was never ashamed of his bespectacled face. Nor was Benjamin Franklin whose wire rims have today become a household word. Abraham Lincoln first had his eyes examined and was fitted for a pair of gold wire-rim reading glasses in 1864 for a total cost of $2.50 at Franklin & Co. in Washington, D.C. Today the price for an examination, lenses and frames starts at about $40.

Glasses can change your look to wild, studious or glamorous. They can convert your mood from a flirt to a pouting little girl.

WHEN MAKING a choice of glasses, keep in mind facial structure and shape, hair color and complexion tones.

To find out your facial shape, stand in front of a mirror and trace the outline of your face on the mirror with your finger dipped in soap and water. Now, stand back and you can see if your face is oval, heart-shaped, long, square or round.

A round face looks best in horizontally wide and vertically narrow glasses that extend beyond the cheek bones. Oval frames make a round facial structure appear thinner and longer. The long narrow face, again, should tend toward frames that extend beyond the cheek bones and also are vertically deep. Aviators cover up face length.

If your face is heart-shaped, rectangular glasses that curve with a bit of down-sweep at the lower, outer corner are best for you. A square face is softened by round frames, large square or rectangular frames with a bit of upsweep at the upper, outer corners. These frames take the emphasis away from a square jaw line.

IF YOUR FACE is oval, you're lucky. Most any style looks good on an oval-shaped face.

Skin tones also make a difference in the color you choose in eyewear. Most often, opposites attract. If your skin is sallow, blues, violets, wines, browns and reds will blend best. Avoid yellow and greenish tones as they bring out the sallowness of the skin.

Pink or ruddy complexions pair well with gold, amber and honey tones. Stay away from pinks and reds.

Pale white skin takes well to the new pastel colors.

Whatever colors you wear best in clothes will be true for glasses also.

"APPROPRIATE GLASSES for your attire" is what Annette Siwula, manager of Better Vision Opticians at Woodfield, stressed as the coming thing. "Wearing one pair of glasses every day is like wearing one coat. It's even more important because glasses are on your face," she exclaimed.

"Light-colored frames are in," Miss Siwula added. "Finally the blondes and light brunettes are being offered stylish glasses too. The dark frames of the past did nothing to enhance the light complexion."

She emphasized that no longer is just the front view of the glasses important, but the profile, from the side, must be taken into consideration also.

Tinting is a new trend in lenses. In addition to being cosmetically pleasing, they can camouflage thick lenses and help hide dark circles under the eyes. Tints come in every color of the rainbow and cost between $3 and $10 extra.

ALSO NEW in tinting are the photo-grey lenses, manufactured by Corning Glassware Co., that turn darker as the light gets brighter. According to area opticians, "The tinted lenses are purely a fashion innovation with no actual functional purpose."

Although some opticians in the area say that wire rims are the big seller and "in" product now in the eyewear business, fashion dictates a move, toward more sturdy, plastic-like frames. Optyl is the new line at Better Vision Opticians.

"This new product is 20 to 30 per cent lighter than plastic, retains its shape better and holds a 6-month warranty," said Miss Siwula.

Sale of metal frames soared from 18 per cent of total eyeglass sales by opticians in 1970 to 47 per cent in 1972. But like wide belts versus skinny belts or cuffed pants versus uncuffed pants, eyeglass fashions change with the times.

PLASTIC LENSES are favored because they are lighter and more impact-resistant. They are, however, more vulnerable to scratching and cost a few dollars more than glass lenses.

Glasses are a big investment. The choices in color, frame shape, lens and construction materials are as varied as the people who fit them and the faces they embellish.

There are three specialists who deal with the public in the optical business. You should know the difference when it's time to get glasses, especially if it's the first time.

Ophthalmologists are medical doctors specializing in the treatment of eye problems. They may test eyesight and prescribe corrective lenses, but the demands have become so great that many ophthalmologists must limit their practices to surgery and specialized medical treatment.

OPTOMETRISTS GIVE most eye examinations. They are specialists who measure the range and power of vision. They are not medical doctors.

Opticians fit and sell glasses prescribed by optometrists and ophthalmologists. They are not qualified to test eyesight. The employees who make and grind the lenses are also referred to as opticians.

The services of the three O's tend to overlap from area to area depending on the demand for the various services.

One last bit of advice: When making your purchase, examine the frames carefully. Are the hinges strong enough to withstand normal use? Shake your head to make sure your glasses stay in place. Is the frame material smooth yet heavy enough to wear well?

Now look — and see — your best.

Lady politicians urge women to 'get involved'

by KAREN THOMPSON

Six different "Women in Politics" and a half dozen individual ways of interpreting their roles in government added up to a program that would make any woman stand up and wave her flag for woman's rights.

About 100 women attended the "Women in Politics" luncheon, sponsored by the Des Plaines League of Women Voters (LWV) at the Casa Royale last Wednesday.

Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights; JoAnne Alter and Joan Anderson, Metropolitan Sanitary District trustees; Virginia Hayter, mayor (village president) of Hoffman Estates; Eleanor Rohrbach, Des Plaines city clerk; Irene Birchfield, Des Plaines 5th ward alderwoman, gave first-hand views of the progress, problems and goals of women working in a male-dominated political organization.

WITH LESS POMP and pageantry than Gloria Steinem and the NOW entourage, but possibly more dedication, hope and drive for achievement, the area's female political representatives urged that more women shoulder the responsibility and get involved.

Rep. Chapman, a member of the Illinois Commission on the Status of Women and one of the primary pushers for some very important unfinished business, passage of the Equal Rights Amendment to the United States Constitution, called for rolling up puffed sleeves.

"Much work needs to be done with laws, attitudes and in common practice so that women can be treated as persons," she said.

The only way to carry out the plan is to get in where the decisions are made. "We can't be dissuaded by the way things have been up to now," said JoAnne Alter. Her prescription for practical politics, "out of the kitchen, into the LWV and on into the political process," hopefully caused a new spark in a few future female candidates.

THE FEMALE political road is long. It is harder for women to be elected and stay elected. Women are treated with evidence of apprehension.

"We are taking the opportunity to contribute and achieve but, at the same time, gaining the opportunity to get into trouble too" was the conclusion of Joan Anderson.

Women are given more credit for a job well done but also more criticism for an unsuccessful try, she said.

A good crying session isn't uncommon. "The men we work with aren't sure we know the rules of the game," Virginia Hayter confided. "And they aren't about to tell you the rules. Not until you're knee deep will they tell you the answers." But she made it clear that confrontation is not her idea of an answer. "I'll do it in my small quiet way," she added.

THE FIRST QUESTION asked of women involved in politics, according to the speakers, is whether their children actually eat. Not only men, but women also

Stewardess parade

Stewardess uniforms from 1931 through the current styles will be modeled Wednesday evening by the Silverliners, Eastern Airlines stewardess alumnae, for Eastern's Management Council meeting at Lander's Restaurant, Elk Grove.

Silverliners living in the area will take part in a skit which features the parade of stewardess fashions through the years.

"CARNIVAL OF FASHIONS" is the theme for the Saturday, Oct. 6 luncheon-fashion show by Waycinder Park Women's Club in the Jimmy Durante Room at Arlington Park Towers. Two models, Mrs. Nancy Baggett in her black Ursula dress from Boutique Unique and Mrs. Gloria Hayner in ringmaster costume, are ready for the show. Tickets at $6 can be purchased from Fay Butler, 298-4005.

Women welcome in Toastmasters

Palatine Toastmasters Club has opened its membership to women as well as men, according to the club president, Elliot Manint.

The Palatine Toastmasters are the first community club in the northwest area to welcome women into membership, said Manint. This was made possible by special action at the 1973 International convention of Toastmasters, he explained, and was ratified by the Palatine chapter just recently.

Toastmasters is an international educational organization providing opportunity to develop personal thinking, listening and speaking skills. The Palatine club was chartered in 1970 and meets the first and third Monday evenings of the month at Palatine Presbyterian Church.

Those wishing more information may call Manint, 359-5314.

Club plots 'flight' for football widows

St. Julian Eymard Catholic Women's Club in Elk Grove Village has a novel solution for wives suffering from Monday night footballitis which keeps their husbands glued to the television set.

The club is inviting area women to a "Flight from Football" dinner-fashion show Monday evening, Oct. 15, at Carson Inn — Nordic Hills. Cocktails will be served at 7, dinner at 8.

Paddor's of Woodfield will show fall fashions to be modeled by club members. Tickets at $7 can be purchased from Mrs. Terry Sbertoli, 593-5124.

Thoughts on giving blood

Every once in a while an ordinary experience can turn into an extraordinary one. The experience may be the same, but the circumstances surrounding it are what make the difference.

Such a difference occurred to me this morning when I donated a pint of blood. I have given blood before, as have countless others, usually on a once-a-year basis to keep our family enrolled in a replacement program, should anyone of us have a need. It has been sort of a routine thing — like paying an insurance premium or giving some time to a charity now and then. I have always looked at it as something one does without a great deal of thought or emotion.

BUT TODAY WAS different. Today I was called on to donate blood to a man undergoing open heart surgery. I don't know the man, and I will probably never meet him. However, as the technician prepared to draw my blood, I became dramatically aware of the man who was about to receive it. At that same moment he was having his body temperature lowered in a room on the floor above me, and being prepped for surgery. For the first time in my blood donor experience, I acutely sensed that my donation, and that of the 17 other people who gave this morning, was going to keep someone's husband, someone's father, alive.

Later, I sat and had coffee and a sweet roll with the Red Cross volunteer — a man in his late sixties — and another donor. The volunteer told us how difficult it is at times to get people to donate blood.

"You'd be surprised at the excuses people come up with — even when their families are in need!" he said. He then told of one man who wouldn't give to his brother because he wanted to be sure to have enough in case his own children ever needed it. Apparently he believed that the body only has so much blood, and if you lose it or give it away, you're out of luck as to ever having more.

THE OTHER DONOR asked how long blood can be kept.

"Twenty-one days," the man replied, "and what is left is made into plasma — in the rare event that there is any extra." He said with pride that he was on his 10th gallon donation — not all in one time of course. He told a story of when he was younger and in the Navy, how his unit would donate together as a substitute for attending a required drill meeting. Having spent 15 minutes at the donor center, they would then spend the rest of the night in a bar across the street.

There is no doubt that camaraderie does tend to develop among those involved in a crisis. But donating blood usually doesn't seem to be a crisis situation. Perhaps the term "Blood Bank" doesn't help, because it creates an image of secure deposits quietly earning interest.

However, every pint of donated blood is a crisis situation to someone — the person who receives it. If we had an occasion to look at it in this way, maybe more of us would give.

Birth notes

Birthdays all in a row

A three-day birthday celebration is becoming a tradition in the Anthony J. Raef home at 811 N. Fernandez Ave., Arlington Heights. Three in the family have birthdays all in a row — Sept. 21, 22 and 23.

Mrs. Raef, whose date is Sept. 21, gave birth to a daughter, Elizabeth Ann, Sept. 22 in Northwest Community Hospital, and waiting at home is a brother Michael, whose birthday is Sept. 23. There are two other children, John, 6, and Catherine Mary, 2.

Elizabeth weighed 8 pounds 13½ ounces at birth. She has a grandmother, Mrs. Golda Raef, also living in Arlington.

NORTHWEST COMMUNITY
Kim Mary O'Hara was born Sept. 19 to Mr. and Mrs. Roger D. O'Hara, 35 W. Gilbert Road, Palatine. Karol, 7, is her sister. Kim weighed 7 pounds 13 ounces and is the granddaughter of Mrs. Gertrude O'Hara, Palatine, and the Ray Rigney, Mount Prospect.

Sandra Lynn Marie Campbell weighed 4 pounds 11 ounces at birth Sept. 18. The George W. Campbells, 936 Topanga Drive, Palatine, are her parents, and her brother is 4-year-old Scott.

Stacy Lynn Harris is a second daughter for Mr. and Mrs. L. Quin Harris, 332 N. Salem, Arlington Heights. Born Sept. 17 at 7 pounds 2½ ounces, she is the sister of Christine, 2.

Christopher Michael Pokuta, second son of the Kenneth S. Pokutas of 122 Lincoln St., Hoffman Estates, arrived Sept. 12 at 7 pounds 1 ounce. Scott, 3, is his brother. Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Pokuta of Arlington Heights are his grandparents.

Tracy Anne Owens made parents of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley B. Owens on Sept. 18. The 6 pound 9 ounce is at home at 1405 Cottonwood Lane, Mount Prospect. Her grandparents are the George Kalmbachs, Arlington Heights, and the Roy Waris, Wheeling.

Robert Frank Brashko Jr. is the name of the baby born Sept. 18 to Mr.

and Mrs. Robert Brashko, 3711 Meadow Drive, Rolling Meadows. The 7 pound 4½ ounce is a brother for Kimberly, 11 months. Mrs. George Biermann of Des Plaines is his grandmother.

Amy Christine Janis, a sister for Wendy Lynn, 2, was born Sept. 20 to Mr. and Mrs. Allan Janis, 334 Hickory Lane, Schaumburg. She weighed 10 pounds 3½ ounces.

Douglas James Baron's birth adds a son for Mr. and Mrs. James Baron Jr., 612 Cambridge, Schaumburg. He arrived Sept. 15 at 9 pounds 2½ ounces. Jennifer, 14 months, is his sister and grandparents are the Robert Lindsays, Arlington Heights.

Jeffrey Michael Korpalski was a Sept. 15 arrival for Mr. and Mrs. John E. Korpalski Jr., 325 Circle Hill Drive, Arlington Heights. Johnny, 2, is the brother of the 8 pound 13½ ounce baby. The Edward Dormalis, Arlington Heights, are his grandparents; Mrs. Sophie Dormal, Arlington, is his great-grandmother.

Kristin Elizabeth Vella's birth was recorded Sept. 18 for Mr. and Mrs. William K. Vella Jr., 624 Boxwood Drive, Schaumburg. She weighed 8 pounds 6 ounces. Billy, 2, is her brother.

SID needs helpers

Volunteers are needed to help with events that will mark Sudden Infant Death week Oct. 7-13 in Arlington Heights. Plans are being made for learning coffees, a fun fair and a svengoolie concert, details to be announced later.

Anyone wishing to lend a hand is asked to call Martha Weber at 255-4388.

Married in rainbow wedding

Attendants in rainbow shades of blue, violet, green and yellow pastels preceded Jeannette Lass down the aisle of Prospect Heights Community Church for her marriage Sept. 1 to Robert Breihan Jr. It was a candlelight, double ring service at 5 p.m. with Jeannette wearing a white organza gown trimmed in Alencon lace appliques.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Lass, 307 N. Waterman, Jeannette made her own veil with the same lace used on her gown. She carried carnations and roses.

Jeannette and her bridegroom, son of the Robert Breihans, 710 Thorntree Terr., Arlington Heights, are both graduates of Hershey High School. The bride also studied a year at Western Illinois University and a year at Harper. Robert will receive his degree in law enforcement this quarter from Western Illinois. He is now with the Bettendorf Police Department, Bettendorf, Iowa, and he and Jeannette are residing in Eldridge, Iowa.

PEGGY KAHLE, Red Oak, Ill., was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Jeannette's sisters, Joan and Deborah, and Char Virzi, Highland Park. Their gowns were made with ruffled circles at the wrists and necklines, and roses and carnations made up their bouquets.

Bruce Conrad, Arlington Heights, was best man, and groomsmen were Doug Schmidt, Prospect Heights; a cousin, Danny Knaak, Chicago; and Neil Houtsma, Chicago. Users were the bride's brother, Steve, and a cousin, Terry Kelsey, River Grove.

A buffet reception for 150 guests was held at Carpenter's Hall, Des Plaines.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Hope we're coming in under the wire for those who have been asking for recipes on the making of balsam apple sauce. A whole series of recipes poured in, many calling for "10 cents" worth of beeswax and a pinch of rosin," many including 20 drops of carbolic acid. This gave some pause and I've finally selected one offered by Mrs. Laura Hofstatter. She says to take a thoroughly ripe large balsam apple, wash it and remove the seeds. Melt a three- or four-ounce jar of petroleum jelly in either a granite or aluminum pan and stir in the finely chopped balsam, simmering this for 30 minutes. Then strain the pulp through a fine strainer and return to pan; add a finely shaved cake of camphor and stir until thoroughly dissolved; then pour into jar and let cool before capping.

Dear Dorothy: I was intrigued by the item sent in by Margaret Wilson on using ball-point needles for machine sewing when working with polyester knit fabrics. Because it is so important that the needle be sharp (a rough needle can easily cause snags) I found a gadget — actually a strip — that you run through with the unthreaded needle several times to make sure the needle is sharp — and with no burrs. — Anna Morani

Dear Dorothy: I have parsley and chives growing outside and wonder if I can bring in some — in case they don't last out a cold winter. Hazel Mondrian

Of course. Pot several clumps if you have room.

Dear Dorothy: We are seeding and fertilizing our lawn this fall. Should we also do something about the broad-leaf weeds? — Ada W.

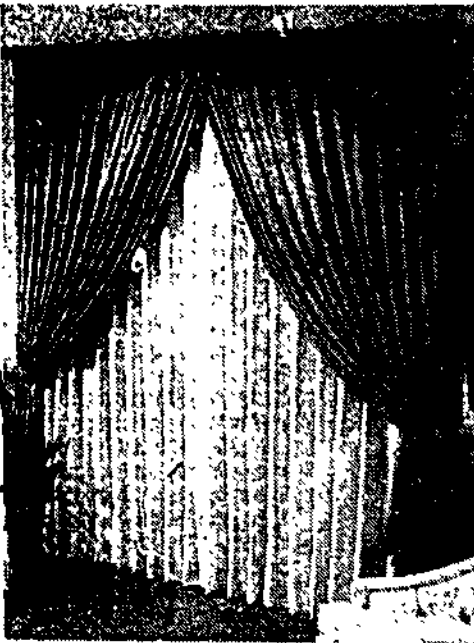

Yes, indeed. Use 2,4-D plus silvex.

Lady politicians

have a bothersome feeling that somehow the quest for a part in the future of the world will hurt the family structure.
"The family structure is not dependent on the woman serving and staying at home," said Joan Anderson. Eleanor Rohrbach concurred stating that "women are as vital to government as they are to the family." All but one of the women speaking at the LWV luncheon are the mother of four children. Virginia Hayler has five.
No political gathering would be complete without a mention of Watergate. And, everyone knows that there were no women involved in the bugging mess, except the lady who blew the whistle. Mrs. Alter was quick to point out that "women bring the difference between right and wrong to politics."
Because of the obstacles, women are hard-working, serious and conscientious and looking forward to the day when they are viewed as individual political representatives, not "the women."
As Virginia Hayler so appropriately put it, "We must strive for life, liberty and the pursuit of excellence."

Bridal attendants wear floral prints

Pastel floral printed dresses in pink, yellow and blue with picture hats and bouquets to match were the ensembles of the bridal attendants for Deborah Lynn Schalk's wedding. She became the bride of James David Grischow of Itasca Sept. 8 in St. Peter Lutheran Church, Schaumburg.

The bride is the daughter of the Norman W. Schalks of 1103 Bradford Lane, Schaumburg. She chose Mrs. Susan Scholes of Justice, Ill., as matron of honor; Shirley Tipword, Matteson, as bridesmaid, and her sister Barbara as junior bridesmaid.

Susan wore a pink floral printed nylon gown with puffed sleeves and ruffled hem, complementing it with a large pink hat and carrying a natural colored basket filled with white daisies, pink roses and baby's breath.

Shirley, a cousin of the bride, was dressed identically but in blue and Barbara was in yellow.

FOR THE 6 P.M. double ring rites the bride chose a white nylon gown with an embroidered lace bodice and long puffed sleeves with lace cuffs. Her mantilla

Mr. and Mrs. James Grischow veil was also edged with the scalloped lace. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses, daisies, stephanotis and baby's breath.

The bridegroom, son of the Ray Grischows of Itasca, had his brother Paul as best man. A cousin, Don Grischow of Elmhurst, ushered while the bride's brother Robert greeted guests at the door.

After a reception in Bartlett Firehall, the newlyweds honeymooned for 10 days in Hawaii and are making their home in Schaumburg.

Deborah attended Conant High School and Harper College and works for United Air Lines at O'Hare Airport. Since graduating from Lake Park High, her husband is employed by Itasca Heating and Air Conditioning.

Portrait painting art league program

Joe Anderson, president of the Mount Prospect Art League, will have his portrait painted by George Straub when the league meets tomorrow, 8 p.m., in the Mount Prospect Community Center.

Straub, past president of the Artists Guild of Chicago, now teaches portrait painting at the Suburban Fine Arts Center in Highland Park.

Since retiring from the field of advertising art where he was employed as vice president and art director for a large national advertising firm, he has painted almost 100 portraits of men, women and children. He has also traveled extensively in Europe, sketching primarily in watercolors.

Guests are welcome to attend the meeting tomorrow night. Further information about the league and its activities is available through Joe Anderson, 255-4254 or Madeline King, 299-5808.

Streak ends

Arlington snaps Elk Grove's victory string, 7-0

by PAUL LOGAN
No. 91, ably assisted by No. 43, ended the hopes for No. 18 Friday night.

The first number belongs to Jeff Cleveland, super safety for the Arlington football team. His dramatic interception late in the game cost Elk Grove the chance for area immortality.

Earlier in the Mid-Suburban League cross-divisional contest, the second number — worn by Craig Bernhardt — flashed with brilliance. Carrying for most of the yardage, this Cardinal half-back accounted for Arlington's only touchdown.

Together Cleveland and Bernhardt costarred in a thriller that brought an end to the superb Grenadier 17-game winning streak at Arlington, 7-0, erasing the possibility of No. 18 in the record books.

Elk Grove, whose victories began early in 1971, just missed tying the all-time area mark of 18 straight wins by Prospect (1959-61). The Grove is now 2-1 with Arlington, 3-0, the only undefeated MSL team left.

Cleveland, a veteran safety, is considered the greatest Card ever at that position by his defensive coach, Tom Pitchford. The Grenadiers would probably agree after his second sprawling interception of the night.

"I had to dive pretty far," admitted the rangy (6-foot-4, 182 pounds) senior of his unreal leap through the foggy air. Completely extending his solid frame, he caught the costly turnover just above the soggy turf on the Arlington nine yard line. That feat avenged an earlier mistake, as he explained:

"On the pass interference penalty (four plays before which gave the Grove offense a 15-yard lift), I got called. I slipped and went into the guy (intended receiver Larry Lasplsa). I wanted to get the ball back really bad."

Thus ended the Grenadiers' deepest penetration of night. The drive, which started on the Arlington 43, began because of a super defensive play by Charlie Piermarini. He slammed Bernhardt for a one-yard loss on a fourth-and-inches situation.

Bernhardt wasn't stopped much, however. Using his sprinter speed, the muscular (5-11, 170) junior almost single-handedly accounted for only Card sustained drive earlier in the final quarter.

Startling from the Arlington 33, he carried eight of the 13 times for 55 yards. All but one run was to the outside "where he had to be effective," said Card head coach Chuck Haines.

After two tough defensive stops by the Grove's Don Wendler and Piermarini on their own four, Bernhardt blasted off left tackle on a third-and-goal situation. Excellent blocking by the left side, including a lead plowing job by fullback George Vukosich, helped him into the end zone. Steve Kamps kicked the extra point.

Haines was tremendously pleased with his team's showing, especially his two co-stars.

"The kid's going to be fantastic one of these days," he said of Bernhardt. "He's doing a good job, but he'd be the first to admit that he didn't do it himself. He had that blocking in front of him."

"He played a great game," added Haines of Cleveland, whose other interception (making four on the year) snuffed out a first quarter drive on the Arlington 17. "He also made three important stops when they were going for first downs."

Getting down to specifics, the Card defenders did plenty of stopping the whole night. Wendler and Jim Goggin were limited to a combined 45 yards in 21 carries compared to the 362 they shared the week before.

Arlington, aided by Bernhardt's 122 rushing yards (5.5 per carry), easily out-offended Elk Grove 257 to 103. Also starring behind Cleveland and Bernhardt were Chris Johnston and Ward Schell Johnston, a linebacker, was in on numerous tackles and Schell, the quarterback, rushed for 80 yards.

Following the Arlington TD, only 7:19 remained. Using the pass on 13 of the last 15 Grove plays, quarterback Jim Hammers was forced to throw on the run by a heavy rush. Coupled with the Cleveland-led secondary, the Cards only allowed him four completions. He finished with 72 yards passing.

"They deserved to win," said Grove coach Don Schnake. "If you're going to lose, that's the best way. It wasn't a fluke or anything."

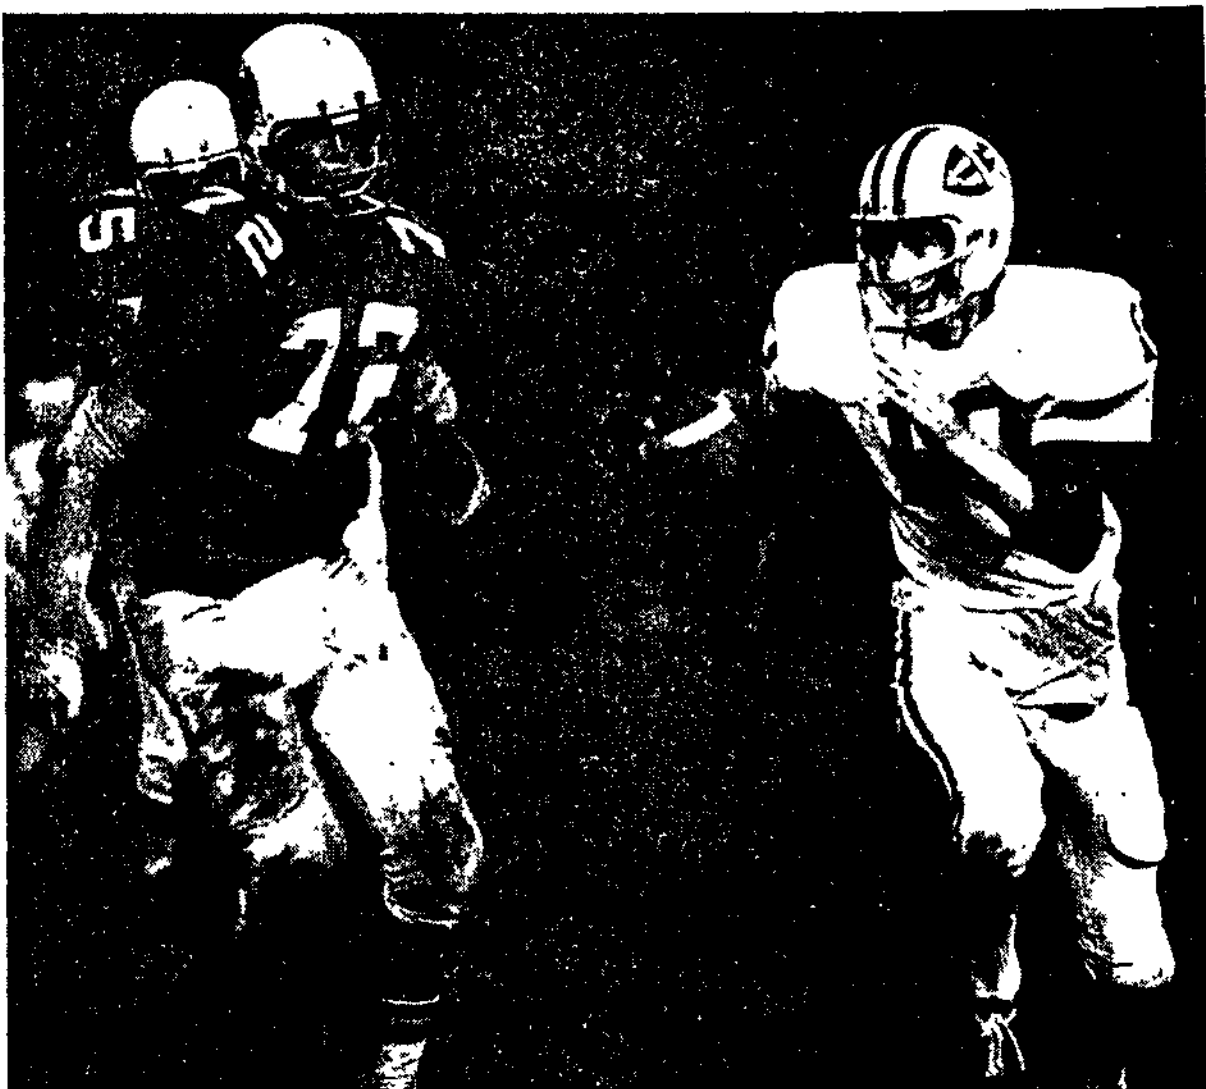

Elk Grove last lost to Hersey, 9-0. Then that '71 team came back to beat Hersey in the MSL Super Bowl. Would you like another shot at the Cards, coach?

"Well, sure," said Schnake. "I'd love to."

However, it's a long way to Super Bowl No. 4 for both teams.

Hersey's explosive opening half sends Forest View to 31-21 loss

by LARRY EVERHART

It was like watching a tennis match in the first half. Heads were turning all the time. It reminded one of the early days of the American Football League, there was so much offense.

By halftime, it was apparent that Hersey's passing game, especially when quarterback Mark Zakula throws to back Jim Spicuzza, is not just good. It's brutal when functioning well, and it was Friday night despite a veteran Forest View secondary.

It was from this momentum and a 21-14 halftime lead that Hersey rode on to a big 31-21 victory in what many were calling a preview to the Mid-Suburban League championship game. Coaches picked both teams to win their divisions.

Although Forest View stopped Zakula's passing in the second half (one for six), the damage had been done. Mark had connected on eight of 12 in the first half for an amazing 173 yards — with four of the catches for 102 yards by Spicuzza.

Keeping the ball on the ground most of the last two periods, Hersey chugged out 190 ground yards for a perfect balance with their 191 through the air and 381 in all. Spicuzza was extremely busy, being his team's leading rusher as well as the game's top receiver with 78 yards in 17 carries.

Forest View's seemingly unstoppable John Kronforst was one bright spot, leading all rushers with 98 yards in 18 carries. He now has 361 in three games, and that pace continued could mean all-area honors for the second straight year.

Forest View gained just 221 yards in all, though, and there was no doubt that the Huskies were the better team this night. The Falcons gained 73 yards passing, their air game ineffective except for two long completions.

The first came on an excellent play-action fake by Ray Meinsen, who then threw to a wide-open Kurt Haaland for 32 yards and the score just two and a half minutes into the game. Kronforst's kick made it 7-0.

But the hosts charged right back like bulls. After just six plays, Jeff Forster scored on a 16-yard pass from Zakula after a 39-yard aerial to Spicuzza. Dan Damato kicked the first of four conversions to tie it.

Zakula continued his bombing raid, with Forster and Spicuzza again targets, to set up the next score, a four-yard run by Mark Krause on the last play of the first quarter. Hersey never trailed again.

Forest View did tie it once more, less than three minutes later. After a 33-yard completion from Meinsen to Rod Kiolbassa, Kronforst carried three times for 12, 10 and five, the last time scoring.

Again it took the Huskies all of five plays to retaliate in the furious offensive fireworks. Bill Hare caught a 26-yard pass, Spicuzza carried for 12, then Krause showed some brokenfield running and scrambled 15 yards for the TD.

Hersey still wasn't done for the half. Their next drive covered 47 yards in only four plays. Zakula threw 26 yards to Spicuzza, 15 to Hare, and Krause scored his second touchdown from two yards.

Kronforst almost staged a one-man drive after the second-half kickoff. He carried eight straight times for 39 yards, and on fourth and two from the Hersey 22, Ken Holan burst through the line on a quick litter for a 22-yard TD.

Damato closed the scoring on the third quarter's final play with a 26-yard field goal. The Falcons couldn't get anything going in the fourth quarter.

A very happy Hersey coach Joe Gilwa said, "We really put it together this week. Our line complemented Zakula and gave him time to throw. He's been throwing in under three seconds anyway. And our secondary did a good job, with the exceptions of the early passes."

"The kids worked hard for this one all week. We needed it for a positive attitude." Then, hearing that Arlington also had won to stay undefeated, Gilwa said, "It's going to be a heck of a challenge, going to Arlington next week."

Forest View has two toughies coming up. It takes on state-ranked St. Bede at home Friday, then tackles arch-rival Elk Grove, the other strong South Division contender.

Lions capture 3rd straight, 21-6

St. Viator 'passes' another test

by JEFF CLARKSON

A passing attack featuring a 62-yard touchdown strike and a 34-yarder which set up a second six-pointer led the St. Viator Lions to a jolting 21-6 victory over the Carmel Corsairs Friday night in Mundelein.

Jim Bucaro, who through the first three games has more than ably filled the shoes of last year's star signal caller, Stan Bobowski, hit on seven of 14 aerial attempts, racking up 151 yards for the night in guiding a third straight victory.

The effectiveness of Bucaro's arm was very early demonstrated to everyone in the Carmel stadium including an extremely large contingent of St. Viator backers.

After the first play from scrimmage by the Lions following the opening Carmel kickoff, Bucaro called for and successfully executed an eight-yard quickie pop pass to end Dan O'Connor over the middle. No Corsair defender could be found within five yards of the 6-foot-2 senior and he raced in for the first score of the night. A two-point conversion attempt, a pass, failed and the Lions led 6-0.

Jim Bucaro

The Corsair offense figured to be sorely handicapped with the loss of their senior quarterback Bill Blouch, who suffered leg damage during practice earlier in the week. But the Carmel unit had an ace up their sleeve which they played all night, junior halfback Butch Allen.

During the Suburban Catholic Conference encounter, Allen carried the ball 31 times (nearly two-thirds of the time that the Corsairs had possession of the pigskin) and gained 173 of the 189 yards which his team netted.

Running like a sledge-hammer against the Lion line, throughout most of the contest, Allen only once found a gaping hole in the Lion defense. With half the opening quarter remaining, Allen received a handoff, juke-stepped through the line of scrimmage at the Carmel 44 and raced 56 yards for the lone Carmel score.

The next and decisive Lion drive engineered by Bucaro was highlighted by a 34-yard pass to Steve Bobowski. The drive was initiated at the St. Viator 40-yard line with about a minute and a half remaining in the half. Bobowski rushed for nine yards and then Bucaro hit him with another short pass which saw the senior gain yardage to the Corsair 17. Allen (who else?), playing safety for Carmel as well, prevented the Viator TD with a fine one-on-one tackle.

From there, Bucaro hit Bernie Borschke with an eight-yard screen pass and after two more aeriels failed, in the end zone, Bucaro took matters into his own hands and scampered around left for the second six-pointer with 18 seconds remaining on the clock. Bobowski made his only attempt at a PAT. The Lions took a 13-6 half time edge with them into their locker room.

Only once more did the combination of Bucaro's punting and the staunch Blue and White defense allow a Corsair threat. The Carmel eleven was able to partially block a Bucaro punt, forcing a short kick which was returned to the St. Viator 28. The Lions tightened up their line and on a fourth down play held Carmel on the 10.

The closest Carmel came to the Lion goal line after that aborted drive was the St. Viator 46. The rest of the game found the Corsairs deep in their own territory.

Finally, St. Viator closed out the scoring with three seconds left to go in the game. Rick O'Donnell, senior defensive back, snared a desperation Carmel pass at the Carmel 40 and raced back to the Corsair 28.

On the fifth play in the series, Bucaro pitched back to Joe Littwin, leading Lion rusher with 68 yards on 18 carries. Littwin tallied from the three. Again, the Lions tried a two-point attempt and this time, following the identical pattern that scored the final touchdown, made it pay off as Littwin counted.

Harper gives nation's best stiff battle

Against the top junior college team in the nation, the Harper Hawks fell one touchdown short in a 13-6 loss to Iowa Central Saturday night in Fort Dix, Iowa.

The Hawks fell behind 13-0 when Iowa Central scored on a screen pass on the last play of the first half.

In the third quarter, the Hawks got on the board. Quarterback Bob Andreas threw a 55-yard touchdown pass to split end Irwin Kimbrough. This was the same pass combination that completed six passes for 116 yards in the Hawks' 27-18 win over Kennedy-King last weekend.

The fourth quarter saw neither team score as the Hawks suffered their first loss of the season. Their record stands at 2-1, while Iowa Central remains undefeated at 4-0.

Palatine blanks Prospect; scores 15 in 2nd quarter

by JIM COOK

It was a cloak and dagger setting, straight from England and Sherlock Holmes and Palatine played it to a "tea."

Pirate quarterback Andy Donahue unleashed a clutch throwing arm and Len Marchel the rewards of a second effort as Palatine blanked Prospect 23-0.

Donahue hit on only seven of 20 aerials, but the majority in key situations and one for the contest's second touchdown. Despite a fog as dense as pea soup at times, Donahue still managed to find open receivers — his favorite Mike McCostlin who hauled in five tosses out of the rolling smoke.

Statistically, the game was a tossup with Palatine holding just a 32-yard edge in total yards gained and Prospect even capturing the riving derby, 118 to 115.

But that's when Donahue was at his best, in the clutch and when it counted. Although completing only one of his first seven attempts and the victim of two interceptions, Donahue kept the Prospect defense alert for the possible aerial strike and then handed to Marchel who danced 11 times for 67 yards.

The Knights pilfered two Donahue passes in the first quarter but coughed up the pigskin almost immediately — once on a punt and the other on another interception.

Palatine rode an apparent Donahue to Terry Tansey pitch to a touchdown with three minutes remaining in the first quarter, but the play was called back because of an illegal receiver downfield.

Donahue was intercepted by Prospect's Jay Lusk moments later, but Knight quarterback Mike Quade returned the favor when his attempted pass was picked off by Marchel.

The Pirates quickly marched 48 yards — the key play coming on a fourth down and seven situation when Donahue coolly hit Tansey with a strike at the nine. Two plays later, Marchel tunneled through the Prospect defense for the score with 9:13 left in the half.

Still unable to move against Palatine's rugged defense, Prospect was forced to punt and the Pirates caught fire again. Marchel, a diminutive 5-foot-10, 175-pound scabbard, burst open on a sweep for a 23-yard pickup down to the Knight 19 and Tansey, who didn't play in the second half because of a hamstring pull, rammed down to the six.

Andy Donahue

Donahue put the ball in the air and after an incomplete, spotted McCostlin alone in the end zone for the score. A two-point conversion from Donahue to Tansey upped the Pirate advantage to 15-0 at the half.

"I've got to hand it to Coach Williams," Palatine head mentor Arv Herstedt admitted. "He really made some adjustments at the half and to be frank, they scared us to death."

What Herstedt referred to was probably the turning point in the battle. Prospect came out, took the second-half kickoff and marched to the Pirate two yard line behind Quade's effective sideline sweeps.

The Knight signaller carried five times for 47 yards during the drive behind a wall of blockers, but with a first and goal at the three, Palatine's defense answered the bell.

Val Grafittl was dumped for a two-yard loss, Quade was dropped five yards behind the line of scrimmage and despite an eight-yard completion that advanced the ball to the two, Pirates Tom Esmail, Billy Countryman, McCostlin and Nell Johnson refused to budge in the path of Knight Jon Devero.

"You can march the half up and down the field all night," a dejected Williams said, "but if you don't put it in the end zone, you're wasting your time."

Palatine finally added the clincher in the final three minutes. Donahue and McCostlin teamed twice on long gainers — the first for 35 yards and the second for 21 — before the lanky 6-foot, 168-pound quarterback snuck in from the one.

"I was happy we won," Herstedt said, "but I thought Prospect pointed out some glaring weaknesses that we have to correct pretty soon."

Herstedt is looking forward to a long week in hopes of patching four regulars that didn't see action against the Knights. Jim Maycan, Sal Florelli, Andy Hazel and Tansey all need time to heal from injuries.

No team can survive by employing eight players on both offensive and defensive platoons. Not even with Sherlock Holmes in the backfield.

Ground power Fremd drives past Conant, 27-6

by KEITH REINHARD

Mixing up a good old fashioned ground game sprinkled liberally with doses of Keith Cummiskey, Fremd served up a 26-7 pasting of visiting Conant Friday night to inaugurate their 1973 conference campaign.

Cummiskey, a 170-pound senior whose handiwork has a tendency to be overshadowed by other running backs in Coach Al Ratcliff's stable, stole more than his share of the limelight this time around. He tallied all but six of his team's points while leading the Vikings back onto the winning trail and issuing the Cougars their third straight setback of the season.

Cummiskey sparked a second-half surge by the hosts after neither side had demonstrated an overwhelming desire to dominate through the first two periods of play. Both the Conant touchdown and the second Fremd score were the result of fumbles during a careless opening half and the 13-6 midgame count left it to be anybody's ballgame.

"We played especially poor in the second quarter but I was confident we'd snap out of it in the second half," Ratcliff commented. "The kids were anxious to make amends for last week's off show."

Keith Cummiskey

Any resemblance to the Vikes of that previous Saturday (when they lost 20-6 to Lake Park and went nowhere on the ground) appeared to be strictly coincidental. Cummiskey, Tom Bullen and Steve Dwyer combined to ring up nearly 250 yards over the turf and the Cougars were left with very little to cheer about save for the antics of Dan Szymkowiak.

Szymkowiak hauled in a 32-yard pass from Bill Boreczak near the outset of the second half that brought the visitors out of a hole and allowed them to entertain brief thoughts of evening things up. Later, the 165-pound scooter took off on a 31-yard gallop to key Conant's deepest penetration of the final half.

The mistakes that had haunted both sides up to intermission were still plaguing the Cougars later on, however, and both these long gainers were subsequently wiped out.

The game's opening score was a 28-yard dash by Cummiskey six plays after the kickoff. A 29-yard pass from Mark Ottman to Jeff Brisson primed it and afterwards Keith missed his only extra point kick attempt in four tries to leave the score at 6-0.

Conant came back down to Fremd's 32 but bobbled away possession then and Bullen countered with a 38-yard saunter back into Cougar territory. The advance continued all the way to the eight-yard stripe before Matt Lauro's tackle stopped it. Three plays later though Boreczak was dropped in the end zone by Bill McManus and Rick Spiniolas, losing the ball en route.

Jerry Parker pounced on the errant pigskin and Fremd moved out in front 13-0.

There were two Vike fumbles in the second stanza, Bill Fasig recovering the second one for the guests at the enemy 25. Seven plays and a six-yard penalty later Boreczak reached payday on a one-yard charge up the middle to narrow the gap to 13-6.

In the third period Conant was approaching midfield on their first series when they fumbled again and McManus recovered. On 10 running plays Fremd was back in Conant's end zone for a 20-6 bulge. Cummiskey lugged the ball the last six times in a row, eating up 35 yards along the way and scoring on a four-yard plunge up the middle.

The hosts fumbled once in the last quarter, and regained control on the very next play when Brisson speared a Boreczak pass. That set up the game's final score with Cummiskey capping a 21-yard drive from five yards out.

Another Brisson interception later on negated Szymkowiak's long run and Conant's best second-half opportunity to score. A short time later the Vikes wrapped up their second victory in three tries this season.

Buffalo Grove ladies present awards

Farman's Hotel in Lake Zurich was the setting for a banquet for the Buffalo Grove Ladies Golf League members and their escorts.

Thirty ladies participated in the 13 week league which was played at the challenging Buffalo Grove Golf Club.

Trophy awards were presented to the following ladies for their outstanding performance: "A Flight" Lorraine Walker — low gross, Barb Feller — low net; "B Flight" Barb Walker — low gross, Judy Rischall — low net; "C Flight" Jeanne Froid — low gross, Pat Di Gioia — low net.

The "most improved golfer" award went to Pat Di Gioia, whose handicap dropped eight strokes. "Low finger score" award went to Lorraine Walker, who scalped the course with an 85 and also was the league's "eagle eye" putter.

The newly elected officers are President Jerry Laurie; Vice President Barb Feller; Treasurer Rosemary Emmel; Corresponding Secretary Gen Wedral; Handicap Secretary Ginny Avildson; Assistant Handicap Secretary Steffie Sloat; and Publicity Chairman Mary White.

Wildcat aerial game produced 122 yards and two scores, but that wasn't enough. Schaumburg posted a 21-14 victory.

Schlesinger assumes 'Y' physical director post

Stephen Jurco, chairman of the Board of Directors for the Northwest Suburban YMCA, Des Plaines, recently announced the appointment of Brad Schlesinger as Physical Director.

Prior to Schlesinger's newly accepted position, Brad held the title of Recreation Program Director for two years in Ft. Riley, Kan. He participated in Munich in the 1972 Olympics as a starting wingman on the team handball team. Previous to the Olympics, Brad and his teammates trained in various European, Scandinavian and Iron Curtain countries.

Schlesinger grew up in Deerfield, graduating from Deerfield High School in 1969. He graduated from Kansas State University with a B.S. in Physical Education. While at Kansas State, he was a baseball pitcher for two years prior to playing professionally for the Kansas City Royals.

Schlesinger is presently gaining credits toward a master's degree at George Williams College.

Brad Schlesinger

He was involved in Cardiovascular Fitness Classes and testing at Kansas State and plans to initiate a similar program at the Northwest Suburban YMCA.

He and his wife, Karyl, reside in Rolling Meadows. Karyl is Field Executive of the Illinois Shore Council of the Girl Scouts of the U.S.A. of America.

RUSH TO JUDGMENT. With a mass of Conant linemen charging, Fremd quarterback Mark Otteman and half-back Tom Bullen are pressed for a quick way out of the dilemma. Overall, it was the visiting Cougars who were pressed, however, while the Vikings were ringing up a 27-6 verdict in the Mid-Suburban League encounter.

One skid ends, another continues; Schaumburg whips Wheeling, 21-14

by ART MUGALIAN

The sky was what the poets call steel-gray and the rain wasn't really rain, it was mist. The gridiron turf was slippery and a gusty wind blew out of the north-east.

It was a lousy day for football.

But it was a good day for Schaumburg. Bob Ferguson's Saxons handled the Wheeling Wildcats, 21-14, on Schaumburg's wet home grounds Saturday.

An excited partisan crowd watched the Saxons end their six-game losing streak as Wheeling dropped their 10th in succession.

Jack Liljeberg's 'Cats at the outset attempted to establish a running game, but the only thing established was that Schaumburg's defensive line is mighty tough.

Wheeling lost 32 yards on the ground for the day and — a statistic that staggers the imagination — executed only five running plays that netted gains!

"We're stingy," Coach Ferguson said of his selfish Saxons. "And we're not even at full strength on defense. We're missing two starters with injuries."

The Wildcats' defense certainly didn't go home early either. They forced punts the first three times Schaumburg had the ball.

With the game scoreless in the second quarter, 'Cat Dave Rothhaar intercepted a Saxon pass from Dave Hill, thwarting a drive on Wheeling's 20-yard line.

However, on the next play, fullback Ken Smith fumbled and Schaumburg's Kevin Grady fell on the ball at the 15. Two plays later, Hill completed a 12-yard TD toss to Scott Scholz and the Saxons led 6-0.

The rest of the first half was strictly a punting exhibition.

Schaumburg's first drive of the second half was also their best. Starting on his own 11, Hill passed to Rich Godinez for 21 yards, threw to Scholz for 26 more, and saw the blocking as halfback Wayne Morgan ran the option for 15. Then the speedy 150-pound Morgan found a hole over right tackle for a 17-yard score.

Godinez ran for two extra points and it was 14-0.

Wheeling got back in the game on the first play of the fourth quarter when QB Ken Slepicka threw a screen pass to Joe Damore, good for a 10-yard TD. Key plays in the nine-play drive were a 27-yard pass to Paul Groot and a 15-yard pass interference call against the Saxons. Slepicka passed to Carl Pfister for two points and it was 14-8 with a whole quarter left to play.

But Schaumburg killed five minutes of clock and most of Wheeling's remaining chances by marching 63 yards in 11 plays, nine of them on the ground.

Hill passed to Godinez for an eight-yard TD in the right flat and Roger Bliver kicked the point to make it 21-8.

Wheeling got the ball three more times. Once they were forced to punt, and once Ron Geels intercepted a Slepicka pass.

After the Saxon theft, with less than a minute to play, Godinez fumbled the ball to Wildcat Scott Jones at the Schaumburg 16. With :01 showing on the clock, Slepicka found Groot in the end zone on his fourth try.

"You know, it's a three-way tie for first," Ferguson beamed after the Saxon victory. "We're not going to give up first. We'll be ready for Conant next week."

The Saxon coach praised the work of Morgan, who gained 108 yards rushing and caught three passes for 29 more.

Hill passed for 96 yards, completing only 7 of 18, but the wet ball slipped away from several Saxons.

Next week Wheeling will again try to break their losing streak. And Schaumburg? Maybe two in a row.

Wisconsin team rips Mustangs

There was only one way to explain it.

"This was the first time at Rolling Meadows that one of our teams was completely non-competitive."

Head coach Angelo Barro used those words to sum up an evening of frustration in Wisconsin.

Powerful Racine Horlick overwhelmed Rolling Meadows Friday, 41-0, building up a 34-0 lead at the intermission behind the four-touchdown explosion of spectacular running back Jeff Lee.

"That's a good team but they're not 41 points better than us," said Barro. "Our kids didn't block. They didn't tackle. Racine didn't do one thing that we weren't prepared for, offensively or defensively, but our team did not want to play football. There's nobody I could really single out for doing the job."

Racine reeled off three touchdowns in the first 10 minutes, with Lee supplying the fireworks. The 6-foot-2, 180-pounder, called by Barro the best high school running back he's ever seen, scored on a 10-yard burst on the third play of the game, took back a punt 44 yards, and then swept end for 15 yards and another first period touchdown.

With two minutes remaining in the first quarter it was 20-0 and all downhill the rest of the way for Meadows. Lee scored his fourth first half touchdown on a six-yard run and then sat down for rest of the game.

"Penalties hurt the Mustangs, checking any drives that might have put some points on the board. Overall, Meadows was tagged with 110 yards in penalties, wiping out several sizable gains.

"Our kids just have to make up their minds now that if they want to play football they're going to have to hit," said Barro. "Otherwise, they're going to get blown off the field. It'd be the same story in our North Division if we play the way we did Friday night."

Rolling Meadows returns to league action Friday evening with a home contest against Palatine, a 23-0 winner over Prospect and a 2-0 club in Mid-Suburban play. The game will be broadcast on WMM-FM, 92.7, starting at 8 o'clock Friday night.

SCORE BY QUARTERS:

NUMBERS 2 & 4 CALL IT. The referees raised their hands for the first time all night to tell the large crowd that Craig Bernhardt has found the end zone. Lost in the mob is the little halfback as Elk Grove's Mike Brandt (14) and Don Weadley (17) watch helplessly. Arlington won 7-0 to end the Grove's 17-game winning streak. Also in on the TD were Chris Johnston (65) and Doug Betters (72).

MAINTENANCE MANAGER

Ready to tackle severe challenges... short budget projects? We're looking for the "short doers" multi-skilled managers to take over electrical/mechanical maintenance of our multi-shift operation. We want you to plan/implement efficient use of manpower, materials, equipment... to organize, direct and coordinate a total PLANT MAINTENANCE PROGRAM.

An Engineering degree is preferred, but the equivalent in experience could qualify you. You'll also need 3-5 years background supervising a manufacturing facility of the 1st level, with a successful record of maintaining standards and achieving staff services.

We're offering a very competitive starting salary, full company benefits, opportunity to move ahead. Send resume or call.

Families falling within these scales or those suffering from unusual circumstances, such as if the family is receiving public assistance, or if there are hardships, may be eligible for free meals for their children. They may do so by filling in the application forms that are available at the principal's office in each school. Applications may be submitted any time during the school year. The form itself is simple to complete and requests information needed to determine economic need based on the income and number of persons in the family and any unusual circumstances or hardships which affect the family's economic status.

AN ORDINANCE GRANTING A VARIATION OF THE ZONING ORDINANCE OF THE VILLAGE OF MOUNT PROSPECT, COOK COUNTY, ILLINOIS

WHEREAS, the Zoning Board of Appeals of the Village of Mount Prospect did meet on the 26th day of July, 1973, at which time it reviewed the application for a variation of the Zoning Ordinance of the Village of Mount Prospect, Cook County, Illinois, and did hear Case No. ZBA-17-V-73, pursuant to proper legal notice; and

WHEREAS, the Zoning Board of Appeals of the Village of Mount Prospect did hear this request to construct an office building and provide twenty (20) parking spaces on the forty-five (45) acres of property owned by the Mount Prospect Zoning Ordinance; and

WHEREAS, the Zoning Board of Appeals of the Village of Mount Prospect did approve this request under Case No. ZBA-17-V-73 for the reasons stated below:

1. The purpose of the variation is not based exclusively upon the desire to make money;

2. The granting of the variation will not be detrimental to the public health, safety, or convenience in that it will not alter the essential character of the locality and will not run with the land, being granted under the National Fraternal Society of the Dead during its use and enjoyment of the subject property; and

3. The proposed variation will not impair the adequate supply of light and air to adjacent property, or substantially increase the congestion in the public streets, or increase the danger of fire, or endanger the public safety, or otherwise substantially diminish or impair property values within the neighborhood; and

WHEREAS, the President and Board of Trustees of the Village of Mount Prospect have reviewed the matter and have determined that the same is in the best interests of the Village of Mount Prospect;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED BY THE PRESIDENT AND BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF THE VILLAGE OF MOUNT PROSPECT, COOK COUNTY, ILLINOIS:

SECTION ONE: That the property hereinafter described, being Lot 3 in H. Roy Berry Company's North West Heights, being a subdivision of all that land lying North of Chicago North Western Railroad in the North West 1/4 of the South East 1/4 of Section 12, Township 41 North, Range 11 East of the Third Principal Meridian, in Cook County, Illinois, is currently zoned under the Zoning Ordinance of the Village of Mount Prospect as B-2 (Business-Office District), which zoning classification shall remain in effect subject to the variation granted herein:

That the land described above may include the construction and erection of an office building with parking for twenty (20) 10'x20' self-storage parking spaces to serve said building and premises are occupied by the National Fraternal Society of the Dead.

SECTION TWO: That all requirements of the Mount Prospect Building and Zoning Code shall be applicable except the variation noted in SECTION ONE heretofore mentioned.

SECTION THREE: That the Director of Building and Zoning of the Village of Mount Prospect is hereby authorized to issue a building permit for construction in accordance with the variation hereinbefore mentioned.

SECTION FOUR: That the variation granted by this Ordinance shall be null and void of no force and effect whatsoever unless an application for a building permit pursuant to such variation is made and approved by the Board of Trustees of the Village of Mount Prospect within one (1) year of the date this said Ordinance becomes effective.

SECTION FIVE: That this Ordinance shall be in full force and effect from and after its passage, approval and publication in the manner provided by law.

AYES: 5, NAYS: 0.
PASSED AND APPROVED this 18th day of September, 1973.

Barkeeps face new test: telling 'kids' from 'old folks'

by JOE SWICKARD

Tonight the new state liquor law will face its first test as thousands of 19- and 20-year-olds line up for their first legal lagers. And barkeeps throughout the state will face a severe test of their nerves, patience and possibly their licenses.

The new law, which took effect at 12:01 a.m. today, enables 19- and 20-year-olds to purchase and consume beer and wine, but not the stronger spiritus fermenti. There lies the rub.

The problem for alcohol dispensers is separating the beerhounds from the ones who drink the hard stuff. The clerk or bartender who errs in pouring the libations faces a stiff rap and possibly the loss of his liquor license.

TO COMBAT this problem several remedies have been put forward, ranging from marking the beer drinker, to special identification, to new legislation that protects the seller from taking a fall for serving some one with phony IDs.

Bob Burton, manager of Worldwide Liquors, Palatine, said the Illinois Liquor Association has provided cards designed to protect the shops from selling to mature looking 18-year-olds or denying service to youthful-looking 19- and 20-year-olds.

The cards, already used for 21-year-olds not marred by the ravages of time, are signed by the customer. On the back of the card, which remains file at the store, Selective Service, or driver's license numbers are listed. This, according to Burton, enables the clerk to run a quick check on the presented IDs against the information on file.

DOBBY DOBKINS, owner of the store, admits the cards are a stopgap measure at best. He feels the new law is "one we can't live with."

Dobkins and others in similar situations around the state are almost universal in disapproval of the new law. Most label it halfway measure that just breeds new problems. Many said they favored one age for drinking all alcoholic beverages.

This is the night when tavern operators probably will bear the brunt of the thirsty youths. Short of setting aside separate rooms or areas for the beer and wine crowd, few see any ready answer for the problem, except the bars in Arlington Heights where the law doesn't take effect until Oct. 6.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS passed an ordinance lowering the age, but by law, ordinances do not take effect until 10 days after they are published in a newspaper. The revised liquor law was not published until Sept. 26; hence the lag twixt cup and the lip.

In hope of preventing underage acceptance, Bill Roscoe, owner of the Blarney Stone Inn, Mount Prospect, said he will ask for three identification cards to protect himself. For the guys, these would probably be a voters card, draft card and driver's license.

But what of the young woman who lacks the draft card? A spokesman from Lum's Restaurant, said he would probably settle "for two good ones. Hopefully one would have a picture."

Some spas say they will go to a ink-stamping system for the beer drinkers.

BUTCH McGUIRE, who owns taverns in Mount Prospect and Chicago, said doormen will stamp the right or left hand according to the drinker's age. This, he said, will tell the waitress at a glance who may drink what.

He, too, admits there will remain, "a

One fire district for village

Fire protection study panel to seek a 'unit' referendum

by JOE FRANZ

A special committee appointed to study fire protection in Buffalo Grove plans to ask for a referendum that, if passed, would put the entire village under the jurisdiction of one fire department. The Herald has learned.

At present, residents north of Checker Road are served by the Long Grove Rural Fire Protection District, while the rest of the village is served by the Wheeling Township Rural Fire Protection District.

A source close to the committee told The Herald Friday that it will probably recommend a referendum to disannex the northern portion of the village from the Long Grove District into the Wheeling District, thus putting the village under one department.

THE LONG GROVE District has said it will oppose such a referendum. If it is to prevent disannexation Long Grove must prove it can provide better fire protection to the area than Wheeling. It must also prove the loss of tax money caused by taking the area away from Long Grove would seriously hamper the fire district financially.

It is not known if the Long Grove District could prove either one. At present, Long Grove is taxing property owners at a rate of 19 cents per $100 assessed valuation, far below the 30-cent maximum allowed. If losing a portion of its area causes financial problems, Long Grove could always increase the rate. Since this is the case, it might be difficult to prove that disannexing a portion of its area would create a financial hardship.

Concerning the quality of fire protection, some residents have said the Long Grove department is inferior to Wheeling. If that is true Long Grove could not stop the disannexation on that count either.

THE ONLY other way the dis-annexation could be stopped is if the area in question was not contiguous with the Wheeling District. This, however, is not the case.

In order for the referendum to pass, a majority of those voting in the area affected would have to favor disannexation. A similar referendum was passed in 1970 when 40 homes in Lake County disannexed from the Wheeling District into the Long Grove District.

The special committee was appointed several months ago after an independent consulting firm recommended formation of a municipal fire department. The fire study, prepared by the National Loss Control Service Corp. (NLCS) of Long Grove, suggested the village begin forming the municipal department immediately and have it operational in two years.

ALTHOUGH THE municipal department would bring the village under one fire department, the committee has decided it is not financially feasible at this time, the source said. The disannexation of one area into another, while not forming a municipal department, would at least put the village in one fire protection district, the source said.

Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said Friday it will probably be at least two years until the village will have the revenues to form a municipal department. He said the amount of development, especially commercial, will decide whether a municipal department is feasible.

Mother, daughter hurt in accident

An Arlington Heights woman and her daughter were injured Friday when their car struck a street barricade on Dundee Road in Buffalo Grove.

Patsy Jacobs, 35, of 1248 Chicago Ave., Arlington Heights, was admitted to Northwest Community Hospital with a broken ankle, wrist and facial lacerations. Her daughter, Susan Schnackel, 15, was treated and released.

Buffalo Grove police have charged Paul Jacobs, 44, the driver, with driving in the wrong lane and driving while intoxicated. He will appear Oct. 23 in the Arlington Heights branch of Cook County Circuit Court. The accident occurred near Cambridge Drive.

Another problem with forming a municipal department at this time concerns the tax rate. By law, under a municipal department, the village would only be able to tax residents at a rate of 15 cents per $100 assessed valuation, while the Wheeling District is allowed to tax at a rate of 30 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

IF THE VILLAGE needed additional money for a municipal department it would have to come from the village's general fund, thus possibly taking money away from other areas.

One official recently said, "We don't just want to have a municipal department for the sake of having one. We also want to give residents as good or better protection than they are now getting."

The Wheeling District has told the committee it is willing to protect the additional area until the village decides it can afford a municipal department.

WHEN THE village decides it wants to form a municipal department, the district said it will turn over to the village all equipment now being used to protect the area. The only cost to the village would be outstanding debts owed for vehicles, fire stations or firefighting equipment.

The Long Grove District has said it would not oppose disannexation to form a municipal department, but does not want to lose part of its area to another district. Officials there said recently the district probably would not give up fire engines and equipment if a municipal department was formed.

The equipment used to protect a given area is paid for with tax money from that area. Thus, giving the equipment to the area when it leaves the district is nothing more than giving the residents what they have already purchased.

The committee will review the matter further and will probably make a recommendation to the village board in about three weeks, the source said.

ON THE MOVE. Wheeling's Ken Smith drives for short yardage against Schaumburg Saturday afternoon, one of the few times the Wildcats were able to move on the ground. Schaumburg choked off the Wheeling rushing attack, did yield two scores in the air, but posted a 21-14 victory.

New name for Checker Dr. on agenda tonight

The Buffalo Grove Village Board tonight will consider changing the name of Checker Drive to Willow Grove Drive.

Village officials have suggested changing the name of either Checker Drive or Checker Road because of confusion that results from the similar names.

Village Mgr. Daniel Larson and Police Chief Harry J. Walsh suggested a change to eliminate the possibility of emergency vehicles responding to the wrong home. They have proposed Checker Road be changed to Willow Stream Road.

The village board, however, has said it would rather change the name of Checker Drive because it has not been in the village as long as Checker Road. They also said Checker Road goes through other communities, thus it might not be a good idea to give it another name in Buffalo Grove.

If Checker Road is changed, 20 homes will be affected, while a change in the name of Checker Drive will require about 100 homeowners to change their addresses.

ABOUT TWO YEARS ago the village board considered changing the name of Checker Drive, but decided against it because it affected too many persons.

In addition to the name change, the village board will also consider eliminating the island at the intersection of Checker Road and Checker Drive and making it a T-intersection.

Residents on Checker Drive have been invited to tonight's meeting.

In other business tonight, the village board will:

- Review and approve final engineering plans for construction of Strathmore Grove by Levitt and Sons Inc. The development, which is at the southeast corner of Arlington Heights and Aptakisic Roads will consist of 135 single-family homes.

- Review and approve final engineering plans for local real estate broker Stan Lieberman's office-specialty shop center. The center, to be called Buffalo Grove Plaza, will be on the north side of Dundee Road, west of Golfview Terrace.

- Approve the purchase of standby power generators for the village's sanitary sewer lift stations.

- Review a request for permission to seek bids for the village's tree replacement program.

The board meeting will begin at 8 p.m. in the village hall, 50 Raupp Blvd.

Rep. Philip Crane

Crane hears federal aid program complaints

by AL MESSELSCHMIDT

The increasing federal tax buck stops in Washington and never returns to the suburbs. Northwest suburban officials told U.S. Rep. Philip Crane, R-12th, Saturday.

The mayors, city managers and trustees assaulted, with a mixture of humor and statistics, disbursements of federal revenue sharing funds and called for changes in federal grant formulas.

Local suburbs received an average 4 per cent return of taxes paid to the federal government, Crane told the 21 officials meeting in Palatine. "It's costing $1.67 across the board to get $1 back from Washington," he said, based on 1970 reports.

"Last year, we got $100,000 in revenue sharing," Palatine Mayor Wendell Jones said. Palatine residents paid between $24 and $30 million in federal taxes in 1972.

If suburbs received a 10 per cent rebate of federal taxes, local property and other taxes could be eliminated, Jones said. "We're paying for more than our share. We're becoming the have nots."

THE OFFICIALS complained, during the three-hour session, that:

- Federal grant formulas block purchase of golf courses for open space — in Schaumburg, Buffalo Grove and Mount Prospect — but would finance a similar sale if the land was a cornfield.

- Small municipalities built large post offices, but larger communities — like Schaumburg and Elk Grove Village — are without local mail centers. Schaumburg, with a population of 32,000 sends mail through Roseville (population 6,000). Elk Grove local letters travel to Arlington Heights, then back to the village.

- Noise from O'Hare International Airport flights is getting louder and planes are lower and more frequent.

- Solid waste disposal, water supply, flood control are top priorities in this area," Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher said.

- "Could we as a group get money for landfill? Could we go for a block grant to run a 72-inch water line to Lake Michigan?" Atcher asked.

Jones, who last week proposed an area-wide water cooperative, supported the proposal. "I think we could come up with the legal agreement. The borders are already drawn."

- "If we're committed to a regional concept we can't have all kinds of sub-regions," Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Teichert said.

LARGE CAPITAL projects cannot be built with limited revenue sharing allotments, the officials said. "You can't build a fire station with $100,000," Jones said. "We need water towers, sidewalks and we can't build them unless we go back to property taxes or bonds."

- "I don't think taxes are too high," Teichert said. "They relate to the services you get. I have no problem in my community."

CRANE TOLD the officials that he "is not sure" how to attack duplication of services and waste in government that could cut federal taxes. "What I resent is the federal government moving into areas where it has demonstrated incompetence. It's a rule of life. I shake in horror at the squandering of taxpayers' money."

The two-term Congressman said President Richard Nixon should send a balanced budget to Congress.

"Is he listening to you at all?" Ray Geraci, Highland Park mayor, said.

"No, I don't know who he's listening to," Crane answered.

School district wrapup

Changes weighed to aid students

School Dist. 21 will take steps to improve pupil skills in areas where results of last year's annual achievement tests indicate work is needed.

The Iowa Test of Basic Skills, a package of tests in all academic areas, is administered to students in grades three through eight in the district each spring.

Dist. 21 serves Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and portions of Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect.

Administrators and teachers in the district are analyzing test scores to see what changes, if any, should be made in materials and techniques used in classroom instruction.

Marjorie Beu, curriculum director, said the results are studied to determine several things including:

- The appropriateness of material used in each grade.
- The effectiveness of teaching techniques on all levels.
- The varying abilities of students.
- The need for specific extra training for teachers in a particular area.

Miss Beu cited the current Dist. 21 math program as an example of how achievement test scores are used to improve the effectiveness of instruction.

About four years ago, math scores in the district were low, she said. Teachers adopted a new textbook shortly after the results of the tests were released and the scores have improved ever since.

Compared to last year, achievement test scores were lower for fifth and sixth grade students this year, especially in the area of language arts.

Miss Beu said part of the reason for the low language arts scores could be the emphasis placed in the district on creative writing. She said creativity will not be deemphasized, but teachers will increase work on grammar skills this year.

Junior high bids to be awarded

The school board plans to award the contract of the construction of $1.8 million in additions to the district's three junior high schools Oct. 11.

The additions will provide extra classrooms besides providing areas for a new vocational arts program.

The district hopes to begin construction as soon as possible after the contract is awarded and have the additions ready by the time school opens next fall.

Several alternative ways of funding the construction are being studied including the possibility of state aid and using $300,000 in funds from the district's 1970 referendum.

The referendum monies were intended for the purchase of the Irving and Stevenson school sites. Because those sites were donated, the district may still sell $300,000 in bonds authorized by the referendum.

Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill said if the referendum funds can be used for the junior high additions, the district will probably wait until March to sell the bonds.

Transportation request denied

The Dist. 21 School Board last week denied a request from a group of parents of students attending Stevenson School for bus transportation.

The parents, most of them residents of nearby apartment complexes, feel it is dangerous and too far for their children to walk to the school on Wolf Road in Wheeling.

The board rejected the busing request because the students involved live less than 1½ miles from the school.

Anticipating the school board decision, the parents have agreed to pay $60 each annually to finance their own bus.

LEARNING BY DOING is the philosophy of the Dist. 21 junior high school science program. The program, that includes physics for seventh graders and chemistry for eighth-grade students involves much laboratory work.

Two Cooper Junior High students, Robin Bartlett, left, and Amy Ferguson check the next step in performing their experiment.

Science is life

Students learning that methodologies apply anywhere

Begoggled eighth graders, clustered in small groups, hover over small plastic bags filled with seashells and HCL (hydrochloric acid) completely absorbed in an experiment to study mass and matter.

The students are working in science class at Cooper Junior High School, Dist. 21, Buffalo Grove. They say they like the class because they not only read about science in their textbooks, they learn to use it.

"It really helps you understand better to do experiments," said Chris March. "I like seeing what happens," added her friend, Kim Kreuger.

Learning by doing is the philosophy of the lab-oriented science program conducted in all Dist. 21 junior high schools.

Dist. 21 serves Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and portions of Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect.

BY CONDUCTING experiments, seventh and eighth graders are able to see how scientific methods and principles apply not only in the laboratory, but in their daily lives.

"They learn problem-solving techniques that can be applied to anything," said Julie Wester, science department chairman at Cooper. "I think it also gives them an appreciation of science. For example, if they didn't know how really difficult it is to send a man to the moon, they'd say, 'so what?' But learning some of what's involved they understand and appreciate it more."

The seventh-grade science program focuses on principles of physics while the eighth graders study chemistry.

Some of the topics explored by seventh graders include the metric system, forces, work, forms of energy, motion, electricity, heat and temperature.

The eighth-grade program is designed to give students the background they need to build an accurate particle model by the end of the year. They study mass, matter, characteristics of different particles, acids and bases, among other subjects.

UNTIL THE PRESENT science program was adopted by the district three years ago, biology was taught on the junior high level. Mrs. Wester said because physics and chemistry are needed to really understand biology, the decision was made to offer those subjects first. Biology is now taught in high school.

"These kids really study some pretty sophisticated science," Mrs. Wester said. "Some of it is stuff that most people didn't get until high school, but it's watered down so they can see things."

"We're hoping to make science more interesting for the kids," she continued. "They've had too many lectures from teachers on clouds and cloud formations and not enough of them have been taken out to look at the clouds."

The schedule at Cooper was changed this year to give students more time in science class, allowing them more freedom to work at their own pace. Students before had science for 40 minutes five days a week, barely enough time to conduct many experiments. The classes now meet 80 minutes twice a week and 40 minutes one other day. No time, however, has been taken away from other classes.

IN ADDITION to the heterogeneous classes, there are special classes for students who have problems absorbing science material and an honors class for pupils who are gifted in that area.

Class sizes average about 28 students and parents act as aides, giving out materials and helping to grade papers. This frees the four science teachers to offer a lot of individualized instruction.

All science students are required to design a science project, part of the method used to teach students to use scientific methods to think for themselves in solving problems.

"It's taking a problem and trying to solve it," Mrs. Wester said. "We're teaching them techniques that are supposed to help them learn to think for themselves through experience."

A lot of emphasis is placed on science at Cooper, the only junior high school in the district last year to conduct its own science fair in addition to the district-wide science competition.

Cooper took eight out of 10 first-place awards in the Dist. 21 fair last year, and four students went on to compete in the state science fair. Of those four, one rated outstanding, one took first and two students were given second-place awards.

Lost during Chile upheaval

No word on missing youth

Concern increased over the weekend for the fate of a Des Plaines man who now has been listed as missing in Chile.

U.S. State Department officials reported that Frank R. Teruggi Jr., 23, of 7811 S. Third Ave., Des Plaines was not being held by military officials in the South American nation which underwent a massive political upheaval earlier this month.

This latest information contradicted earlier reports that the young man, who was studying economics at the University of Chile, was being held with hundreds of other persons in a Santiago soccer stadium.

The government said Saturday that after exhaustive inquiries the young man's whereabouts are unknown at this time.

Teruggi's father, Frank told The Herald over the weekend that he still has not heard from his son, but had been told by the State Department he had been released on Sept. 21. The family last heard from his son on Sept. 17.

"Today I am very concerned about my son, they have told me that he is not being held, and he is not in any hospital, but I know that he would have called by now," the father said.

THE YOUNGER Teruggi's roommate, David Hathaway, was released from Chile on Wednesday, but he has apparently not been able to shed any light on the local man's condition. State department officials said they had conflicting reports as to whether or not Teruggi was with Hathaway on the day Hathaway was captured. The Herald was not able to reach Hathaway over the weekend for additional information. He is expected back in the U.S. today.

When the Des Plaines family last heard from their son, he told them he was in good condition and planned to leave Chile by way of Argentina. State department officials said they have also made inquiries in Argentina, but have received no information on Teruggi.

"This is all very confusing," the senior Teruggi said. "Everytime the telephone rings I hope it is Frank or someone with information about him."

"From his letter to us and his sister, Frank did not seem to be involved in anything political down there, so I do not know why they would want to hold him for any time," the father said.

TERRUGI HAD been in Chile for about two years. He had previously been an engineering student at the California Institute of Technology. He is a graduate of Notre Dame High School in Niles.

At the request of The Herald, representatives of U.S. Senators Charles Percy and Adlai Stevenson and U.S. Rep. Samuel Young, R-10, have interceded with the government in an effort to learn more about the young man.

Even the state department has given the family conflicting reports about their son. Teruggi said the two calls he received late last week indicated his son had been released on Sept. 21, but another state department spokesman told them it was highly unlikely the government would take someone into custody one day and release them on the next. Most persons taken prisoner during the military overthrow have been held at least a week, government officials said.

In the meantime, the family's concern's are mounting daily.

"I would like to know where my son is and what his condition might be," the father said, adding he and his wife Jeanie feel helpless because their son is so far away.

"I guess about all we can do is wait and hope that the government or the newspapers get some information about Frank. We sure would like to hear from him," he added.

PTA notes

The week of Oct. 9 will be Cooper Junior High School PTA membership drive week.

Officers of the parents' group have been elected and several activities are planned this month.

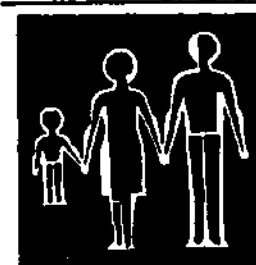

One of the main events will be an open house at the school scheduled for 8 p.m., Oct. 15. Parents will be able to tour the building and meet administrators and teachers.

Anyone interested in joining Cooper PTA should contact president Bob McKenzie at 537-5444.

Sen. Nimrod to attend PHIA meet

A fifth state official has said he will attend tonight's meeting of the Prospect Heights Improvement Association (PHIA) to discuss legislation affecting unincorporated areas.

State Sen. John J. Nimrod, R-4th, will join State Rep. John E. Porter, R-Evanston; State Rep. Aaron Jaffe, D-Skokie; State Rep. Robert S. Juckett, R-Park Ridge, and State Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights. The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. at St. Alphonsus School, 411 N. Wheeling Rd.

Gov. Daniel Walker was invited but is not expected to attend as his office only received the invitation on Friday. State Sen. Bradley M. Glass, R-1st, who will speak at a dinner tonight, said he will try to send an aide to the meeting.

PHIA has drawn up 11 proposals for legislation affecting unincorporated areas. The proposals include reducing or eliminating the assessed evaluation of airport and golf courses, establishing a state land use commission, setting up a regional transportation authority and giving townships limited zoning and land use approval. PHIA is also calling for an investigation into the rights of mobile home owners and a more equal distribution of the state sales tax rebates.

Barkeepers face new test: telling 'kids' from 'old folks'

by JOE SWICKARD
Tonight the new state liquor law will face its first test as thousands of 19- and 20-year-olds line up for their first legal lagers. And barkeepers throughout the state will face a severe test of their nerves, patience and possibly their licenses.

The new law, which took effect at 12:01 a.m. today, enables 19- and 20-year-olds to purchase and consume beer and wine, but not the stronger spiritus fermenti. There lies the rub.

The problem for alcohol dispensers is separating the beerhounds from the ones who drink the hard stuff. The clerk or bartender who errs in pouring the libations faces a stiff rap and possibly the loss of his liquor license.

TO COMBAT this problem several remedies have been put forward, ranging from marking the beer drinker, to special identification, to new legislation that protects the seller from taking a fall for serving some one with phony IDs.

Bob Burton, manager of Worldwide Liquors, Palatine, said the Illinois Liquor Association has provided cards designed to protect the shops from selling to mature looking 18-year-olds or denying service to youthful-looking 19- and 20-year-olds.

The cards, already used for 21-year-olds not marred by the ravages of time, are signed by the customer. On the back of the card, which remains file at the store, Selective Service, or driver's license numbers are listed. This, according to Burton, enables the clerk to run a quick check on the presented IDs against the information on file.

DOBBY DOBKINS, owner of the store, admits the cards are a stopgap measure at best. He feels the new law is "one we can't live with."

Dobkins and others in similar situations around the state are almost universal in disapproval of the new law. Most label it halfway measure that just breeds new problems. Many said they favored one age for drinking all alcoholic beverages.

This is the night when tavern operators probably will bear the brunt of the thirsty youths. Short of setting aside separate rooms or areas for the beer and wine crowd, few see any ready answer for the problem, except the bars in Arlington Heights where the law doesn't take effect until Oct. 6.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS passed an ordinance lowering the age, but by law, ordinances do not take effect until 10 days after they are published in a newspaper. The revised liquor law was not published until Sept. 26; hence the lag.

In hope of preventing underage acceptance, Bill Roscoe, owner of the Blarney Stone Inn, Mount Prospect, said he will ask for three identification cards to protect himself. For the guys, these would probably be a voters card, draft card and driver's license.

But what of the young woman who lacks the draft card? A spokesman from Lam's Restaurant, said he would probably settle "for two good ones. Hopefully one would have a picture."

Some spas say they will go to a ink-stamping system for the beer drinkers.

BUTCH MCGUIRE, who owns taverns in Mount Prospect and Chicago, said doormen will stamp the right or left hand according to the drinker's age. This, he said, will tell the waitress at a glance who may drink what.

He, too, admits there will remain, "a

Land-trust disclosure rules to be considered

by STEVE BROWN

Des Plaines zoning officials will be asked in the near future to enact new provisions that would require the disclosure of land-trust beneficiaries.

The provisions, which were proposed by Ald. Thomas Koplos (1st) last spring, will, if approved, make Des Plaines one of the few towns in Illinois that would require complete disclosure of all members of land trusts as a condition of requesting zoning changes.

City Corporation Counsel Robert DiLeonardi told The Herald he intends to formally submit the new regulations, which would be a text amendment to the city zoning ordinance, next week.

DiLeonardi said the provision is rather unique, adding that he did not know of any other towns which required disclosures.

Current state law allows persons owning land to put the property into trust. Once the trust is formed names of owners become secret and a representative, called a trustee, is appointed to manage the trust and act as agent in any official action involving the land.

Normally when the owner of property held in trust requests a rezoning or a variation, the trustee usually makes the necessary presentations to the zoning board.

SEVERAL OTHER area communities, Hoffman Estates and Arlington Heights, have adopted informal policies which require land trust beneficiary disclosures. Des Plaines will be the first to require disclosure and make the requirement a part of their formal regulations.

DiLeonardi said that in addition to the proposed provisions, he will also ask the zoning board to require the disclosure of persons involved in the trust for the 12 months previous to the rezoning request.

Some officials said this provision will prevent some members of the land trust from dropping out of the trust just before a rezoning request and then rejoining the trust once the rezoning gains approval.

When Koplos proposed the land trust disclosures last spring, he contended persons who own property adjacent to an area to be rezoned, deserve to know who owns the property.

"The people demand to know who their neighbors are," Koplos said.

'Small progress' in teacher talks

Contract talks in Des Plaines Elementary School Dist. 59 made "some small progress," according to Dennis Anderson, a member of the teacher unions bargaining team.

Negotiating teams from the Des Plaines Education Association (DPEA) and the Dist. 59 School Board met for the third time with a federal mediator Thursday night.

Anderson declined to give specifics on the Thursday night session saying it might jeopardize negotiations.

Stuart Kisten, head of the board negotiating team, said both sides discussed items which the board had termed non-negotiable.

Teachers want to negotiate certain non-salary items with the board, including teacher representation on committees studying working conditions. DPEA representatives term these items the "major obstacle" to contract settlement.

Kisten said salary was also discussed at the last mediation session. The board and teacher's union are approximately "three per cent apart" on salary proposals, according to DPEA representatives.

The negotiating teams of the board and DPEA are scheduled to meet at 4 p.m. Thursday.

STUDENT-OPERATED RADIO station WMTH-FM (88.5) begins a full broadcast schedule today at 11 a.m. Larry West, a Maine East student, gets music ready for his share of air time. All four Maine Township High Schools are involved in production. One highlight of the season will be interviews with columnist Irv Kupcinet, U.S. Sen. Charles Percy and sportscaster Brent Musburger on the "Current Comment" show.

Accident victim, 7, dies from injuries

A seven-year-old Des Plaines boy died Saturday afternoon at Lutheran General Hospital from injuries received when he was struck by a car near his home late last week.

Jeffrey Buchanan, 9241 Fairway, was being kept in intensive care listed in critical condition with head injuries after the accident Thursday, according to a hospital spokesman.

The youngster was walking home from school near Golf and Dee roads shortly before 3 p.m. and was trying to cross Golf when he was struck by the car driven by Miriam Gilman, 9123 Tripp, Skokie, according to Cook County Sheriff's police.

Police said the boy was knocked completely off the road by the impact.

A North Maine Fire Protection District ambulance arrived minutes later and transported the boy to the hospital.

The driver was ticketed for failing to yield right of way to a pedestrian, Sheriff's police said. No additional charges had been brought against the driver Sunday, police said.

A coroner's inquest will be held this morning at William H. Scott Funeral Home, 1104 Waukegan Rd., Glenview. Funeral services will be held at the home tomorrow at 1:30 p.m. According to a spokesman, no visitation will be held prior to the funeral service. Burial will be in Ridgewood Cemetery.

Jeffery was the son of Mr. Thomas Buchanan and Mrs. Judith Buchanan. Surviving are two brothers, Thomas L. and Richard E., and grandparents Mrs. Edith Oslund of Glenview, and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Buchanan.

Teachers' group president urges use of mediation

The president of the Maine Teachers Association has sent a letter to Dist. 207 Board Pres. Robert Claus urging the board to accept mediation in the teacher contract dispute.

Cook County Supt. Richard T. Martwick offered to intervene in the negotiations after the MTA requested his help in settling the dispute. Martwick said both sides must agree to mediation.

In his letter to Claus, MTA Pres. DeWane Barnes urged the board "to settle our differences through discussion and negotiation rather than in the court or through conflict and confrontation."

Both the board and MTA have filed lawsuits accusing each other of breaching the negotiating contract. The MTA says the school board acted illegally when it broke off contract talks on June 6.

Barnes said teachers are hopeful a settlement can be reached without "a prolonged legal battle which, in the long run, benefits no one."

Barnes also expressed concern "that continued friction between the school board and MTA can only adversely affect education in this township."

A hearing on the lawsuits has been scheduled for Oct. 15.

Art students leave crayons behind

by BOB GALLAS

A fourth grader welds a sculpture in art class.

Another student bolts a steel sculpture together.

A kindergartner hammers a nail into a piece of wood without lifting his finger.

Slowly, but surely, Dist. 59 art classes are leaving construction paper and crayons behind—far behind.

"Kids love to work with something solid, something they can get their hands into," said Forman Onderdank, instructor of the art program in the Elk Grove Township School District. For that reason, according to Onderdank, art classes are emphasizing work with clay, ceramics, wood, metals and even weaving.

"CONTEMPORARY ARTISTS are working with all sorts of materials these days," said Onderdank. "And if kids are ever going to be able to understand these artists, they have to have some concrete experience with these materials."

Onderdank's office proves that Dist. 59 children do get a chance to work with a variety of materials. Lining the walls are sculptures of animals, small ceramic figures and modern art wall plaques made with sand, metals and plaster all made by students from kindergarten to eighth grade.

Art is being taught in a more enlightened way in Dist. 59 these days, according to Onderdank. "We're bringing in practical things such as how to work with hammers and saws, metals and welding," he said.

Although many projects are too difficult and some tools are too dangerous for young children, even kindergartners are involved in new art projects such as driving nails into pieces of wood.

"The little ones will surprise you in what they can do," said Onderdank, "as long as you take the time to explain very carefully and don't let them get tired."

IN ADDITION to the animal and modern art sculptures made of clay and plaster, paper sculptures have captured the fancy of the school children. While some prefer to make paper animals, cars or houses, others have been more creative.

"One youngster decided to illustrate the clinche, 'paint the town,'" said Onderdank. "He made a paper airplane with a large can of paint attached to the side," he said.

Another child made a paper sculpture of Thomas Edison, according to Onderdank, "complete with a paper light bulb and a paper plug."

ONDERDANK, WHO'S been associated with art for about 40 years, likes to keep in touch with what's going on so he experiments a lot in addition to keeping up with his hobby of painting and sculpting.

"I wouldn't want to force the kids to do anything before I made sure it would work," said Onderdank who taught at the Art Institute of Chicago for 15 years and also taught at Dist. 63 in Elmhurst before coming to Dist. 59.

Onderdank says part of the push for more practical forms of art in the schools may be coming from the parents. "There's a tremendous arts and crafts movement among adults these days," said Onderdank. "They're tired of sitting in front of the boob tube and want to get involved in different forms of art rather than sit back and watch," he said. "There's more to art than paintings and sculptures," said Onderdank. "The housewife decorating her house or choosing a new rug is being just as artistic as a painter," he said.

ONDERDANK'S GOALS for the art program in Dist. 59 are somewhat different than the average educator's in that he encourages nonconformity.

"You can't agree with the words 'it can't be done,'" said Onderdank. "That's what artists said many years ago about welding pieces of metal together to make a sculpture or making a sculpture as big as a building, such as the Picasso in Chicago," he said.

The Dist. 59 art program may not produce the next Michelangelo or Picasso, but it will prepare elementary school children better for more advanced art training in junior high, according to Onderdank.

At any rate, Dist. 59 children will be able to relate to today's modern art, and perhaps be a little better prepared to hammer a nail or weld metal.

Transit district officials change plans on funding

Officials of the North Suburban Mass Transit District have decided to revise plans for obtaining federal funds to purchase buses for Des Plaines and Glenview.

The district had intended to purchase more than $3 million in buses for United Motor Coach in Des Plaines, the Glenview Bus Co. and the Evanston Bus Co.

Those plans were complicated last month when the Chicago Transit Authority took over bus service in Evanston after a strike by drivers there stopped the buses.

Federal approval of the district's plan had been expected in the near future for the bus purchase but the move by the CTA stopped it.

Trustee Joseph DiJohn of Skokie said that the district decided to reapply for the federal grants.

HE SAID THE district planned to attempt to amend their initial request for funds, but their consultants advised against this.

The district hopes to submit a new request for about $2 million to the federal government by the middle of October, he said. District officials said making the new application would eliminate the possibility of rejection by the government.

"We would like to proceed as fast as possible, but we do not want to have the application rejected either," DiJohn explained.

DiJohn said he could not estimate how long the total federal review process would take, but said the entire procedures would take a minimum 60 days.

Bicentennial committee meets

"America is celebrating its birthday and Des Plaines is going to throw a party," according to members of the Bicentennial Commission at its first formal meeting last week.

The commission members elected officers and approved the appointment of chairmen for the various committees. With Dave Wolf as chairman, Dan Morava was named co-chairman; Susan D'Hondt, secretary and Jared Birchfield, treasurer. The subcommittees chairmen chosen were Art Weiss, finance; Ellen Erbach, communications; Jim Williams, heritage; Ted Sherwood, festival, and Dan Nesenbrink, horizon.

"My first thought in speaking of goals for the commission is community involvement, getting the people of Des Plaines to participate, getting people to think about our country's past and our country's future," Wolf said.

The commission meets on the fourth Tuesday of the month and are open to the public. The next meeting will be Oct. 23 at City Hall.

FRANKLIN TO RINKA. Quarterback Mark Franklin hands off to fullback Bob Rinka during Maine East's 26-0 Homecoming victory last Saturday against Maine North. That's guard Marty Pistone out front blocking.

Rinka scored one touchdown and Franklin tossed a 31-yard touchdown pass to Scott Magnuson, both coming in the second quarter. See sports for details.

Art Guild winners named

Tom Lynch, 834 Woodlawn, was the top local prize winner at Des Plaines Art Guild's outdoor art fair held last Sunday. The young watercolorist received a $100 purchase award from Allen's Store for Men for his painting titled "Winter in Vermont," and third prize and ribbon in his category from the guild.

Other Des Plaines winners included Tom Prochaska, 535 Webford Lane, second prize in the mixed media category for his prints, and Helen Henry, 575 Webford Lane, honorable mention in the same classification for her ceramics.

In two drawings held at the close of the fair, Barbara Swain, 1425 Ashland, won $100 in art supplies donated by Sheldon's of Chicago, and Steven Tompkins, 1101 Perda, received the Irving Shapiro demonstration, watercolor offered by the Guild.

Other purchase award winners were Muriel Johnson of Northbrook, $100 from Allen's Store for Men for a landscape in watercolor; Stan Hansen, a Chicago commercial artist and watercolorist, $200 from Spiegel's Department Store for a landscape.

Des Plaines National Bank gave to Purchase Awards — $100 for an oil painting by Edna V. Anderson of Algonquin, and $140 for two ink drawings of polo players by Gilbert T. Lehman of Arlington Heights.

DES PLAINES ART GUILD's cash and ribbon awards were presented by Win Jones, assistant professor of art at Northern Illinois University in DeKalb, judge for the fair. His selections in the oils and acrylics category included Christi Hansen of Mount Prospect, first; Villa Hamm of Winfield, second; Milvi Wheeler of Riverwoods (Dearfield), third; and Betsy Harrigan of Redondo Beach, Calif., honorable mention.

In watercolors, his own specialty, Jones selected Robert Lossman of Mundelein, first; Stan Hansen of Chicago, second; Tom Lynch of Des Plaines, third; Floyd Town of Northbrook and Gene Vitale of Oak Park, honorable mentions.

Mixed media winners included Walter M. Perl of Glenview, first with his photography display; Tom Prochaska of Des Plaines, second with his prints; Donita Decker of Chicago, third for her feathercraft; C. L. Sizemore, Highland; Ind. (collages), and Helen Henry, Des Plaines (ceramics), honorable mentions.

DES PLAINES

Paris film to show

"Children of Paradise," a film directed by Marcel Calne about 19th century Paris, will be screened by the Oakton Community College Film Society and Maine-Oakton-Niles adult and continuing Education Program, Oct. 5, at 8 p.m., in room 108-9, building 1, on the interim campus.

The theme of the fall series of films offered by the film society is "Perspectives on Survival," a group of movies reflecting different views of human life and its quality.

Admission is free for all Oakton and Adult Education students and for Maine and Niles Township High School students. For all others, a 50-cent donation is requested. Season tickets also are available for a $5 donation.

Debate team activities

Filling the varsity and junior varsity positions are Jeff Adler, Des Plaines; Robert Arvey, Niles; Arlyne Cohen, Morton Grove; Davida Charney, Morton Grove; Jon Cwaygel, Morton Grove; Sue Fry, Morton Grove; Jay Gershen, Morton Grove; Jeff Ginsburg, Morton Grove; Ira Helfgot, Des Plaines; Glen Lasken, Niles; Michael Lennard, Des Plaines; and Julie Wells, Niles.

Student officer elections

Maine East High School students recently elected officers to several student organizations.

The Distributive Education classes' new officers are: Pat Shields of Des Plaines, president; Mary Ford, Morton Grove, vice president; Terri Sebastian, Park Ridge, secretary; Kim Kourakis, Des Plaines as area representative, and Bob Abatecola, Niles, publicity.

M-Club officers are Pres. Randy Jaacks, Niles; Vice President, Mike Smith, Des Plaines; and Secretary Brian Monte, Park Ridge.

The class of 1977 elected its representatives to the student council.

Health agency opens

Medical Health Service, an agency providing registered nurses, licensed practical nurses, nurses aides and live-in companions, recently opened at 678 Lee St., Des Plaines.

Agency personnel are available for private duty in the home, or staff relief in hospitals, doctors offices and clinics.

Maryville site decision due tomorrow

The controversy over where to locate the new Maryville School is expected to end tomorrow night with a final decision on the site by the Dist. 28 School Board.

The board meeting is scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. at River Trails Junior High School, 1000 Wolf Rd.

Idyl Nipper of the citizens' committee formed to study alternative sites for the school, said Friday the committee will make its recommendation to the school board at the meeting.

"Tuesday, we'll have all the information we've requested and hopefully, we can take a look at it and finalize where the site will be located," said Lloyd Demel, school board president.

Demel said plans for the building are being drawn up and bids will be opened for construction as soon as they are finished. He said the September, 1974, target completion date is still realistic.

Miss Nipper said the citizens' committee has met with a variety of experts in studying sites for the Maryville School.

The committee was formed by the school board several weeks ago after parents expressed dissatisfaction with the board's decision to locate the school on the River Trails Junior High School site.

Demel has indicated the school board may reverse its decision after considering the citizens' committee recommendation.

Armed robber hits cleaners

A Des Plaines dry cleaning establishment was robbed of $72 in cash by a youthful gunman who also ordered a store clerk into a washroom at gunpoint before fleeing.

According to reports, the bandit entered the Cleaning Castle, 1455 Rand Rd., just as the store was closing Wednesday about 8 p.m. and pulled a pistol.

The gunman reportedly told the clerk he did not want to use the gun but just wanted money. He then forced the woman into a washroom and told her to stay there while he made his escape, said police.

The man reportedly fled eastbound from the store on foot.

The youth was described to police as about 19 to 20 years old, six feet tall, weighing about 140 to 150 pounds with shoulder-length brown hair. He also wore a long-sleeve blue shirt with a gray fatigue-type hat.

Detectives were investigating the hold-up Friday.

English: 2nd tongue

English as a second language is being taught to students at Oakton Community College this fall as a section of the developmental communications course taught by Diane Keeley.

Instruction concentrates on speaking but also stresses reading, writing, spelling, vocabulary development, and grammar and structure of the English language. The course is open to persons of all ages speaking any native language.

NO-PARKING SIGNS will be temporarily seen on a number of streets in Des Plaines. Last week the city started a $150,000 street-repair and repaving program throughout the town.

Scouting news

The fall season for Troop 6 opened with a parent's night on Sept. 24 at Trinity Lutheran Church.

Four new families and boys, were introduced into the troop by Scoutmaster Ernest Kossick and received their scout pins, including Ronald Feldman, John Nebel, Robert Reda and Steven Anderson.

The following scouts received tenderfoot badges and pins: John Woloshyn, David Nolly and Dan Herity.

Mr. Herity presented John Woloshyn with his second class badge and pin.

Star awards were presented to Larry McCarthy, George Mascenic and Tom Mahon.

Tom Nissen received his life award.

The following boys were given bronze medals for having completed 10 nights under canvas: Kenneth Balul, Douglas Held, Dan Herity, David Marx, David Nolly, Jerry Owens, John Woloshyn and Paul Bishop.

Silver medals were awarded for 20 nights and rank of star: Tom Mahon, Larry McCarthy, David Payne, Tom Schwingbeck and George Mascenic.

GOLD MEDALS were awarded for 60 nights, camping merit badge and the rank of Life Scout: Mark Lindahl, James Woloshyn and James Stenstrom.

The 19 scouts that attended summer scout camp, completed 35 merit badges as follows: Paul Bishop, horsemanship; James Enders, lifesaving, art; Larry Enders, environmental science, camping; Douglas Held, horsemanship; Dan Herity, swimming, horsemanship; James Kossick, archery, rifle and shotgun, swimming, horsemanship; Tom Mahon, safety, metal working, cooking, camping; David Marx, first aid, swimming, horsemanship; George Mascenic, cooking, swimming; Larry McCarthy, sports, personal fitness, lifesaving, archery; Tom Nissen, fishing, nature, cooking, swimming, camping, citizenship in the world, citizenship in the community, citizenship in the nation, drafting, personal fitness; David Nolly, firemanship, horsemanship; Jerry Owens, swimming, camping, horsemanship; David Payne, personal fitness, first aid, canoeing, lifesaving; James Rosner, swimming; Tom Schwingbeck, environmental science, reading, music, camping; James Stenstrom, camping, cooking, lifesaving, rifle and shotgun, archery, horsemanship; James Woloshyn, rifle and shotgun, horsemanship, archery; John Woloshyn, horsemanship; Mark Lindahl, American business, personal fitness, lifesaving.

Mark Lindahl was presented with the PRO Dea et Patria award in conjunction with his time and efforts at Trinity Lutheran Church.

Tom Schwingbeck and Larry Enders were also chosen for the Order of the Arrow awards.

EIU graduates pair

Two Des Plaines residents recently received degrees from Eastern Illinois University. A bachelor of science in education degree was awarded to Kenneth H. Werner. Kenneth M. Johnson received a bachelor of arts degree.

Street repaving program starts despite weather

Despite bad weather during the week, the Des Plaines 1973 street repaving program got underway last week. The program will spread improvements throughout much of the city.

The program, which carries a price tag of more than $150,000, calls for the repaving of 67 streets. Curb and gutters along a number of streets also will be improved.

Funds for the repaving will come from the city's share of the motor fuel tax revenue, which is money that Des Plaines receives from the state.

The Arrow Construction Co. of Mount Prospect is performing most of the work in the project.

City officials had hoped to finish the project by Oct. 1, but bad weather has caused some delays.

About one layer of asphalt will be added to resurface streets.

"We'll try to give the streets rideability as well as structural strength," said Ellis Perl, assistant city engineer. In addition to repaving work, a number of streets, mostly in the 1st Ward, were sealcoated.

Barkeeps face new test: telling 'kids' from 'old folks'

by JOE SWICKARD
Tonight the new state liquor law will face its first test as thousands of 19- and 20-year-olds line up for their first legal lagers. And barkeeps throughout the state will face a severe test of their nerves, patience and possibly their licenses.

The new law, which took effect at 12:01 a.m. today, enables 19- and 20-year-olds to purchase and consume beer and wine, but not the stronger spirits ferment. There lies the rub.

The problem for alcohol dispensers is separating the beerhounds from the ones who drink the hard stuff. The clerk or bartender who errs in pouring the libations faces a stiff rap and possibly the loss of his liquor license.

TO COMBAT this problem several remedies have been put forward, ranging from marking the beer drinker, to special identification, to new legislation that protects the seller from taking a fall for serving some one with phony IDs.

Bob Burton, manager of Worldwide Liquors, Palatine, said the Illinois Liquor Association has provided cards designed to protect the shops from selling to mature looking 18-year-olds or denying service to youthful-looking 19- and 20-year-olds.

The cards, already used for 21-year-olds not marred by the ravages of time, are signed by the customer. On the back of the card, which remains file at the store, Selective Service, or driver's licenses numbers are listed. This, according to Burton, enables the clerk to run a quick check on the presented IDs against the information on file.

DOBBY DOBKINS, owner of the store, admits the cards are a stopgap measure at best. He feels the new law is "one we can't live with."

Dobkins and others in similar situations around the state are almost universal in disapproval of the new law. Most label it halfway measure that just breeds new problems. Many said they favored one age for drinking all alcoholic beverages.

This is the night when tavern operators probably will bear the brunt of the thirsty youths. Short of setting aside separate rooms or areas for the beer and wine crowd, few see any ready answer for the problem, except the bars in Arlington Heights where the law doesn't take effect until Oct. 6.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS passed an ordinance lowering the age, but by law, ordinances do not take effect until 10 days after they are published in a newspaper. The revised liquor law was not published until Sept. 26; hence the lag twist cup and the lip.

In hope of preventing underage acceptance, Bill Roscoe, owner of the Blarney Stone Inn, Mount Prospect, said he will ask for three identification cards to protect himself. For the guys, these would probably be a voters card, draft card and driver's license.

But what of the young woman who lacks the draft card? A spokesman from Lum's Restaurant, said he would probably settle "for two good ones. Hopefully one would have a picture."

Some spas say they will go to an ink-stamping system for the beer drinkers.

BUTCH McGUIRE, who owns taverns in Mount Prospect and Chicago, said doormen will stamp the right or left hand according to the drinker's age. This, he said, will tell the waitress at a glance who may drink what.

He, too, admits there will remain, "a

Ordinance needn't be changed: Callahan

Lower age limit on housing won't be required: builder

by FRED GACA
A change in an ordinance to lower the age limit for senior citizen housing will not be required, according to a developer proposing to build a senior citizen project.

Eugene Callahan, vice president of M. Myers and Associates, said the Illinois Housing Development Authority (IHDA) dropped its requirement that such housing be available to persons 55 or older.

The village ordinance now states that senior citizen housing is limited to those families where the head of the household is 60 years old or older.

Callahan had requested the lowering of the age limit at a public hearing on the ordinance last month. The village plan commission, which conducted the hearing, was reluctant to recommend lowering the age limit.

The commissioners expressed concern that lowering the age would result in a development for senior citizens that was occupied by younger people.

Callahan went before the IHDA board to explain the commission's objection and the board agreed to honor the village standard.

COMMISSION chairman William Shannon said the ordinance may still be modified to make it more rigidly defined. As stated now, any residential home in the village with the head of the household 60 years old or older, could be defined as a senior citizen housing and would be subject to special regulations.

The new ordinance, if approved, would identify senior citizen housing as a special project designed and built for senior citizens.

IHDA was involved with the village ordinance because the agency is planning to make a low-cost construction loan to M. Myers for the construction of a 300-unit apartment complex for senior citizens near the Grove Shopping Center.

The village plan commission and the board of trustees must still grant approval for the construction of the project. Shannon said the commission is expected to make its recommendation at its meeting Thursday.

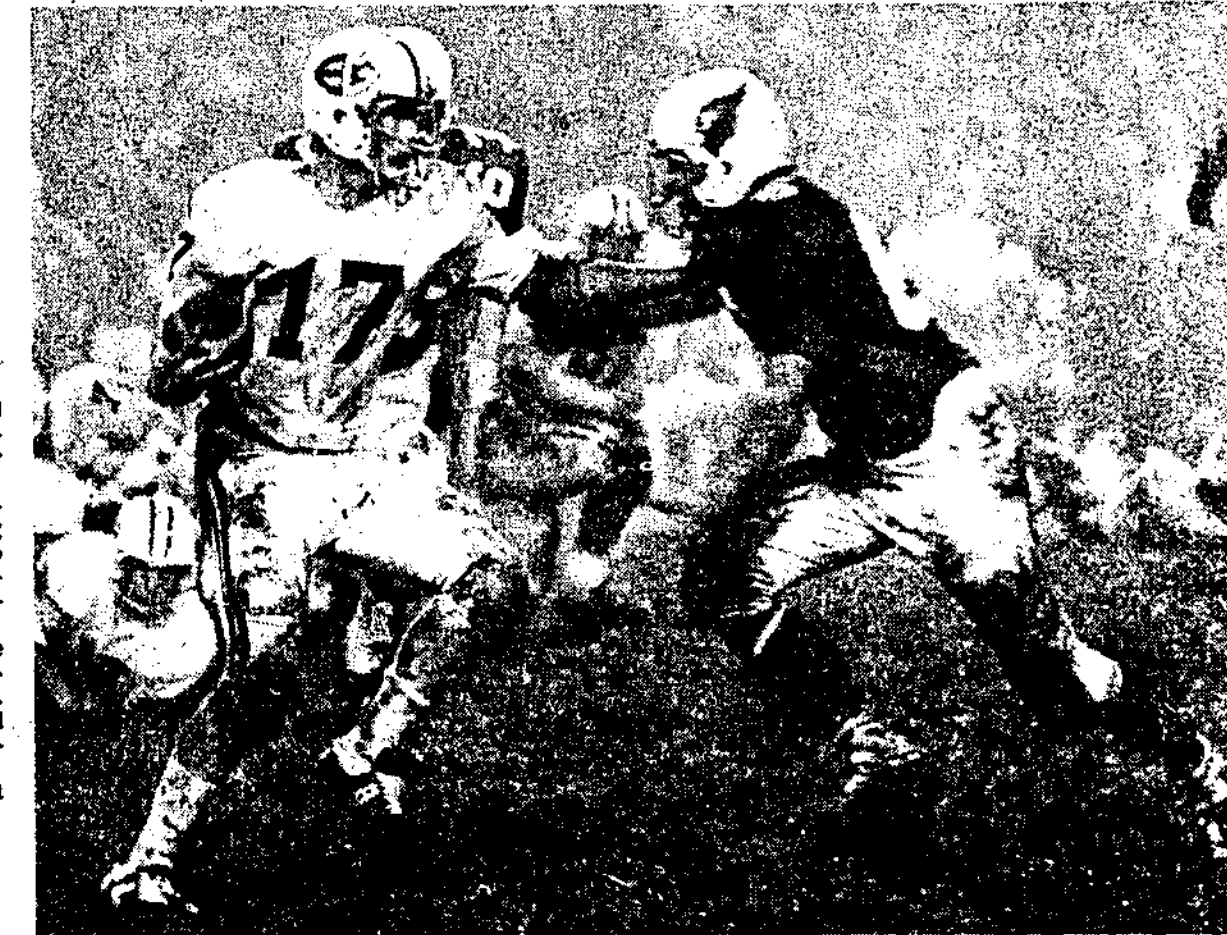

The recommendation then will be sent to the trustees for final action.

Two admit starting $1,500 fire in garage

Two boys, playing with a cigaret lighter, admitted to Elk Grove Village firemen they caused a $1,500 fire in a garage at 516 Banbury Ave. last week.

According to the village fire department, the boys dropped the lighter, igniting a two-gallon can of gasoline stored in the garage. When firemen arrived, the boys had extinguished the fire with a garden hose.

RED & WHITE STOP SIGN. Elk Grove running sensation Don Weadley (17) runs into an Arlington defender during action Friday at the Cardinals' foggy field. Weadley, who carried for 207 yards the week before, was held to just 18 as Arlington won 7-0. The loss ended a 17-game winning streak for Elk Grove. See sports for complete details.

Residents protest Centex rezoning plea

by FRED GACA
A petition with more than 160 signatures was presented to the village plan commission to protest the request of Robert Fleming to rezone the site of the Centex Corp. sales office at Arlington Heights Road and Oakwood Drive.

Nearby residents contend granting Fleming the zoning change to use the office for his real estate business would create a traffic hazard and violates an agreement Centex made with the village to remove the office.

The petition was presented at Thursday's plan commission meeting. The commission must make a recommendation on the change to the village board which takes final action on the request.

Commission Chairman William Shannon said after the hearing, he did not expect a recommendation for at least two weeks.

IN 1957, Centex requested permission to construct temporary buildings and storage yards that would be used for the development of the village. The request was granted in early 1957.

The office building Fleming is seeking is the last of the structures.

Several of the residents at the hearing said they were told by Centex officials when they bought their homes that the building would eventually be removed and the property developed for homes.

Fleming said he first asked about purchasing the site and building in late 1971. He said in April, 1972, he secured an option to buy the property from Centex at a price he said was a fair one at that time.

Fall-bust!

Jaycees lose money as rains wash out Fallfest

by FRED GACA
The weekend rains just about washed away the Elk Grove Village Jaycees' second annual Fallfest.

Saturday night the large circus tent erected in Lions Park had to be the most depressing place in the village. Most of the time there were more Jaycees and Jayceettes waiting behind the counter to serve than there were people in front of the counter wanting service.

At one time during the night a group of about eight to 10 people walked into the tent and were awarded an ovation. They were the only residents there who were not Jaycees.

With sad faces Jaycees and Jayceettes spent most of their time staring at each other during the long waits between customers.

The same thought was on each of their minds — Fallfest, at least the first day, was a disaster. If the weather didn't improve Sunday, the club would be using a lot of red ink in making the financial report of the two-day festival.

WHEN SUNDAY dawned as a rerun of Saturday, spirits sank even lower.

Had they tried the Jaycees could not have planned worse weather for the Fallfest. Several consecutive days of rain preceded the event. Saturday was cold and rainy. During the day, on-again off-again showers kept people away.

At night the rain subsided but the air remained cold and misty.

The Jaycees had advertised the festival would go on no matter what the weather was because all events, except carnival rides, would be under a tent.

The tent was warm and dry, but to get to it a person had to walk through mud puddles and wet grass.

THE THOUGHT worrying most Jaycees was not that the Fallfest as a money loser but what would happen to other club projects in the coming months.

Like most civic clubs, the Jaycees rely on a few money-making projects during the year to finance other programs. When one of the expected money-makers, like Fallfest, becomes a money-loser, a chain reaction takes place.

Projects which have been planned, counting on Fallfest financing, will have to be limited or dropped.

Among the events coming up for the Jaycees are the Christmas shopping party for needy children and a host of activities planned for Jaycee week in January.

The dollar figures were staggering for a relatively small organization like the Jaycees. Break-even point for the Fallfest is $4,300. By closing time Saturday, less than $1,000 had been collected. The club would need a tremendous turnout Sunday just to keep from losing money.

Saturday night, however, chances for success appeared slim. The bright lights on the carnival rides beckoned people to come, but there was no one to respond to the call.

THERE WAS PLENTY of food but few customers this weekend at the Elk Grove Village Jaycees' Fallfest. The two-day carnival, set up at Lions Park, was plagued by rain and cold weather — turning the money-maker into a probable money-loser.

Park district wrapup

Pool rates may rise next year

by BOB GALLAS

Some rates at Elk Grove Village swimming pools may go up again next summer if indoor pool revenue doesn't increase this winter. Family rates were hiked $1 to $2 this year for the first time.

Pool revenue is down about $5,000 so far this year, according to a report made to the Elk Grove Park District board Thursday night. Board members instructed the author of the report, consultant David vonSchaumburg, to "keep a close eye on the situation" and report back to the board at a later date.

vonSchaumburg said actual pool revenue was up about $500, over last year but operating costs are up $6500 causing the deficit. "Right now the situation doesn't look good," said vonSchaumburg. "Attendance will really have to go up by April 30, when the accounting period ends," he said.

The pool is $5000 behind last year's revenue, but further than that from the break even point. Last year, according to vonSchaumburg, the pool lost about $3000.

BOARD MEMBER Ed Hauser proposed measures should be taken to "hype winter pool attendance." The indoor pool at the Disney Pool Complex will be open all winter. The outdoor Disney pool has been stocked with trout and will be open for fishing during the first two weeks of October.

The board hopes to boost attendance at the outdoor pool's fishing program by challenging the Elk Grove Village Board to a "fishing contest." A date for the contest won't be set until after village board officials have been contacted.

Board members emphasized a pool rate increase would only be considered as a last resort. "All we want to do is reach the break even point in pool revenue," said Lew Smith, park president.

Present pool rates are $1.50 for single adult admissions and 75 cents for children. Winter pool season passes are $14 for a single pass, $27 for a family pass.

Family passes for pools in the summer are $24 if purchased before June 9, $29 if purchased later. Single summer passes are $13 or $15, depending on when purchased.

Year-round pool passes are $40 or $45 depending on whether purchased before or after June 9.

Construction bid taken

The Elk Grove Park Board accepted a bid Thursday night for construction of an all-purpose building for Olmstead Park, Cypress and Kennedy.

The contract was awarded to the low bidder, Cedar Forest Products of Polo, Ill. The low bid was $11,980.

The building will be similar in construction to the Community Center in Lions Park, according to John Schaefer, superintendent of parks for the Elk Grove Park District. The structure won't be as large as the Community Center, however.

The new building will replace a smaller one already at Olmstead Park. It's hoped construction will be completed in time for the building to be used as a warming house once the skating season begins.

Hill safety discussed

Park board commissioners also discussed what to do with the hill at Roosevelt Park.

Children, using the hill for winter sledding, have been coasting into Somerset Lane, which runs alongside the park, causing a serious safety problem.

Jack Claes, director of parks and recreation for the park district requested a fence be built alongside Somerset, but park board members objected, saying children would then be running into the fence and there would still be a safety problem.

A suggestion to close the hill to sledding by changing the slope of the hill, putting up snow fencing or shrubbery was discussed, but no action was taken.

The park board agreed Thursday to contribute $1000 to Elk Grove Boys Football.

The park district entered into an agreement with Boys Football recently which will eventually lead to the park district taking over the program in three years.

The $1000 was agreed upon to be the park district's financial share of the operation for this year.

Schools receive $180,000 for preschool program

by JERRY THOMAS

A $180,000 federal grant has been assured to finance a three-year program for preschool children with learning difficulties in Schaumburg Township Elementary School Dist. 54.

Jennie Swanson, early education director for Dist. 54, leaves for Washington, D. C., this week to complete final arrangements for the $60,000-a-year grants to begin immediately for nearly 200 youngsters.

Last year, when the state mandated services for 3-and-4-year-old children with unique educational needs, it did not provide funding.

The program held this summer was funded by the district. Dist. 54 actively provided special help to preschoolers for several years before the state directed all districts to do so.

It was one of the few school districts in the state to not only provide volunteer services, but enlist the aid of parents.

FOR THE PAST six years teachers and speech and language therapists have worked with preschool children during lunch breaks, before school and after school on a volunteer basis.

Special services persons were actively involved in planning and writing the early education proposal to implement the state directive. This too was done on a voluntary basis.

Last summer 185 children took part in the early education program and summer special session for preschoolers and children up to 10 years old.

THE EARLY EDUCATION program is designed for the preschooler who has problems in the areas of perception, language socialization, or dexterity.

The department has prepared a special booklet with a behavioral checklist for parents who suspect their child has a unique need.

This is available in the district office, 804 W. Bode Rd., Schaumburg.

Parents who want further information are encouraged to call the special services department at 885-4200.

Schaumburg GOP divided 3 ways

Schaumburg Township Republican Committeeman Donald L. Totten has announced appointments of deputy committeemen to lead three regional divisions of the party, each designated by the colors of the American flag.

The Red region deputy is Glen Hoffman of Hoffman Estates; White deputy is Scott MacEachron of Schaumburg, and Blue deputy is Bill Hogan of Hanover Park. Each regional chairman will be assisted by three area chairmen. The Red region includes 17 precincts, while each of the other two includes 18.

Area chairmen in the Red region are

Bob Lyons, Ed Hennessey and Richard Regan, all of Hoffman Estates. In the White region, they are Phil Klek, Karl Schroeder and Pete Wing, all of Schaumburg. Blue region area chairmen are Brian Carey of Elk Grove Village, Bill Hommowin of Hanover Park and a third person yet to be named.

The party realignment will strengthen lines of communication and establish areas of responsibility, Totten said. It is also intended to promote competition between the various regions and areas," he said.

Crane hears federal aid gripes

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

The increasing federal tax buck stops in Washington and never returns to the suburbs, Northwest suburban officials told U.S. Rep. Philip Crane, R-12th, Saturday.

The mayors, city managers and trustees assaulted, with a mixture of humor and statistics, disbursements of federal revenue sharing funds and called for changes in federal grant formulas.

Local suburbs received an average 4 per cent return of taxes paid to the federal government, Crane told the 21 officials meeting in Palatine. "It's costing $1.67 across the board to get $1 back from Washington," he said, based on 1970 reports.

"Last year, we got $100,000 in revenue sharing," Palatine Mayor Wendell Jones said. Palatine residents paid between $24 and $30 million in federal taxes in 1972.

If suburbs received a 10 per cent rebate of federal taxes, local property and other taxes could be eliminated, Jones said. "We're paying for more than our share. We're becoming the have nots."

THE OFFICIALS complained, during the three-hour session, that:

- Federal grant formulas block purchase of golf courses for open space — in Schaumburg, Buffalo Grove and Mount Prospect — but would finance a similar sale if the land was a cornfield.

- Small municipalities built large post offices, but larger communities — like Schaumburg and Elk Grove Village — are without local mail centers. Schaumburg, with a population of 32,000 sends mail through Roselle (population 6,000). Elk Grove local letters travel to Arlington Heights, then back to the village.

- Noise from O'Hare International Airport flights is getting louder and planes are lower and more frequent.

"Solid waste disposal, water supply, flood control are top priorities in this area," Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher said.

"Could we as a group get money for landfill? Could we go for a block grant to run a 72-inch water line to Lake Michigan?" Atcher asked.

Jones, who last week proposed an area-wide water cooperative, supported the proposal. "I think we could come up with the legal agreement. The borders are already drawn."

"If we're committed to a regional concept we can't have all kinds of sub-regions," Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Telchert said.

LARGE CAPITAL projects cannot be built with limited revenue sharing allotments, the officials said. "You can't build a fire station with $100,000," Jones said. "We need water towers, sidewalks and we can't build them unless we go back to property taxes or bonds."

"I don't think taxes are too high," Telchert said. "They relate to the services you get. I have no problem in my community."

CRANE TOLD the officials that he "is not sure" how to attack duplication of services and waste in government that could cut federal taxes. "What I resent is the federal government moving into areas where it has demonstrated incompetence. It's a rule of life. I shake in horror at the squandering of taxpayers' money."

The two-term Congressman said President Richard Nixon should send a balanced budget to Congress.

"Is he listening to you at all?" Ray Geraci, Highland Park mayor, said.

"No, I don't know who he's listening to," Crane answered.

ELK GROVE

Major films at library

Major film releases of recent years will be the drawing card for movie buffs this fall at the Elk Grove Village Public Library.

The free movies were one of last year's most popular library services, and the library has already booked 13 films for the fall season.

The films are scheduled for Sunday afternoons through Dec. 16, at 2 p.m. This year tickets will be necessary for the movies. The tickets will be free, and can be picked up at the library adult circulation desk two weeks prior to the showing of each film.

The library has lists of the films and dates. Call 439-0447.

Preschool photos available

Preschoolers can have their pictures taken at Grant Wood school on the same day as the school-age children.

Pictures will be taken between 1:30 and 3 p.m., Oct. 5, at the school, 225 E. Elk Grove Blvd.

The fee for the pictures is $3.25, payable at the time of sitting.

Diabetics workshop at hosp.

Workshops for diabetics and family members will be held at Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village. The series of four meetings will be held Oct. 22-25, from 7 to 8:30 p.m. in the overflow cafeteria on the ground floor of the medical center's main building.

Staff members of the dietary and nursing departments will present the series. Included is information about medical aspects of diabetes, diabetes emergencies, the diabetic exchange system, food preparation and eating away from home. A review session with questions, answers and discussion will be held. The series was developed under the guidance of the head dietitian in cooperation with education personnel and a staff physician.

There is a charge of $7.50 which covers the cost of materials used during the course. All sessions are closely coordinated and a family member is urged to attend with the diabetic at no extra cost. Registration is limited to ten diabetics. Reservations are required, call 437-5500, ext. 462.

New appointment at Alexian

Mrs. Richard Lee, of Bollingbrook, has been appointed the assistant director of nursing for Inservice education at Alexian Brothers Medical Center.

Responsibilities include planning and coordinating of continuing education programs for the nursing staff and orientation of new nursing employees. She will also be responsible for the three-month new graduate nurse orientation program recently inaugurated at Alexian Brothers.

Mrs. Lee received her bachelor's degree from Madonna College, Livonia, Mich., and her master's degree from Governor's State University. She has been an instructor in the nursing programs at Indiana University and at Methodist Hospital, both in Gary, and at Lutheran General Hospital School of Nursing.

$400 in lumber taken from site

Lumber worth $400 was taken from a construction site near Salt Creek and Devon Avenue.

According to village police, sheets of lumber were found scattered in the area and a stack of lumber was found in a nearby yard.

Police suspect children may have taken the lumber.

STEVE GOODMAN, one of Chicago's leading song writers and folk musicians, was among a dozen performers who appeared at Arlington Park Race Track this weekend during a stereo trade show there. Rain prevented an outdoor concert on Saturday and Goodman and the other performers held an indoor session in front of about 100 fans.

No word yet concerning youth missing in Chile

Concern increased over the weekend for the fate of a Des Plaines man who now has been listed as missing in Chile.

U.S. State Department officials reported that Frank R. Teruggi Jr., 23, of 7311 S. Third Ave., Des Plaines was not being held by military officials in the South American nation which underwent a massive political upheaval earlier this month.

This latest information contradicted earlier reports that the young man, who was studying economics at the University of Chile, was being held with hundreds of other persons in a Santiago soccer stadium.

The government said Saturday that after exhaustive inquiries the young man's whereabouts are unknown at this time.

Teruggi's father, Frank told The Herald over the weekend that he still has not heard from his son, but had been told by the State Department he had been released on Sept. 21. The family last heard from their son on Sept. 17.

"Today I am very concerned about my son, they have told me that he is not being held, and he is not in any hospital, but I know that he would have called by now," the father said.

THE YOUNGER Teruggi's roommate, David Hathaway, was released from Chile on Wednesday, but he has apparently not been able to shed any light on the local man's condition. State department officials said they had conflicting reports as to whether or not Teruggi was with Hathaway on the day Hathaway was captured. The Herald was not able to reach Hathaway over the weekend for additional information. He is expected back in the U.S. today.

When the Des Plaines family last heard from their son, he told them he was in good condition and planned to leave Chile by way of Argentina. State department officials said they have also made inquiries in Argentina, but have received no information on Teruggi.

"This is all very confusing," the senior Teruggi said. "Everytime the telephone rings I hope it is Frank or someone with information about him."

"From his letter to us and his sister, Frank did not seem to be involved in anything political down there, so I do not know why they would want to hold him for any time," the father said.

TERRUGI HAD been in Chile for about two years. He had previously been an engineering student at the California Institute of Technology. He is a graduate of Notre Dame High School in Niles.

At the request of The Herald, representatives of U.S. Senators Charles Percy and Adlai Stevenson and U.S. Rep. Samuel Young, R-10, have interceded with the government in an effort to learn more about the young man.

Even the state department has given the family conflicting reports about their son. Teruggi said the two calls he received late last week indicated his son had been released on Sept. 21, but another state department spokesman told them it was highly unlikely the government would take someone into custody one day and release them on the next. Most persons taken prisoner during the military overthrow have been held at least a week, government officials said.

In the meantime, the family's concern is mounting daily.

"I would like to know where my son is and what his condition might be," the father said, adding he and his wife Jeanie feel helpless because their son is so far away.

"I guess about all we can do is wait and hope that the government or the newspapers get some information about Frank. We sure would like to hear from him," he added.

Residents hit Centex office rezoning plea were Bruce Logan, 5 Oakwood Dr., and Larry Spanola, 6 Oakwood Dr. Both presented long statements opposing Fleming's request for the zoning.

Spanola, who lives next to the property, said a real estate office at the site would create a traffic hazard, interfere with his privacy and could force him to move.

He said in May, he talked to a Centex officials at a village board meeting and the official denied any knowledge of a sale or rezoning involving the property.

LOGAN SAID Fleming and his attorney had the burden of proof to show the rezoning would be beneficial to the village and would not harm the residents. He contended the proof had not been provided.

Logan said, "Is it too much to ask that Centex live up to its agreement (to remove the building)?"

He also said, "Fleming took a well planned and calculated risk on a windfall gain."

According to Logan, granting the zoning would not be in accordance with the village's intention to limit congestion, improve the general welfare and eliminate undesirable buildings.

AT THE HEARING, Fleming contended the rezoning would not present any problem to the residents. He said traffic would be routed only on and off Arlington Heights Road.

The real estate office would have eight to 10 employees and usually they would not all be in the office at the same time, according to Fleming.

He said the office would not be open later than 6 p.m. any night.

Fleming is one of the first residents of the village and has operated a real estate office since shortly after arriving. He is president of the library board and chairman of the zoning board of appeals.

He denied having any other plans for the property and building except to use it as his real estate office.

Barkeepers face new test: telling 'kids' from 'old folks'

by JOE SWICKARD
Tonight the new state liquor law will face its first test as thousands of 19- and 20-year-olds line up for their first legal lagers. And barkeepers throughout the state will face a severe test of their nerves, patience and possibly their licenses.

The new law, which took effect at 12:01 a.m. today, enables 19- and 20-year-olds to purchase and consume beer and wine, but not the stronger spiritous ferment. There lies the rub.

The problem for alcohol dispensers is separating the beerhounds from the ones who drink the hard stuff. The clerk or bartender who errs in pouring the libations faces a stiff rap and possibly the loss of his liquor license.

TO COMBAT this problem several remedies have been put forward, ranging from marking the beer drinker, to special identification, to new legislation that protects the seller from taking a fall for serving some one with phony IDs.

Bob Burton, manager of Worldwide Liquors, Palatine, said the Illinois Liquor Association has provided cards designed to protect the shops from selling to mature looking 18-year-olds or denying service to youthful-looking 19- and 20-year-olds.

The cards, already used for 21-year-olds not marred by the ravages of time, are signed by the customer. On the back of the card, which remains file at the store, Selective Service, or driver's licenses numbers are listed. This, according to Burton, enables the clerk to run a quick check on the presented IDs against the information on file.

DOBBY DOBKINS, owner of the store, admits the cards are a stopgap measure at best. He feels the new law is "one we can't live with."

Dobkins and others in similar situations around the state are almost universal in disapproval of the new law. Most label it halfway measure that just breeds new problems. Many said they favored one age for drinking all alcoholic beverages.

This is the night when tavern operators probably will bear the brunt of the thirsty youths. Short of setting aside separate rooms or areas for the beer and wine crowd, few see any ready answer for the problem, except the bars in Arlington Heights where the law doesn't take effect until Oct. 6.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS passed an ordinance lowering the age, but by law, ordinances do not take effect until 18 days after they are published in a newspaper. The revised liquor law was not published until Sept. 26; hence the lag twist cup and the lip.

In hope of preventing underage acceptance, Bill Roscoe, owner of the Blarney Stone Inn, Mount Prospect, said he will ask for three identification cards to protect himself. For the guys, these would probably be a voters card, draft card and driver's license.

But what of the young woman who lacks the draft card? A spokesman from Lum's Restaurant, said he would probably settle "for two good ones. Hopefully one would have a picture."

Some apas say they will go to a ink-stamping system for the beer drinkers.

BUTCH MCGUIRE, who owns taverns in Mount Prospect and Chicago, said doormen will stamp the right or left hand according to the drinker's age. This, he said, will tell the waitress at a glance who may drink what.

He, too, admits there will remain, "a

Escrow agreement readied for work on W. Colfax St.

An escrow agreement paving the way for the revised W. Colfax Street improvement project has been prepared and awaits action from the Palatine Village Board tonight.

Passage of the escrow agreement could result in the circuit court approved special assessment on 71 property owners along W. Colfax Street being dropped.

Under the terms of the proposed escrow agreement, property owners would place the amount of money they were originally assessed for improvements along W. Colfax Street into an escrow fund at a local bank, said Village Pres. Wendell Jones. The special assessment would be dropped by the village upon receipt of the money from 80 per cent of the property owners, he said.

The proposed escrow agreement is the outcome of a total revision of the West Colfax Street improvement project which has been in the planning stages for nearly three years.

THE ORIGINAL improvement project called for the widening of West Colfax Street between Smith Street and Quentin Road from two to four lanes with curbs and gutters, installing a 72-inch storm sewer, installing sidewalks along both sides of the street and also installing traffic and street lights.

The improvements were designed to improve access to the Palatine train depot and the Palatine Post Office.

The project, which would have cost nearly $1.4 million, was to have been financed through a special assessment

Library referendum OK seen tonight

Approval of plans for a $1.3 million referendum to finance a new Palatine Public Library is expected by the Palatine Village Board tonight, paving the way for setting a referendum date.

The board will act on the request from Palatine library officials to approve the referendum plans at its 8 p.m. meeting at 54 S. Brockway St. A special dinner meeting between library and village officials to review the plans and costs of the proposed new library will be held at 6 p.m. at the library, 149 N. Brockway St.

Approval of the referendum plans by the village board is necessary before the referendum can be scheduled because the library is a branch of the village government.

Library officials have indicated a desire to schedule the referendum for late October and, if successful, start construction in the spring.

The proposed library would be located on Benton Street south of Northwest Highway. The proposal calls for the construction of a two-story building with space for an adult and children's section, a conference room, meeting room, bookmobile garage, art gallery-lobby and room for future expansion.

Library officials feel the new library is needed because present library facilities at 149 N. Brockway St., Palatine, are no longer adequate.

by AL MESSELSCHMIDT

The increasing federal tax buck stops in Washington and never returns to the suburbs, Northwest suburban officials told U.S. Rep. Philip Crane, R-12th, Saturday.

The mayors, city managers and trustees assaulted, with a mixture of humor and statistics, disbursements of federal revenue sharing funds and called for changes in federal grant formulas.

Local suburbs received an average 4 per cent return of taxes paid to the federal government, Crane told the 21 officials meeting in Palatine. "It's costing $1.67 across the board to get $1 back from Washington," he said, based on 1970 reports.

"Last year, we got $100,000 in revenue sharing," Palatine Mayor Wendell Jones said. Palatine residents paid between $24 and $30 million in federal taxes in 1972.

If suburbs received a 10 per cent rebate of federal taxes, local property and other taxes could be eliminated, Jones said. "We're paying for more than our share. We're becoming the have nots."

THE OFFICIALS complained, during the three-hour session, that:

- Federal grant formulas block purchase of golf courses for open space — in Schaumburg, Buffalo Grove and Mount Prospect — but would finance a similar sale if the land was a cornfield.

- Small municipalities built large post offices, but larger communities — like Schaumburg and Elk Grove Village — are without local mail centers. Schaumburg, with a population of 32,000 sends mail through Roselle (population 6,000). Elk Grove local letters travel to Arlington Heights, then back to the village.

- Noise from O'Hare International Airport flights is getting louder and planes are lower and more frequent.

- "Solid waste disposal, water supply, flood control are top priorities in this area," Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher said.

- "Could we as a group get money for landfill? Could we go for a block grant to run a 72-inch water line to Lake Michigan?" Atcher asked.

Jones, who last week proposed an area-wide water cooperative, supported the proposal. "I think we could come up with the legal agreement. The borders are already drawn."

"If we're committed to a regional concept we can't have all kinds of sub-regions," Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Teichert said.

LARGE CAPITAL projects cannot be built with limited revenue sharing allotments, the officials said. "You can't build a fire station with $100,000," Jones said. "We need water towers, sidewalks and we can't build them unless we go back to property taxes or bonds."

"I don't think taxes are too high," Teichert said. "They relate to the services you get. I have no problem in my community."

CRANE TOLD the officials that he "is not sure" how to attack duplication of services and waste in government that could cut federal taxes. "What I resent is the federal government moving into areas where it has demonstrated incompetence. It's a rule of life. I shake in horror at the squandering of taxpayers' money."

The two-term Congressman said President Richard Nixon should send a balanced budget to Congress.

"Is he listening to you at all?" Ray Geraci, Highland Park mayor, said.

"No, I don't know who he's listening to," Crane answered.

Compares favorably with other suburbs

City enjoying large travel, training budget

by TONI GINETTI

The luxury of a healthy treasury is making available to Rolling Meadows officials and city employees one of the largest municipal travel and training expense accounts in the Northwest suburbs.

A survey of the city's 1973-74 city budget shows $31,300 has been budgeted this year for travel and training expenses for city officials and employees. The biggest single travel and training allotment is in the legislative department of the city council and mayor's office, where $7,000 has been budgeted.

The $7,000 total is as much as two times the amount budgeted in the same category in surrounding communities.

The amount compares to $3,500 allotted for the Mount Prospect Village Board, $1,500 for the Arlington Heights Village Board, $2,200 for the Wheeling Village Board, and $1,400 each for the Buffalo Grove and Palatine Village Boards.

ABOUT $2,300 of the $7,000 has already been spent toward sending seven aldermen and Mayor Roland Meyer to the three-day Illinois Municipal League Conference in Chicago three weeks ago.

A total of $900 from travel and training allotments also is allowed City Engr. James Muldowney, Dep. City Clerk Elizabeth Houldsworth, and Police and Fire Commissioner Rudolf Balek to attend the conference.

Last week City Mgr. James Watson attended the International City Managers' Association meeting in Boston. The $650 cost for the trip came from the $1,200 travel and training account provided for his office.

Arlington Heights, in comparison, allotted its village manager, L. A. Hansen, $280 to attend the same meeting.

The next biggest chunk of the $31,300 total is given to the police and fire departments for personnel training. Each receives $6,000, most of which is reimbursed to the city through state and federal matching funds programs.

This fund also provided $367 for Rolling

Meadows Police Chief Lewis R. Case to attend the Illinois Chiefs of Police Association seminar in San Antonio, Texas, last week.

THE REMAINING portion of the $31,300 is distributed among the city departments, with even the recycling committee getting a share.

A breakdown shows the city's youth and family referral committee is allotted $1,000 for travel and training; the public works department is allotted $5,000; and the city's legal department is allotted $800, which is $500 more than it received last year.

The city clerk's office this year receives $700, which is $50 less than last year; the city treasurer's office receives $300; the health department gets $750, which is $350 more than last year; the Civil Defense department gets $500; the board of police and fire commissioners gets $500, which is $200 more than last year; and even the recycling, ecology and beautification committee gets $50 for travel and training expenses.

That Rolling Meadows is able to spend so much money for travel and training is "what I would consider a plus in any community," Mayor Roland Meyer says.

"The fact that we have the money to spend means, I think, that when we hire someone, we want to not only hire the best person we can but give him all the training we can," Meyer says.

"I think if anything, we're always better off if we can spend the money to train our people."

ONLY THE VILLAGE of Mount Prospect, population 46,525, budgets more than Rolling Meadows for travel and training. In Arlington Heights, a total of $25,000 is allotted for travel and training. In Wheeling the total is $23,850. In Buffalo Grove it is $15,850, and in Schaumburg it is $17,100.

In Palatine, the 1973-74 budget allows $15,350 for travel and training, but a new policy passed by the village board last month sets stringent guidelines for em-

Here is how several Northwest suburban communities compare on the amount of money budgeted for travel and training expenses:

|                   | Police   | Legislative Dept. | Total for all Depts. |
|-------------------|----------|-------------------|----------------------|
| Mount Prospect    | $11,500 | $3,500           | $15,000             |
| ROLLING MEADOWS   | 6,000    | 7,000             | 13,000               |
| Arlington Heights | 10,000   | 1,500             | 11,500               |
| Wheeling          | 5,887    | 2,200             | 8,087                |
| Buffalo Grove     | 8,500    | 1,400             | 9,900                |

ployee travel expenses.

Under the new policy, Village Finance Director William Hibner is in charge of approving travel expenditures and submitting quarterly reports to the village board on travel costs. Other rules limit each department head to one national and one state conference yearly. Only $22 per night for lodging in Illinois and $25 for out of state lodging is allowed. Lodging in the Chicago metropolitan area will not be paid by the village.

The Palatine policy also puts a limit on meal expenses of $13.50 a day in Illinois and $15 out of state. Expenses for laundry and dry cleaning, entertainment, alcoholic beverages, and personal calls are also prohibited.

No word on missing youth

Concern increased over the weekend for the fate of a Des Plaines man who now has been listed as missing in Chile.

Bond accord for Colfax St. work ready

with the property owners paying 30 per cent of the costs and the village the remaining 70 per cent.

Property owners along Colfax Street called the proposed improvement excessive and took their battle against the special assessment to court. They lost their court battle but in July a newly elected village board heeded their complaints and reduced the scope of the improvement project.

THE NEW PROPOSAL is to keep Colfax Street as a two-lane street, install smaller sewers and only place sidewalks on the north side of the street.

The purpose of the escrow agreement is to save the time of going through another court hearing on a special assessment on the revised West Colfax Street improvement project, said Jones. In addition to time, the proposed escrow agreement would also save money in possible court hearings and the 6 per cent fee to distribute the special assessment.

If the escrow agreement is adopted and the special assessment dropped, the board would advertise and award a contract for the revised improvement project. Upon completion of the work the unused money in the escrow fund would be returned to the property owners.

Property owners would still pay 30 per cent of the costs for the W. Colfax Street improvements but because of the revision of plans the actual amount of money property owners would spend is expected to be less.

Jones said he had also asked the village's engineer and manager to look into alternative routes for the Colfax Street storm sewer which was to be hooked into Salt Creek at Rose Street. This might involve adding additional storm sewers to take in more areas or hooking the sewer in at a different spot. Any additional costs because of a change in the plans for the storm sewer would be borne by the village, Jones said.

Feminine Trip features play Oct. 10

A new season of Palatine Park District Feminine Trips begins Oct. 10 with an afternoon at the Pheasant Run Playhouse in St. Charles.

In a change from registration procedures last year, no phone reservations will be accepted. Instead, reservations may be made in person or by mail. Forms are available at the park district administration building, 262 E. Palatine Rd.

Registration deadline is Friday. The trip will include bus transportation, luncheon, and the play "A Marriage Go-Round," starring Dana Andrews.

The bus will leave from the administration building at noon on Oct. 10 and return at approximately 5 p.m. Cost of the outing is $10.

U.S. REP. PHILIP M. CRANE, R-12th, center, listens to an explanation of paramedic emergency medical techniques by Arlington Heights fireman and paramedic Gerry Collignon. Crane met with Fire Chief John Hayden, left, last week to learn about the Northwest suburbs' program. Crane told the paramedics he supported

President Nixon's veto of the emergency medical aid bill, which would have helped finance the paramedics, because other portions of the bill were supporting sub-standard hospitals. However, he said federal "seed money" should be forthcoming to help establish similar paramedic programs throughout the country.

Driver, 17, listed 'good' after crash

Brendan Hoey, 17, of 351 S. Elm Rd., Barrington, was listed in good condition at Northwest Community Hospital yesterday after his car struck a tree in Inverness.

The accident occurred about 10 a.m. Saturday near 1865 W. Baldwin, Inverness. According to Palatine police reports, Hoey's car was eastbound on Baldwin when it went off the road and ran into a tree. No other cars were involved.

Hoey is being treated for a broken hip and foot and facial lacerations.

STEVE GOODMAN, one of Chicago's leading song writers and folk musicians, was among a dozen performers who appeared at Arlington Park Race Track this weekend during a stereo trade show there. Rain prevented an outdoor concert on Saturday and Goodman and the other performers held an indoor session in front of about 100 fans.

Clearbrook head plans to leave

Byrn Witt, director of the Clearbrook Center for the Retarded in Rolling Meadows, has announced his resignation.

Byrn Witt

Witt, who has been the center's director since July, 1964, submitted his resignation to the center's board of directors in June but did not make his resignation public until last week.

He will not leave the center until Dec. 1 to give the institution time to find a new director, Witt said Friday. A search committee has been appointed to find a new director and Witt said he will probably time his leaving with the arrival of the center's new director.

Witt said he is currently negotiating for a position with another institution in the field of mental retardation, but he declined to name it.

Barkeepers face new test: telling 'kids' from 'old folks'

by JOE SWICKARD

Tonight the new state liquor law will face its first test as thousands of 19- and 20-year-olds line up for their first legal sips. And barkeepers throughout the state will face a severe test of their nerves, patience and possibly their licenses.

The new law, which took effect at 12:01 a.m. today, enables 19- and 20-year-olds to purchase and consume beer and wine, but not the stronger spiritus fermenti. There lies the rub.

The problem for alcohol dispensers is separating the beerhounds from the ones who drink the hard stuff. The clerk or bartender who errs in pouring the libations faces a stiff rap and possibly the loss of his liquor license.

TO COMBAT this problem several remedies have been put forward, ranging from marking the beer drinker, to special identification, to new legislation that protects the seller from taking a fall for serving some one with phony IDs.

Bob Burton, manager of Worldwide Liquors, Palatine, said the Illinois Liquor Association has provided cards designed to protect the shops from selling to mature looking 18-year-olds or denying service to youthful-looking 19- and 20-year-olds.

The cards, already used for 21-year-olds not marred by the ravages of time, are signed by the customer. On the back of the card, which remains file at the store, Selective Service, or driver's licenses numbers are listed. This, according to Burton, enables the clerk to run a quick check on the presented IDs against the information on file.

DOBBY DOBKINS, owner of the store, admits the cards are a stopgap measure at best. He feels the new law is "one we can't live with."

Dobkins and others in similar situations around the state are almost universal in disapproval of the new law. Most label it halfway measure that just breeds new problems. Many said they favored one age for drinking all alcoholic beverages.

This is the night when tavern operators probably will bear the brunt of the thirsty youths. Short of setting aside separate rooms or areas for the beer and wine crowd, few see any ready answer for the problem, except the bars in Arlington Heights where the law doesn't take effect until Oct. 6.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS passed an ordinance lowering the age, but by law, ordinances do not take effect until 10 days after they are published in a newspaper. The revised liquor law was not published until Sept. 26; hence the lag twixt cup and the lip.

In hope of preventing underage acceptance, Bill Roscoe, owner of the Blarney Stone Inn, Mount Prospect, said he will ask for three identification cards to protect himself. For the guys, these would probably be a voters card, draft card and driver's license.

But what of the young woman who lacks the draft card? A spokesman from Lum's Restaurant, said he would probably settle "for two good ones. Hopefully one would have a picture."

Some spas say they will go to a ink-stamping system for the beer drinkers.

BUTCH McGUIRE, who owns taverns in Mount Prospect and Chicago, said doormen will stamp the right or left hand according to the drinker's age. This, he said, will tell the waitress at a glance who may drink what.

He, too, admits there will remain, "a

Compares favorably with other suburbs

City enjoying large travel, training budget

by TONI GINNETTI

The luxury of a healthy treasury is making available to Rolling Meadows officials and city employees one of the largest municipal travel and training expense accounts in the Northwest suburbs.

A survey of the city's 1973-74 city budget shows $11,300 has been budgeted this year for travel and training expenses for city officials and employees. The biggest single travel and training allotment is in the legislative department of the city council and mayor's office, where $7,000 has been budgeted.

The $7,000 total is as much as two times the amount budgeted in the same category in surrounding communities.

The amount compares to $3,500 allotted for the Mount Prospect Village Board, $1,500 for the Arlington Heights Village Board, $2,200 for the Wheeling Village Board, and $1,100 each for the Buffalo Grove and Palatine Village Boards.

ABOUT $2,300 of the $7,000 has already been spent toward sending seven aldermen and Mayor Roland Meyer to the three-day Illinois Municipal League Conference in Chicago three weeks ago.

A total of $900 from travel and training allotments also is allowed City Engr. James Muldowney, Dep. City Clerk Elizabeth Houckworth, and Police and Fire Commissioner Rudolf Balek to attend the conference.

Last week City Mgr. James Watson attended the International City Managers' Association meeting in Boston. The $850 cost for the trip came from the $1,200 travel and training account provided for his office.

Arlington Heights, in comparison, allotted its village manager, L. A. Hansen, $200 to attend the same meeting.

The next biggest chunk of the $11,300 total is given to the police and fire departments for personnel training. Each receives $6,000, most of which is reimbursed to the city through state and federal matching funds programs.

This fund also provided $367 for Rolling Meadows Police Chief Lewis R. Case to attend the Illinois Chiefs of Police Association seminar in San Antonio, Texas, last week.

THE REMAINING portion of the $11,300 is distributed among the city departments, with even the recycling committee getting a share.

A breakdown shows the city's youth and family referral committee is allotted $1,000 for travel and training; the public works department is allotted $5,000, and the city's legal department is allotted $800, which is $500 more than it received last year.

The city clerk's office this year receives $700, which is $50 less than last year; the city treasurer's office receives $300; the health department gets $750, which is $150 more than last year; the Civil Defense department gets $500; the board of police and fire commissioners gets $500, which is $200 more than last year; and even the recycling, ecology and beautification committee gets $50 for travel and training expenses.

That Rolling Meadows is able to spend so much money for travel and training is "what I would consider a plus in any community," Mayor Roland Meyer says.

"The fact that we have the money to spend means, I think, that when we hire someone, we want to not only hire the best person we can but give him all the training we can," Meyer says.

"I think if anything, we're always better off if we can spend the money to train our people."

ONLY THE VILLAGE of Mount Prospect, population 46,525, budgets more than Rolling Meadows for travel and training. In Arlington Heights, a total of $25,000 is allotted for travel and training. In Wheeling the total is $23,850, in Buffalo Grove it is $15,850, and in Schaumburg it is $17,100.

In Palatine, the 1973-74 budget allows

$15,350 for travel and training, but a new policy passed by the village board last month sets stringent guidelines for employee travel expenses.

Under the new policy, Village Finance Director William Hibner is in charge of approving travel expenditures and submitting quarterly reports to the village board on travel costs. Other rules limit each department head to one national and one state conference yearly. Only $22 per night for lodging in Illinois and $25 for out of state lodging is allowed. Lodging in the Chicago metropolitan area will not be paid by the village.

The Palatine policy also puts a limit on meal expenses of $13.50 a day in Illinois and $15 out of state. Expenses for laundry and dry cleaning, entertainment, alcoholic beverages, and personal calls are also prohibited.

TEACHERS DISTRIBUTED leaflets and talked to residents on Saturday in an attempt to gain community support for their position in current contract negotiations with Palatine-Rolling Meadows School Dist. 15. Above Trudy Triner (right), a teacher at Carl Sandburg School in Rolling Meadows, passes out leaflets to Jose Garcia, a picket with the United Farm Workers, at the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center. Teachers have been working without a contract since June 30 and their salaries are now frozen at last year's level. The farm workers were protesting Jewel Food Store's refusal to buy United Farm Workers lettuce.

Here is how several Northwest suburban communities compare on the amount of money budgeted for travel and training expenses:

|                   | Police   | Legislative Dept. | Total for all Depts. |
|-------------------|----------|-------------------|----------------------|
| Mount Prospect    | $11,500 | $2,500           | $14,000             |

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

The increasing federal tax buck stops in Washington and never returns to the suburbs, Northwest suburban officials told U.S. Rep. Philip Crane, R-12th, Saturday.

The mayors, city managers and trustees assailed, with a mixture of humor and statistics, disbursements of federal revenue sharing funds and called for changes in federal grant formulas.

Local suburbs received an average 4 per cent return of taxes paid to the federal government, Crane told the 21 officials meeting in Palatine. "It's costing $1.67 across the board to get $1 back from Washington," he said, based on 1970 reports.

"Last year, we got $100,000 in revenue sharing," Palatine Mayor Wendell Jones said. Palatine residents paid between $24 and $40 million in federal taxes in 1972.

If suburbs received a 10 per cent rebate of federal taxes, local property and other taxes could be eliminated, Jones said. "We're paying for more than our share. We're becoming the have nots."

THE OFFICIALS complained, during the three-hour session, that:

- Federal grant formulas block purchase of golf courses for open space — in Schaumburg, Buffalo Grove and Mount Prospect — but would finance a similar sale if the land was a cornfield.

- Small municipalities built large post offices, but larger communities — like Schaumburg and Elk Grove Village — are without local mail centers. Schaumburg, with a population of 32,000 sends mail through Roselle (population 6,000). Elk Grove local letters travel to Arlington Heights, then back to the village.

- Noise from O'Hare International Airport flights is getting louder and planes are lower and more frequent.

- Solid waste disposal, water supply, flood control are top priorities in this area." Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher said.

"Could we as a group get money for landfill? Could we go for a block grant to run a 72-inch water line to Lake Michigan?" Atcher asked.

Jones, who last week proposed an area-wide water cooperative, supported the proposal. "I think we could come up with the legal agreement. The borders are already drawn."

"If we're committed to a regional concept we can't have all kinds of sub-regions," Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Telchert said.

LARGE CAPITAL projects cannot be built with limited revenue sharing allotments, the officials said. "You can't build a fire station with $100,000," Jones said. "We need water towers, sidewalks and we can't build them unless we go back to property taxes or bonds."

"I don't think taxes are too high," Telchert said. "They relate to the services you get. I have no problem in my community."

CRANE TOLD the officials that he "is not sure" how to attack duplication of services and waste in government that could cut federal taxes. "What I resent is the federal government moving into areas where it has demonstrated incompetence. It's a rule of life I shake in horror at the squandering of taxpayers' money."

The two-term Congressman said President Richard Nixon should send a balanced budget to Congress.

"Is he listening to you at all?" Ray Geraci, Highland Park mayor, said.

"No, I don't know who he's listening to," Crane answered.

Three park district classes dropped for lack of interest

Three park district classes have been dropped because of lack of interest and only two sessions of morning preschool are filled.

Registration is still open in all other areas.

"But all in all, considering that our fall and winter programs are not in full swing, I'm pretty happy with registration," said Park District Supt. Steve Person.

Instead of starting on the same day as in past years, classes begin at different times from now until November.

Person said that interest in different sports varies throughout the fall and winter season. The new times are planned to correspond with these interests, he said. Wrestling, for example, won't begin until November, after the football season ends.

The three classes that were dropped last week are soccer, decoupage and chess. "Generally, we drop three or four classes each year," said Person.

PERSON SAID that classes have a tendency to cycle — what is interesting to many people one year might interest only a few the next year.

Two morning classes in pre-school are closed. One of the Monday, Wednesday and Friday classes is full while the other is still accepting preschoolers.

A Tuesday and Thursday pre-school session is also closed, though another session being held at the same time is still open.

Registration for hockey has been continued. Rudy Nelson, facility coordinator, said that though 350 boys are already enrolled, there is room for 50 to 100 more. Practice sessions have begun.

$12 per family - year's goal

Chest fund drive begins

"A Dollar A Month" will be the theme this year of the Rolling Meadows Community Chest drive.

"If each family could contribute $12, we could reach our goal," Community Chest secretary Deane Wandersee said. The organization's goal this year is $3,020, which will be raised for the third straight year from mall and door-to-door solicitation.

Last year the organization collected $1,300 in contributions from homeowners, businesses and industries in the city. "Last year we extended the campaign into December," Mrs. Wandersee said. "This year we are trying to reach our goal within a month to six weeks."

The fund drive will be held this month, which has been proclaimed Community Chest Month in Rolling Meadows by Mayor Roland Meyer. Letters will be sent out to residents this week as the official Chicago Metropolitan Crusade of Mercy begins Thursday.

CONTRIBUTIONS may be sent to the Rolling Meadows Community Chest, P.O. Box 8300, Rolling Meadows, 60008.

Funds will also be sought from businesses and industries in the city and the community bulletin board in the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center will announce details of the campaign effort.

A special sign will be posted in front of the Union Oil service station at Kirschhoff Road and Meadow Drive which will give a continuous reading of the amount of money collected by the drive.

On Saturday, Oct. 13, a special door-to-door effort in the city's residential areas will be conducted by the Girl Scouts and Campfire Girls.

DIRECTORS of the city's Community Chest drive this year are president Jim Zaloudek, 4100 Jay Ln.; executive vice president and campaign chairman Elaine Werling, 2712 Dove St.; industrial campaign chairman Frank Carroll of Decks, Inc.; vice president Al Carlson of the Bank of Rolling Meadows; treasurer

Frank Catini of the Bank of Rolling Meadows; business campaign chairman Billy McMinn of McMinn and Troutman Accounting; publicity chairman Carmen Vinezano, Rolling Meadows dep. Civil Defense director; and secretary Mrs. Wandersee.

The directors will hold a meeting at 7:30 p.m., Oct. 17, at the Bank of Rolling Meadows to determine how the campaign is progressing and whether further mail solicitation will be needed.

Funds collected by the campaign in Rolling Meadows are distributed to local chapters of the Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, Campfire Girls, Clearbrook Center for the Retarded, the Northwest Mental Health Association, the USO, the Salvation Army, and the Family Services branch of the Salvation Army.

Shooting suspect Taylor still in serious condition

Clarence V. Taylor, the Rolling Meadows man charged with attempted murder in the shooting of his wife last Monday, remains in serious but improving condition in the coronary care unit at Northwest Community Hospital.

Taylor is being guarded by a Cook County Sheriff's bailiff under a court order issued Thursday. The order frees the city police from posting a man at the hospital to guard Taylor.

The 54-year-old Taylor is charged with attempting to murder his wife, 50-year-old Margaret Taylor, in their apartment at 4732 Arbor Dr. last week. Mrs. Taylor was shot in the right cheek with a .38-caliber revolver.

Mrs. Taylor is in good condition at the hospital after being moved out of the intensive care unit Thursday. Rolling Meadows police have been unable to question either of the couple since the incident occurred.

Taylor was taken to the hospital following the shooting Monday when he complained to police of chest pains.

An arraignment date has yet to be set for Taylor in Arlington Heights branch of Cook County Circuit Court. If Taylor cannot post 10 per cent of the $50,000 bond which has been set, he will be remanded to Cook County Jail to await trial action pending his release from the hospital.

Three hurt after two-car accident

Three persons were treated and released from Northwest Community Hospital on Saturday following a two-car head-on collision at Hicks Road and Reseda Parkway in Palatine.

The accident occurred at 11:17 p.m. Saturday when a car driven southbound on Hicks Road by Mary Ann Hughes, 17, of 2 Dukes, Deerfield, veered into the northbound lane colliding with a car driven by Manuel Hurtado, 25, 421 Hicks Rd., Palatine.

Hurtado, Rovrigo Hurtado, 25, 2201 Algonquin Rd., Rolling Meadows, a passenger in the Hurtado car; and Mark C. Matt, 19, 9 Bockingham, Deerfield, a passenger in the Hughes car were taken to Northwest Community Hospital. They were treated and released for head and facial lacerations.

Miss Hughes was charged with improper lane usage and a court date was set for 9 a.m. on Oct. 19.

Health agency opens

Medical Health Service, an agency providing registered nurses, licensed practical nurses, nurses aides and live-in companions, recently opened at 678 Lee St., Des Plaines.

Agency personnel are available for private duty in the home or staff relief in hospitals, doctors offices and clinics.

U.S. REP. PHILIP M. CRANE, R-12th, center, listens to an explanation of paramedic emergency medical techniques by Arlington Heights fireman and paramedic Gerry Collignon. Crane met with Fire Chief John Hayden, left, last week to learn about the Northwest suburbs' program. Crane told the paramedics he supported

President Nixon's veto of the emergency medical aid bill, which would have helped finance the paramedics, because other portions of the bill were supporting substandard hospitals. However, he said federal "seed money" should be forthcoming to help establish similar paramedic programs throughout the country.

Reports from Chile conflict

No word yet on missing area youth

Concern increased over the weekend for the fate of a Des Plaines man who now has been listed as missing in Chile.

U.S. State Department officials reported that Frank R. Teruggi Jr., 23, of 7311 S. Third Ave., Des Plaines was not being held by military officials in the South American nation which underwent a massive political upheaval earlier this month.

This latest information contradicted earlier reports that the young man, who was studying economics at the University of Chile, was being held with hundreds of other persons in a Santiago soccer stadium.

The government said Saturday that after exhaustive inquiries the young man's whereabouts are unknown at this time.

Teruggi's father, Frank told The Herald over the weekend that he still has not heard from his son, but had been told by the State Department he had been released on Sept. 21. The family last heard from their son on Sept. 17.

"Today I am very concerned about my son, they have told me that he is not being held, and he is not in any hospital, but I know that he would have called by now," the father said.

THE YOUNGER Teruggi's roommate, David Hathaway, was released from Chile on Wednesday, but he has apparently not been able to shed any light on the local man's condition. State department officials said they had conflicting reports as to whether or not Teruggi was with Hathaway on the day Hathaway was captured. The Herald was not able to reach Hathaway over the weekend for additional information. He is expected back in the U.S. today.

When the Des Plaines family last heard from their son, he told them he was in good condition and planned to leave Chile by way of Argentina. State department officials said they have also made inquiries in Argentina, but have received no information on Teruggi.

"This is all very confusing," the senior Teruggi said. "Everytime the telephone rings I hope it is Frank or someone with information about him."

"From his letter to us and his sister, Frank did not seem to be involved in anything political down there, so I do not know why they would want to hold him for any time," the father said.

TERRUGI HAD been in Chile for about two years. He had previously been an engineering student at the California Institute of Technology. He is a graduate of Notre Dame High School in Niles.

At the request of The Herald, representatives of U.S. Senators Charles Percy and Adlai Stevenson and U.S. Rep. Samuel Young, R-10, have interceded with the government in an effort to learn more about the young man.

Even the state department has given the family conflicting reports about their son. Teruggi said the two calls he received late last week indicated his son had been released on Sept. 21, but another state department spokesman told them it was highly unlikely the government would take someone into custody one day and release them on the next. Most persons taken prisoner during the military overthrow have been held at least a week, government officials said.

In the meantime, the family's concern's are mounting daily.

"I would like to know where my son is and what his condition might be," the father said, adding he and his wife Jeanie feel helpless because their son is so far away.

"I guess about all we can do is wait and hope that the government or the newspapers get some information about Frank. We sure would like to hear from him," he added.

Driver, 17, listed 'good' after crash

Brendan Hoey, 17, of 354 S. Elm Rd., Barrington, was listed in good condition at Northwest Community Hospital yesterday after his car struck a tree in Inverness.

The accident occurred about 10 a.m. Saturday near 1865 W. Baldwin, Inverness. According to Palatine police reports, Hoey's car was eastbound on Baldwin when it went off the road and ran into a tree. No other cars were involved.

Hoey is being treated for a broken hip and foot and facial lacerations.

STEVE GOODMAN, one of Chicago's leading song writers and folk musicians, was among a dozen performers who appeared at Arlington Park Race Track this weekend during a stereo trade show there. Rain prevented an outdoor concert on Saturday and Goodman and the other performers held an indoor session in front of about 100 fans.

Clearbrook head planning to leave

Byrn Witt, director of the Clearbrook Center for the Retarded in Rolling Meadows, has announced his resignation.

Witt, who has been the center's director since July, 1964, submitted his resignation to the center's board of directors in June but did not make his resignation public until last week.

He will not leave the center until Dec.

1 to give the institution time to find a new director, Witt said Friday. A search committee has been appointed to find a new director and Witt said he will probably time his leaving with the arrival of the center's new director.

Witt said he is currently negotiating for a position with another institution in the field of mental retardation, but he declined to name it.

Decision on Maryville site is due tomorrow

The controversy over where to locate the new Maryville School is expected to end tomorrow night with a final decision on the site by the Dist. 28 School Board.

The board meeting is scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. at River Trails Junior High School, 1000 Wolf Rd.

Lloyd Nipper of the citizens' committee formed to study alternative sites for the school, said Friday the committee will make its recommendation to the school board at the meeting.

"Tuesday, we'll have all the information we've requested and hopefully, we can take a look at it and finalize where the site will be located," said Lloyd Demel, school board president.

Demel said plans for the building are being drawn up and bids will be opened for construction as soon as they are finished. He said the September, 1974, target completion date is still realistic.

Miss Nipper said the citizens' committee has met with a variety of experts in studying sites for the Maryville School.

The committee was formed by the school board several weeks ago after parents expressed dissatisfaction with the board's decision to locate the school on the River Trails Junior High School site.

Demel has indicated the school board may reverse its decision after considering the citizens' committee recommendation.

Street, gutter repairs to begin

Curb and street gutter repairs have begun in Rolling Meadows.

The work is part of the street maintenance program scheduled this year. The project will be funded from the $150,000 street department maintenance fund for the current fiscal year. The funds for the work come from motor fuel tax rebates.

Included in the work will be the refilling of settled pavement on the Campbell Street bridge. Fill on the bridge has settled, causing about a one-inch drop in the pavement.

City Engr. James Muldowney said asphalt will be poured to fill the settled pavement.

Barkeepers face new test: telling 'kids' from 'old folks'

by JOE SWICKARD

Tonight the new state liquor law will face its first test as thousands of 19- and 20-year-olds line up for their first legal lagers. And barkeepers throughout the state will face a severe test of their nerves, patience and possibly their licenses.

The new law, which took effect at 12:01 a.m. today, enables 19- and 20-year-olds to purchase and consume beer and wine, but not the stronger spiritus fermenti. There lies the rub.

The problem for alcohol dispensers is separating the beerhounds from the ones who drink the hard stuff. The clerk or bartender who errs in pouring the libations faces a stiff rap and possibly the loss of his liquor license.

TO COMBAT this problem several remedies have been put forward, ranging from marking the beer drinker, to special identification, to new legislation that protects the seller from taking a fall for serving some one with phony IDs.

Bob Burton, manager of Worldwide Liquors, Palatine, said the Illinois Liquor Association has provided cards designed to protect the shops from selling to mature looking 18-year-olds or denying service to youthful-looking 19- and 20-year-olds.

The cards, already used for 21-year-olds not married by the ravages of time, are signed by the customer. On the back of the card, which remains file at the store, Selective Service, or driver's license numbers are listed. This, according to Burton, enables the clerk to run a quick check on the presented IDs against the information on file.

DOBBY DOBKINS, owner of the store, admits the cards are a stopgap measure at best. He feels the new law is "one we can't live with."

Dobkins and others in similar situations around the state are almost universal in disapproval of the new law. Most label it halfway measure that just breeds new problems. Many said they favored one age for drinking all alcoholic beverages.

This is the night when tavern operators probably will bear the brunt of the thirsty youths. Short of setting aside separate rooms or areas for the beer and wine crowd, few see any ready answer for the problem, except the bars in Arlington Heights where the law doesn't take effect until Oct. 6.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS passed an ordinance lowering the age, but by law, ordinances do not take effect until 10 days after they are published in a newspaper. The revised liquor law was not published until Sept. 26; hence the lag twist cup and the lip.

In hope of preventing underage acceptance, Bill Roscoe, owner of the Blarney Stone Inn, Mount Prospect, said he will ask for three identification cards to protect himself. For the guys, these would probably be a voters card, draft card and driver's license.

But what of the young woman who lacks the draft card? A spokesman from Lum's Restaurant, said he would probably settle "for two good ones. Hopefully one would have a picture."

Some spas say they will go to a ink-stamping system for the beer drinkers.

BUTCH MCGUIRE, who owns taverns in Mount Prospect and Chicago, said doormen will stamp the right or left hand according to the drinker's age. This, he said, will tell the waitress at a glance who may drink what.

$180,000 grant assured for special preschool plan

by JERRY THOMAS

A $180,000 federal grant has been assured to finance a three-year program for preschool children with learning difficulties in Schaumburg Township Elementary School Dist. 31.

Jennie Swanson, early education director for Dist. 31, leaves for Washington, D.C., this week to complete final arrangements for the $180,000-a-year grants to begin immediately for nearly 200 youngsters.

Last year, when the state mandated services for 3- and 4-year-old children with unique educational needs, it did not provide funding.

The program held this summer was funded by the district. Dist. 31 actively provided special help to preschoolers for several years before the state directed all districts to do so.

It was one of the few school districts in the state to not only provide volunteer services, but enlist the aid of parents.

FOR THE PAST six years teachers and speech and language therapists have worked with preschool children during lunch breaks, before school and after school on a volunteer basis.

Special services persons were actively involved in planning and writing the early education proposal to implement the state directive. This too was done on a voluntary basis.

Last summer 185 children took part in the early education program and summer special session for preschoolers and children up to 10 years old.

THE EARLY EDUCATION program is designed for the preschooler who has problems in the areas of perception, language socialization, or dexterity.

The department has prepared a special booklet with a behavioral checklist for parents who suspect their child has a unique need.

This is available in the district office, 804 W. Bode Rd., Schaumburg.

Parents who want further information are encouraged to call the special services department at 885-4200.

State to pay $56,000

Airport feasibility study gets OK

Schaumburg's airport feasibility study was cleared for takeoff last week by officials of the Illinois Department of Aeronautics in Springfield Friday.

Confirmation of one-sixth state funding for the $56,000 study came from Roger Barkus, a planning engineer with IDA.

"A letter transcribing Schaumburg's application for state and federal funding

HOFFMAN ESTATES COMMUNITY

Blood Drive was a family affair for Bonnie Schill, a donor, and her children Kerry and Kathleen. Last month's drawing produced 58 pints of blood. Under the North Suburban Blood Replacement Plan, blood needs of all Hoffman Estates residents are insured if 4 per cent of the community donates annually. Schaumburg, which belongs to the American Red Cross 4 per cent plan, held its second community drawing over the weekend. More than 250 residents had signed up to donate a pint of blood.

Totten says he'll run again for committeeman

State Rep. Donald Totten, Hoffman Estates, said yesterday he plans to run in the March primary for reelection as Schaumburg Township committeeman.

Totten will complete his second four-year committeeman term in March.

When Totten ran a year ago for state representative, he considered resigning the committeeman post because of possible time conflicts. But he said yesterday he has found the time required for the two positions has "worked out very well."

Totten was unopposed in his last committeeman race in 1970, but when he first ran in 1966 the election was a hotly contested one, with Totten winning a narrow victory over Mike Bartlett, now a Schaumburg resident.

TOTTEN SAID he has heard rumors he will be opposed to a candidate from the Schaumburg United Party.

"SUP is an organization composed of Republicans, Democrats and Independents and, as such, would not slate anyone for a national party office," said Al Larson, SUP public relations chairman.

Larson said that would be "against everything SUP stands for which is local Schaumburg government."

Committeemen sit on party committees at the state, county and federal district level. Among their functions are slating candidates, setting party rules and adopting resolutions on party positions.

The number of voters in the primaries in which they are elected determines the number of delegates their districts may send to state conventions, and the number of votes committeemen may cast on the state, county and district committees.

The filing date for committeeman elections is Dec. 10.

Two charged with deceptive practice

Deceptive practices charges were filed against two Glenview men by Schaumburg police Saturday following incidents at Marshall Field & Company, Woodfield Mall.

Gary J. Moss, 22, and David M. Schneider, 21, attempted to purchase men's clothing with a stolen credit card.

When apprehended Moss broke the glass in a door in an escape attempt. He faces charges on two counts of deceptive practices, criminal damage to property and possession of stolen property.

Schneider, police said, was carrying a bag containing walkie-talkie radios purchased with the stolen credit card.

He has been charged on two counts of deceptive practices and possession of stolen property.

Crane hears federal aid gripes

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

The increasing federal tax buck stops in Washington and never returns to the suburbs. Northwest suburban officials told U.S. Rep. Philip Crane, R-Ill., Saturday.

The mayors, city managers and trustees assaulted, with a mixture of humor and statistics, disbursements of federal revenue sharing funds and called for changes in federal grant formulas.

Local suburbs received an average 4 per cent return of taxes paid to the federal government, Crane told the 21 officials meeting in Palatine. "It's costing $1.67 across the board to get $1 back from Washington," he said, based on 1970 reports.

"Last year, we got $100,000 in revenue sharing," Palatine Mayor Wendell Jones said. Palatine residents paid between $24 and $40 million in federal taxes in 1972.

If suburbs received a 10 per cent rebate of federal taxes, local property and other taxes could be eliminated, Jones said. "We're paying for more than our share. We're becoming the have nots."

THE OFFICIALS complained, during the three-hour session, that:

- Federal grant formulas block purchase of golf courses for open space — in Schaumburg, Buffalo Grove and Mount Prospect — but would finance a similar sale if the land was a cornfield.

- Small municipalities built large post offices, but larger communities — like Schaumburg and Elk Grove Village — are without local mail centers.

Schaumburg, with a population of 32,000 sends mail through Roselle (population 6,000). Elk Grove local letters travel to Arlington Heights, then back to the village.

- Noise from O'Hare International Airport flights is getting louder and planes are lower and more frequent.

- Solid waste disposal, water supply, flood control are top priorities in this area," Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher said.

"Could we as a group get money for landfills? Could we go for a block grant to run a 72-inch water line to Lake Michigan?" Atcher asked.

Jones, who last week proposed an area-wide water cooperative, supported the proposal. "I think we could come up with the legal agreement. The borders are already drawn."

"If we're committed to a regional concept we can't have all kinds of sub-regions," Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Telchert said.

LARGE CAPITAL projects cannot be built with limited revenue sharing allotments, the officials said. "You can't build a fire station with $100,000," Jones said. "We need water towers, sidewalks and we can't build them unless we go back to property taxes or bonds."

"I don't think taxes are too high," Telchert said. "They relate to the services you get. I have no problem in my community."

CRANE TOLD the officials that he "is not sure" how to attack duplication of services and waste in government that could cut federal taxes. "What I resent is the federal government moving into areas where it has demonstrated incompetence. It's a rule of life. I shake in horror at the squandering of taxpayers' money."

The two-term Congressman said President Richard Nixon should send a balanced budget to Congress.

"Is he listening to you at all?" Ray Geraci, Highland Park mayor, said.

"No, I don't know who he's listening to," Crane answered.

cost of the investigation, is expected to take three months, said Bill Miller, a civil engineer with FAA.

The advisability of an expanded village-owned airport is being studied by Schaumburg in conjunction with plans for a regional transportation center there announced in 1971.

Howard, Needles, Tammen and Bergendoff, a Chicago engineering consulting firm, was chosen to perform the study last year. The project cannot begin, however, until federal funding is approved.

IN THE STUDY, expected to take up to two years to complete, Schaumburg Airport, a privately-owned field on Irving Park Road, will be examined as well as other sites in or annexable to the village.

The remaining one-sixth of study costs will be paid by the village with recapture expected to come from issuance of revenue bonds. The village appropriated $20,000 for the study this year.

If results of the survey are positive, up to 75 per cent of construction costs could be funded by the FAA.

Last month FAA urged Schaumburg and three other Chicago suburbs to purchase nearby airports. A suggested price of $64,000 for Schaumburg Airport falls far short of the current estimated value of the nearly 150-acre field.

Land near the airport is now believed to be selling for about $60,000 per acre.

Levitt to change rezoning request

Levitt & Sons has reconsidered its Schaumburg planning and will now ask for residential rezoning of part of a 57-acre commercial tract near Golf Road.

Terms of a 1968 Levitt annexation agreement, which expires Oct. 15, allow the East Coast based builder to return to the zoning board for multiple rezoning of 27 acres of the commercial property. It is part of 270 acres of multiple-zoned Levitt property and located west of Walnut Lane between Sheffield Towne, a townhouse development, and Sheffield Village Apartment complex.

Levitt representatives will approach the zoning board of appeals Wednesday petitioning for an extension of the annexation agreement and rezoning of the property.

The agreement specifies that 30 acres of the commercial land must be developed in that manner.

The builder has not yet given any indication of the type of multiple-family housing planned for the land, a village spokesman indicated last week.

The zoning board meets at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the Great Hall, 231 S. Civic Dr.

No word yet concerning youth missing in Chile

Concern increased over the weekend for the fate of a Des Plaines man who now has been listed as missing in Chile.

U.S. State Department officials reported that Frank R. Teruggi Jr., 23, of 7311 S. Third Ave., Des Plaines was not being held by military officials in the South American nation which underwent a massive political upheaval earlier this month.

This latest information contradicted earlier reports that the young man, who was studying economics at the University of Chile, was being held with hundreds of other persons in a Santiago soccer stadium.

The government said Saturday that after exhaustive inquiries the young man's whereabouts are unknown at this time.

Teruggi's father, Frank told The Herald over the weekend that he still has not heard from his son, but had been told by the State Department he had been released on Sept. 21. The family last heard from their son on Sept. 17.

"Today I am very concerned about my son, they have told me that he is not being held, and he is not in any hospital, but I know that he would have called by now," the father said.

THE YOUNGER Teruggi's roommate, David Hathaway, was released from Chile on Wednesday, but he has apparently not been able to shed any light on the local man's condition. State department officials said they had conflicting reports as to whether or not Teruggi was with Hathaway on the day Hathaway was captured. The Herald was not able to reach Hathaway over the weekend for additional information. He is expected back in the U.S. today.

When the Des Plaines family last heard from their son, he told them he was in good condition and planned to leave Chile by way of Argentina. State department officials said they have also made inquiries in Argentina, but have received no information on Teruggi.

"This is all very confusing," the senior Teruggi said. "Everytime the telephone rings I hope it is Frank or someone with information about him."

"From his letter to us and his sister, Frank did not seem to be involved in anything political down there, so I do not know why they would want to hold him for any time," the father said.

TERRUGI HAD been in Chile for about two years. He had previously been an engineering student at the California Institute of Technology. He is a graduate of Notre Dame High School in Niles.

At the request of The Herald, representatives of U.S. Senators Charles Percy and Adlai Stevenson and U.S. Rep. Samuel Young, R-Ill., have interceded with the government in an effort to learn more about the young man.

Even the state department has given the family conflicting reports about their son. Teruggi said the two calls he received late last week indicated his son had been released on Sept. 21, but another, state department spokesman told them it was highly unlikely the government would take someone into custody one day and release them on the next. Most persons taken prisoner during the military overthrow have been held at least a week, government officials said.

In the meantime, the family's concern is mounting daily.

"I would like to know where my son is and what his condition might be," the father said, adding he and his wife Jeanie feel helpless because their son is so far away.

"I guess about all we can do is wait and hope that the government or the newspapers got some information about Frank. We sure would like to hear from him," he added.

TEACHERS DISTRIBUTED leaflets and talked to residents on Saturday in an attempt to gain community support for their position in current contract negotiations with Palatine-Rolling Meadows School Dist. 15. Above Trudy Triner (right), a teacher at Carl Sandburg School in Rolling Meadows, passes out leaflets to Jose Garcia, a picket with the United Farm Workers, at the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center. Teachers have been working without a contract since June 30 and their salaries are now frozen at last year's level. The farm workers were protesting Jewel Food Store's refusal to buy United Farm Workers lettuce.

PTA notes

Dr. Marvin English is special guest speaker at the 8 p.m. Tuesday meeting of Hillcrest PTA.

Dr. English, of National College of Education in Evanston and International Graduate School of Education in Denver, is noted for his work in individualized education and the open space concept.

He has taught several workshops which Hillcrest faculty members have attended, and his philosophies are used in many of the school's classrooms.

The meeting will be in the multi-purpose room of the school, 201 Hillcrest, Hoffman Estates.

Open house at Mitchell Collins School, 407 S. Summit Dr., Schaumburg, will begin at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the multi-purpose room. After a short PTA meeting, Principal Donald Stocker will speak. Parents then will be invited to visit their children's rooms and meet teachers. Refreshments will be served, and baked goods will be offered for sale.

Nelsen School PTA will adjourn its meeting at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday to an open house, in which parents may visit classrooms, meet their children's teachers and greet Principal Bernard Lucier. Refreshments will be served.

The PTA is planning a Book Fair Nov. 13-15 and an Arts and Crafts Bazaar Dec. 1, all to be held at the school at 116 W. Beech Dr., Schaumburg.

The first meeting of Dr. Thomas Dooley PTA will open at 7:45 p.m. Tuesday in the multi-purpose room of the school at 622 Norwood Ln., Schaumburg. The PTA budget will be presented at the business meeting, which will adjourn to an open house for kindergarten through third grade. Teachers for the grades will be introduced to the parents, and Nina Jones, PTA president, will present each with a gift of welcome back to school.

Signup to sell in the Fairview School PTA flea market is scheduled for 10 a.m. to noon Saturday at the school. The flea market will be Oct. 27 at the school at 116 Arizona Blvd., Hoffman Estates. A fee of $4 will be charged for each eight square feet of indoor sales space. Sales profits will go to the groups or individuals renting the space.

$9,800 to remove silt bed at school

Petunias and parking lots require different soil conditions, Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54 officials decided as they agreed to spend $9,800 to remove a silt bed from the Einstein Elementary School site.

The extra expenditure was approved Thursday on the recommendation of Marvin Lapicola, assistant superintendent-in-charge.

He said architects for the building now under construction report the silt will not hold a permanent parking lot and must be excavated and filled with clay or rock fill.

The job will be done by Ranke and Semo Construction for $9.80 per cubic yard.

Boundary changes to affect 200

School district boundary line changes could affect approximately 200 Elk Grove Village children who live in a 400-acre portion of the village near I-90.

Elk Grove School Dist. 59 and Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54 are currently negotiating a mutually agreed upon annexation of the parcel from District 59 and annexation to District 54.

MARVIN LAPICOLA, assistant superintendent for finance, said children from that portion of Elk Grove must be bused across I-90 to Elk Grove School District facilities. "If the area, which is a small triangular section between I-90 and old Rte. 53 were in our district, they could eventually walk to schools," he said.

Dist. 54 plans to build several schools in Elk Grove. Attorneys for both districts and High School Dist. 211 and 214 are completing the arrangement.

Lapicola said the annexation would not significantly affect the assessed valuation of either district, but is just a means of straightening boundary lines.

Palmer to act as liaison

Bill Palmer, Hoffman Estates Plan Commission has been appointed to act as liaison between the commission and Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54.

Dist. 54 Board Pres. Donnie Rudd has resigned as a member of the commission.

Township earmarks $53,200 U.S. cash

A $53,200 share of Schaumburg Township's expected $180,000 federal revenue-sharing funds was allocated last week for mental health services, a newly chartered youth care facility and an Outreach worker's salary.

Elk Grove-Schaumburg Township Mental Health Center was allocated $40,000 as the township's share of payment for serving Schaumburg Township residents from August of this year to June 1974.

Shelter Inc., a youth care facility that provides emergency home care in the township for neglected, abused or dependent children has been allocated $5,000.

An $8,200 allocation is for the yearly salary of the township's newly hired Outreach worker.

criticized what he termed "piecemeal decisions."

HE REMINDED the auditors the committee was formed to consider all applications at once. He quoted Supervisor Vern Laubenstein's previous comment that "we only have so much money and each request affects the other guy."

"Are we starting a new policy now?" Stowe asked.

Laubenstein, who chairs the three-man committee, assured Stowe "although it may seem like the requests are being reviewed individually, the committee is aware of all possible requests and knows what to expect."

Auditor Brian Cary, a committee member, added "Those agencies that requested funds from the last allocation are expected to return again and are being budgeted for. Then we are just adding new ones."

In the last allocation period the township received approximately $109,000. All but $10,000 of it was allocated to various agencies.

In addition to the $53,200 allocation made Wednesday, the auditors have earmarked $30,000 to the Schaumburg Township Public Library.

School board gets showing of new parent patrol plan

Board members and Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54 residents got a first hand report from a parent observer patrolling a school site miles away from the meeting room they sat in Thursday night.

The communication, by radio, was board member Sherwood Spatz's way of demonstrating how his parent observer program to curb vandalism in district schools is working.

Spatz used a civil defense radio to contact a patrolling CD member during the last board session.

As the observer reported all was well and added he was between schools, Spatz explained that the Hoffman Estates Civil Defense Organization has joined the district's parent observers program.

He commended the Hoffman Estates CD for its help and said all of the district's schools are now regularly patrolled after school hours by concerned parents and CD workers.

SPATZ PLANS to contact the Schaumburg Civil Defense group also.

He said Hoffman Estates CD people offered to help patrol. "And the results have been fantastic," said Spatz.

Vandalism has dropped and several vandals have been spotted by patrolling CD and parent observers and apprehended by police, he added.

He said the CD people have been super effective because they have instant radio contact with the Hoffman Estates police department.

Usually parent observers must get to the closest telephone to report vandals or suspicious actions, he added.

Spatz received the board's approval to place signs in the district's schools. The signs will state "Parent observers patrol this school so you may play safely and to protect your school."

Spatz assured the board the observers do not want to discourage children from playing in the school yards or parks. The signs are not a threatening gesture but a means of protecting school property, he said.

Woman youth worker hired

Federal revenue-sharing funds will pay the $6,200 annual salary of Claudia Jean Tull, Schaumburg Township's first woman Outreach worker.

Miss Tull, 22, of Arlington Heights, was hired by the township's board of auditors Wednesday to work with young people.

Her job will take her out of the office to meet with young people where they gather — on streets, at shopping centers, or playgrounds.

Miss Tull holds a bachelor's degree in social welfare from the University of Illinois and has experience through her job as counselor at Youth Farm Inc., Peoria, a home for delinquent boys. She is a state registrar and executive committee member of the 1973 convention of the Child Care Association of Illinois; completed training under the Tri-County Criminal Justice Commission's Symposium on Youth. She also took part in a seminar on emotionally disturbed children at Bradley University and is a volunteer in PACE, an adolescent unit at Adolph Meyer Zone Center in Decatur.

The local scene

Octoberfest at St. Hubert

An Octoberfest celebration will open the fall season for St. Hubert Parish in Hoffman Estates, with a dinner dance at 8:30 p.m. Saturday in the church auditorium, Flagstaff Lane and Grand Canyon.

For a $12 admission fee per couple, or $6 per person, members of the parish and their friends will be offered all the beer and brat they can consume, along with sauerkraut, salads and coffee. Beer and setups will be free.

Dance music will be by the Karl Kuhn Band. Tickets are available from Mrs. Thomas Coughlin, 379 Rosedale, 885-2875, or Mrs. John Sagil, 126 Alhambra Ln., 885-4884.

Sign up now for blood drive

Appointments now are being made for the next Hoffman Estates community blood drive, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Oct. 14 at Fairview School, 146 Arizona Blvd.

The village has already donated 450 pints of blood, but has a long way to go to reach its goal of 1,141, due by February, 1974.

Under the Community Blood Replacement Plan, 4 per cent of the village population must donate blood during a 12-month period. In return, all village residents, including unmarried children up to the age of 25, are eligible to receive replacements of any blood they require in an emergency.

Appointments may be made by contacting Mrs. Patricia Morse, blood plan director, at 885-3855.

Troop 197 scouts camp out

Eleven members of Boy Scout Troop 197, of Hoffman Estates, camped out at Illinois State Beach Park last weekend.

They were accompanied by Austin Goodwin, scoutmaster for the troop.

The scout group is sponsored by Hillcrest School PTA.

Barkeeps face new test: telling 'kids' from 'old folks'

by JOE SWICKARD

Tonight the new state liquor law will face its first test as thousands of 19- and 20-year-olds line up for their first legal lagers. And barkeeps throughout the state will face a severe test of their nerves, patience and possibly their liquor licenses.

The new law, which took effect at 12:01 a.m. today, enables 19- and 20-year-olds to purchase and consume beer and wine, but not the stronger spiritus fermenti. There lies the rub.

The problem for alcohol dispensers is separating the beerhounds from the ones who drink the hard stuff. The clerk or bartender who errs in pouring the libations faces a stiff rap and possibly the loss of his liquor license.

TO COMBAT this problem several remedies have been put forward, ranging from marking the beer drinker, to special identification, to new legislation that protects the seller from taking a fall for serving some one with phony IDs.

Bob Burton, manager of Worldwide Liquors, Palatine, said the Illinois Liquor Association has provided cards designed to protect the shops from selling to mature looking 18-year-olds or denying services to youthful-looking 19- and 20-year-olds.

The cards, already used for 21-year-olds not marred by the ravages of time, are signed by the customer. On the back of the card, which remains file at the store, Selective Service, or driver's license numbers are listed. This, according to Burton, enables the clerk to run a quick check on the presented IDs against the information on file.

DOBBY DOBKINS, owner of the store, admits the cards are a stopgap measure at best. He feels the new law is "one we can't live with."

Dobkins and others in similar situations around the state are almost universal in disapproval of the new law. Most label it halfway measure that just breeds new problems. Many said they favored one age for drinking all alcoholic beverages.

This is the night when tavern operators probably will bear the brunt of the thirsty youths. Short of setting aside separate rooms or areas for the beer and wine crowd, few see any ready answer for the problem, except the bars in Arlington Heights where the law doesn't take effect until Oct. 6.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS passed an ordinance lowering the age, but by law, ordinances do not take effect until 10 days after they are published in a newspaper. The revised liquor law was not published until Sept. 26; hence the lag twist cup and the lip.

In hope of preventing underage acceptance, Bill Roscoe, owner of the Blarney Stone Inn, Mount Prospect, said he will ask for three identification cards to protect himself. For the guys, these would probably be a voters card, draft card and driver's license.

But what of the young woman who lacks the draft card? A spokesman from Lum's Restaurant, said he would probably settle "for two good ones. Hopefully one would have a picture."

Some spas say they will go to a ink-stamping system for the beer drinkers.

BUTCH MCGUIRE, who owns taverns in Mount Prospect and Chicago, said doormen will stamp the right or left hand according to the drinker's age. This, he said, will tell the waitress at a glance who may drink what.

Parks to meet Kenroy on use of golf course

by MARCIA KRAMER

Mount Prospect and River Trails Park District officials will huddle with representatives of Kenroy Inc. tomorrow night in an effort to salvage part or all of the Rob Roy Golf Course from apartment development.

The meeting, to be behind closed doors, is the first joint session between village and park district officials and the Skokie firm, which is the contract purchaser of the 180-acre golf course north of Mount Prospect.

Kenroy has expressed an interest in building apartments on the golf course property. Local officials, however, are determined to keep as much of the course open space as possible.

Target date set for interim bank

A Nov. 15 target date has been set for the opening of First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Chicago's first branch in Mount Prospect.

The banking facility, which will be an interim one only, will consist of prefabricated units set on bank property. The location will be on the east side of Elmhurst Road, just north of Judith Ann Drive and south of Kensington Road.

The permanent savings and loans building will be built east of the temporary one and is scheduled to be completed by March, 1975.

Grover J. Hansen, First Federal Savings president, said yesterday that work on the site should begin in about two weeks. A zoning board hearing will not be required for the temporary building, as both the village's building and fire department have been satisfied that it will meet safety standards.

THE COST of keeping Rob Roy "green" could run as high as $50,000 an acre, or a total in the neighborhood of $9 million.

Mount Prospect Mayor Robert D. Teichert said Friday federal and state grants will be explored.

In addition, he said, the Mount Prospect, Prospect Heights, Arlington Heights, Des Plaines and Wheeling park districts will be contacted about participating in the venture to buy the golf course.

It has not been decided whether all or part of the course would be purchased, or, if any purchase is made, whether the property would remain a golf course or be converted for other recreational uses.

TEICHERT raised several questions that he said would have to be answered before those decisions can be made:

- What the true cost of the property is and what the negotiated cost could be.
- Where the money to buy the property would come from.
- Which nearby park district, if any, would participate in the purchase.

"We all say we want Rob Roy to remain open space," he said. "It's another thing to be able to do it. The real question is how much will the community pay to keep it open space."

He acknowledged that through its zoning powers, the village would have some control over any Kenroy development of the golf course, but added: "As long as we don't own it, our ability to control it is not on solid footing."

Kenroy has delayed announcement of its plans for the property until the Nov. 29 meeting of the Mount Prospect Zoning Board of Appeals.

William R. Dillon Jr., assistant to the chairman of the board, said Friday the firm decided to await the outcome of negotiations with the village and River Trails Park District to see how much land, if any, is left for multifamily development.

THE FEAR OF BEING in a long closed corridor is expressed in pantomime by a Lincoln Junior High School student. The screen is used to eliminate facial expressions and to separate a shy performer from his audience. The student is one of 66 in the new MAD program, an elective course that combines music, art, and drama. The students will produce a play this December.

Fifth state official will attend PHIA

A fifth state official has said he will attend tonight's meeting of the Prospect Heights Improvement Association (PHIA) to discuss legislation affecting unincorporated areas.

State Sen. John J. Nimrod, R-4th, will join State Rep. John E. Porter, R-Evanston; State Rep. Aaron Jaffe, D-Skokie; State Rep. Robert S. Juckett, R-Park Ridge; and State Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights. The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. at St. Alphonsus School, 411 N. Wheeling Rd.

Gov. Daniel Walker was invited but is not expected to attend as his office only received the invitation on Friday. State Sen. Bradley M. Glass, R-1st, who will speak at a dinner tonight, said he will try to send an aide to the meeting.

PHIA has drawn up 11 proposals for legislation affecting unincorporated areas. The proposals include reducing or eliminating the assessed evaluation of airport and golf courses, establishing a state land use commission, setting up a regional transportation authority and giving townships limited zoning and land use approval. PHIA is also calling for an investigation into the rights of mobile home owners and a more equal distribution of the state sales tax rebates.

Maryville site decision due tomorrow

The controversy over where to locate the new Maryville School is expected to end tomorrow night with a final decision on the site by the Dist. 26 School Board.

The board meeting is scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. at River Trails Junior High School, 1000 Wolf Rd.

Idyl Nipper of the citizens' committee formed to study alternative sites for the school, said Friday the committee will make its recommendation to the school board at the meeting.

"Tuesday, we'll have all the information we've requested and hopefully, we can take a look at it and finalize where the site will be located," said Lloyd Demel, school board president.

Demel said plans for the building are being drawn up and bids will be opened for construction as soon as they are finished. He said the September, 1974, target completion date is still realistic.

Miss Nipper said the citizens' committee has met with a variety of experts in styling sites for the Maryville School.

The committee was formed by the school board several weeks ago after parents expressed dissatisfaction with the board's decision to locate the school on the River Trails Junior High School site.

Demel has indicated the school board may reverse its decision after considering the citizens' committee recommendation.

Students to produce own plays

by TOM VON MALDER

Music, art and drama are being combined in a new eighth-grade program at Lincoln Junior High School in Mount Prospect.

The program, called MAD for short, is generating excitement among its four teachers, 66 students and area school districts. The three artistic disciplines are being taught in conjunction for the first time in School Dist. 57.

The students in the 18-week course will put on a full-scale production this December. They will make the scenery, sew the costumes, write new song lyrics, set rehearsals and run the whole show themselves. The premier production will be "Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves."

In addition to working on the major production, each student has to write his own play, including appropriate musical accompaniment and scene design. The students may borrow the music from songs they know, although they must write original lyrics. Some are even composing their own music.

THE PROGRAM is the idea of the teachers involved — Ed Dzierzynski and Chris Lumbard in art, Beverly Yates in music and Kathy Bell in drama and dance. Their excitement in being able to teach the program is evident in the way they teach the program.

The first week of the class is mostly an orientation period, although the students do see a film of a production that helps them in determining what duties are needed for their own production.

Then the students are divided into three groups and spend, on a rotating basis, seven days each in music, art and drama orientation.

In music, each student's voice is evaluated and there are opportunities for solos. As a group, there is singing and chorus line work.

The art section goes through set design, building and painting. There is also discussion on costumes, props, lighting, make-up and publicity.

IN DRAMA, some children get their first chance to act, even if it is merely pantomime behind a sheet. The sheet separates the shy from their audience and a light behind the sheet gives that audience (the other class members) the opportunity to examine emotions acted out without facial expressions.

A National Aeronautics and Space Administration test finds out how well each student works in a group and helps pick out the leaders.

During the 21 days of area orientation, the four teachers carefully evaluate each student's performance in each of the three areas. The students have now completed two of the three areas.

After the area orientations, a conference with each student will be held. It is then a student's area of work for the major production will be decided. Dzierzynski pointed out that a student must excel in all three areas if he or she is to get the part in the production they really want.

The major production will be performed in the evening so parents may attend. Village dignitaries also will be invited to attend.

The program is only on a trial basis now, but it seems likely to be continued in following years.

Crane hears federal aid gripes

by AL MESSEKSCUMIDT

The increasing federal tax buck stops in Washington and never returns to the suburbs, Northwest suburban officials told U.S. Rep. Philip Crane, R-12th, Saturday.

The mayors, city managers and trustees assailed, with a mixture of humor and statistics, disbursements of federal revenue sharing funds and called for changes in federal grant formulas.

Local suburbs received an average 4 per cent return of taxes paid to the federal government, Crane told the 21 officials meeting in Palatine. "It's costing $1.67 across the board to get $1 back from Washington," he said, based on 1970 reports.

"Last year, we got $100,000 in revenue sharing," Palatine Mayor Wendell Jones said. Palatine residents paid between $24 and $30 million in federal taxes in 1972.

If suburbs received a 10 per cent rebate of federal taxes, local property and other taxes could be eliminated, Jones said. "We're paying for more than our share. We're becoming the have nots."

THE OFFICIALS complained, during the three-hour session, that:

- Federal grant formulas block purchase of golf courses for open space — in Schaumburg, Buffalo Grove and Mount Prospect — but would finance a similar sale if the land was a cornfield.
- Small municipalities built large post offices, but larger communities — like Schaumburg and Elk Grove Village — are without local mail centers. Schaumburg, with a population of 32,000 sends mail through Roseville (population 6,000). Elk Grove local letters travel to Arlington Heights, then back to the village.
- Noise from O'Hare International Airport flights is getting louder and planes are lower and more frequent.
- Solid waste disposal, water supply, flood control are top priorities in this area. Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher said.

"Could we as a group get money for landfill? Could we go for a block grant to run a 72-inch water line to Lake Michigan?" Atcher asked.

Jones, who last week proposed area-wide water cooperative, supported the proposal. "I think we could come with the legal agreement. The board is already drawn."

"If we're committed to a regional concept we can't have all kinds of sub-regions," Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Teichert said.

LARGE CAPITAL projects cannot be built with limited revenue sharing allotments, the officials said. "You can't build a fire station with $100,000," Jones said. "We need water towers, sidewalks and we can't build them unless we go back to property taxes or bonds."

"I don't think taxes are too high," Teichert said. "They relate to the services you get. I have no problem in my community."

CRANE TOLD the officials that he "is not sure" how to attack duplication of services and waste in government that could cut federal taxes. "What I resent is the federal government moving into areas where it has demonstrated incompetence. It's a rule of life. I shake in horror at the squandering of taxpayers' money."

The two-term Congressman said President Richard Nixon should send a balanced budget to Congress.

"Is he listening to you at all?" Ray

Gerael, Highland Park mayor, said. "No, I don't know who he's listening to," Crane answered.

At John Muir School

Condos worsen drainage?

A newly proposed condominium development in Wheeling may compound drainage problems at the John Muir School in Prospect Heights if a solution is not found soon.

For nearly two years, School Dist. 23 and developers of Pleasant Run condominiums on Elmhurst Road have been battling over stormwater drainage. Currently, storm water from Pleasant Run flows onto the Muir School site on Drake Terrace, resulting in ponding on the school property. School district officials have charged this ponding is a hazard to school children.

Now developers of The Forums, a proposed 150-unit condominium project just west of Pleasant Run, plan to connect their drainage system with the Pleasant Run storm sewer. Thus, drainage from both developments would empty onto the school site.

EARLIER this year, a solution to the drainage problem was proposed by the Larwin Corp., which at that time was planning to develop the property east of the Muir School. In exchange for school district approval of their 1,000-unit apartment project, Larwin officials agreed to accept the storm water from Pleasant Run in their development's retention basin.

When plans for the Tara Village apartment project fell through, the drainage agreement was lost.

Village Mgr. George Passolt, however, said Pleasant Run developer John Glorioso is currently negotiating to build the storm sewer proposed in the drainage agreement with Larwin.

"All I know is that Glorioso is trying to get the necessary easements," Passolt said. "I don't know the exact status of the project."

WHEN ASKED if Wheeling would allow The Forums to be built if a drainage solution is not found, Passolt said he did not think the village could stop the development. "I don't see how we could disallow him," Passolt said. "That's the storm sewer. That's the natural flow of water there from west to east."

Developers of Pleasant Run maintain that that is in fact the natural flow. They have charged that school district officials filled in the school property, thus preventing the natural flow of water. In fact, developers initiated a lawsuit against the school district, but dropped it in April when the Larwin agreement was reached.

The Wheeling Plan Commission has approved preliminary plans for The Forums. According to developer Victor Smigel, the project will include a number of three-story buildings housing a mixture of one-, two-, and three-bedroom condominiums. Two dry basins will provide storm water retention for the 10-acre parcel.

THE DEVELOPMENT also will include a swimming pool, tennis courts and tot lot. Smigel said he hoped construction would still get under way this year.

School Dist. 23 officials are scheduled to meet with Smigel Wednesday to discuss the proposed development. Assistant Supt. Tom Rich said he expected the drainage problem to be a major consideration in negotiations with Smigel for donations to the school district.

Preliminary plans for The Forums must now go to the Wheeling Village for approval before final plans can be submitted.

Plans for shop center irk Woodview residents

Plans are being made to build a small shopping center on the northeast edge of Mount Prospect, much to the dismay of residents of the nearby Woodview subdivision.

Some 25 residents objected to preliminary plans for the stores, which would be at the southwest corner of Willow and River roads, at a public hearing last Thursday night before the Mount Prospect Zoning Board of Appeals.

The hearing will be continued at the Oct. 23 zoning board meeting, when the zoners are expected to make a recommendation on the rezoning petition to village trustees for final action.

A 7-Eleven Food Store is expected to be among several stores in the small shopping center, but specific plans for the development were not disclosed by builder George F. Liska.

The stores would total 15,000 square feet in floor area.

Neighbors from the Woodview subdivision regard the stores as unnecessary and say they will cause a decline in home values.

ACCORDING TO Marie Caylor, chairman of the Northwest Suburban Council of Associations, objections include health reasons — the fear that construction of the food store could lead to rats — and traffic congestion at the already busy intersection of Willow and River roads.

She also said that a large shopping center, Willow Park, is being constructed just north of the site of the proposed shopping center, and said it would satisfy the needs of area shoppers.

In addition, a White Hen Pantry store is being built on Camp McDonald Road, near River Road, which is also near the 7-Eleven site.

The Liska property is bounded mainly by single-family homes and apartments and the Cook County Forest Preserve.

PTA notes

A product survey for a well-known greeting card company will be taken from 7 to 7:45 p.m. Thursday in the Sunset Park School library, 501 W. Lonnquist Blvd., Mount Prospect.

The research project, for which the school PTA will be paid, is conducted to obtain consumer preferences on new greeting cards and other products. Lilian Knaus of the PTA said each person will be given a questionnaire, but nothing will be for sale and no orders will be taken. Those participating must be at least 19 years old.

The first general PTA meeting of the year will follow at 8 p.m. in the school's multi-purpose room. Principal Robert J. Chinkert will be introduced to the group and will in turn introduce members of the teaching staff. School Dist. 57 Supt. Earl Sutter will then speak.

Eppley at conference

Mount Prospect Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley last week received a 20-year certificate from the International City Management Association, of which he is a member. Eppley is attending the organization's 39th annual conference in Boston.

Barkeepers face new test: telling 'kids' from 'old folks'

by JOE SWICKARD
Tonight the new state liquor law will face its first test as thousands of 19- and 20-year-olds line up for their first legal lagers. And barkeepers throughout the state will face a severe test of their nerves, patience and possibly their licenses.

The new law, which took effect at 12:01 a.m. today, enables 19- and 20-year-olds to purchase and consume beer and wine, but not the stronger spiritous ferment. There lies the rub.

The problem for alcohol dispensers is separating the beerhounds from the ones who drink the hard stuff. The clerk or bartender who errs in pouring the libations faces a stiff rap and possibly the loss of his liquor license.

TO COMBAT this problem several remedies have been put forward, ranging from marking the beer drinker, to special identification, to new legislation that protects the seller from taking a fall for serving some one with phony IDs.

Bob Burton, manager of Worldwide Liquors, Palatine, said the Illinois Liquor Association has provided cards designed to protect the shops from selling to mature looking 18-year-olds or denying service to youthful-looking 19- and 20-year-olds.

The cards, already used for 21-year-olds not married by the ravages of time, are signed by the customer. On the back of the card, which remains file at the store, Selective Service, or driver's license numbers are listed. This, according to Burton, enables the clerk to run a quick check on the presented IDs against the information on file.

DOBBY DOBKINS, owner of the store, admits the cards are a stopgap measure at best. He feels the new law is "one we can't live with."

Dobkins and others in similar situations around the state are almost universal in disapproval of the new law. Most label it halfway measure that just breeds new problems. Many said they favored one age for drinking all alcoholic beverages.

This is the night when tavern operators probably will bear the brunt of the thirsty youths. Short of setting aside separate rooms or areas for the beer and wine crowd, few see any ready answer for the problem, except the bars in Arlington Heights where the law doesn't take effect until Oct. 6.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS passed an ordinance lowering the age, but by law, ordinances do not take effect until 10 days after they are published in a newspaper. The revised liquor law was not published until Sept. 26; hence the lag twist cup and the lip.

In hope of preventing underage acceptance, Bill Roscoe, owner of the Blarney Stone Inn, Mount Prospect, said he will ask for three identification cards to protect himself. For the guys, these would probably be a voters card, draft card and driver's license.

But what of the young woman who lacks the draft card? A spokesman from Linn's Restaurant, said he would probably settle "for two good ones. Hopefully one would have a picture."

Some spas say they will go to a ink-stamping system for the beer drinkers.

BUTCH MCGUIRE, who owns taverns in Mount Prospect and Chicago, said doormen will stamp the right or left hand according to the drinker's age. This, he said, will tell the waitress at a glance who may drink what.

He, too, admits there will remain, "a

Officials hit federal programs

Crane hears suburban tax gripes

by AL MESSEIRSCHMIDT

The increasing federal tax buck stops in Washington and never returns to the suburbs. Northwest suburban officials told U.S. Rep. Philip Crane, R-12th, Saturday.

The mayors, city managers and trustees assaulted, with a mixture of humor and statistics, disbursements of federal revenue sharing funds and called for changes in federal grant formulas.

Local suburbs received an average 4 per cent return of taxes paid to the federal government, Crane told the 21 officials meeting in Palatine. "It's costing $1.67 across the board to get $1 back from Washington," he said, based on 1970 reports.

"Last year, we got $100,000 in revenue sharing," Palatine Mayor Wendell Jones said. Palatine residents paid between $24 and $30 million in federal taxes in 1972.

If suburbs received a 10 per cent rebate of federal taxes, local property and other taxes could be eliminated, Jones said. "We're paying for more than our share. We're becoming the have nots."

THE OFFICIALS complained, during the three-hour session, that:

- Federal grant formulas block purchase of golf courses for open space — in Schaumburg, Buffalo Grove and Mount Prospect — but would finance a similar sale if the land was a cornfield.

- Small municipalities built large post offices, but larger communities — like Schaumburg and Elk Grove Village — are without local mail centers. Schaumburg, with a population of 32,000 sends mail through Roselle (population 6,000). Elk Grove local letters travel to Arlington Heights, then back to the village.

- Noise from O'Hare International Airport flights is getting louder and planes are lower and more frequent.

- "Solid waste disposal, water supply, flood control are top priorities in this area," Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher said.

- "Could we as a group get money for landfill? Could we go for a block grant to run a 72-inch water line to Lake Michigan?" Atcher asked.

- Jones, who last week proposed an area-wide water cooperative, supported the proposal. "I think we could come up with the legal agreement. The borders are already drawn."

- "If we're committed to a regional concept we can't have all kinds of sub-regions," Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Teichert said.

LARGE CAPITAL projects cannot be built with limited revenue sharing allotments, the officials said. "You can't build a fire station with $100,000," Jones said. "We need water towers, sidewalks and we can't build them unless we go back to property taxes or bonds."

"I don't think taxes are too high," Teichert said. "They relate to the services you get. I have no problem in my community."

CRANE TOLD the officials that he "is not sure" how to attack duplication of services and waste in government that could cut federal taxes. "What I resent is the federal government moving into areas where it has demonstrated incompetence. It's a rule of life. I shake in horror at the squandering of taxpayers' money."

The two-term Congressman said President Richard Nixon should send a balanced budget to Congress.

"Is he listening to you at all?" Ray Geraci, Highland Park mayor, said. "No, I don't know who he's listening to," Crane answered.

Nails found inserted in bread: man charged

A Wauconda man was arrested in Arlington Heights last week when he was discovered inserting rusty nails into bread loaves in a Jewel food store, according to police reports.

Charged with criminal damage to property was Louis Howard, 48. He was released on $1,000 bond.

Police said Howard was observed at the store at 50 W. Golf Rd. filling his cart with bread and then going to another aisle where he allegedly inserted the nails. A search of the suspect revealed a quantity of similar nails in his change purse, police said.

Other Jewel stores in the area reported that nails and other foreign objects have been discovered in bread and other food stuffs.

Howard will appear in the Arlington Heights branch of the Cook County Circuit Court Nov. 11.

Shopping center plans to be reviewed tonight

A controversial proposal to build a small shopping center along relocated Arlington Heights Road just south of Dundee Road will be aired by the Arlington Heights Village Board tonight.

Village Planner Joe Kester says he has received numerous inquiries from developers about the 40 acres of land between old Arlington Heights Road and the realigned stretch of highway a quarter mile to the west.

"Everyone's convinced this property is a gold mine," Kester says.

The planning department's Arlington Heights Road Study recommends that the area be developed with low-intensity, research and development businesses as an extension of the existing 250-acre Arlington Industrial Research Center.

A PROPOSAL FOR a neighborhood shopping center on the east side of new Arlington Heights Road was rejected by the plan commission Sept. 5.

Commissioners elited the zoning recommendations in the Arlington Heights Road Study and the high traffic impact of even a small shopping center in the vicinity of Arlington Heights and Dundee roads.

The plan commission has accepted the Arlington Heights Road Study as a planning guide and program for street improvements. However, the document has not yet been adopted by the village board or been made part of the comprehensive plan.

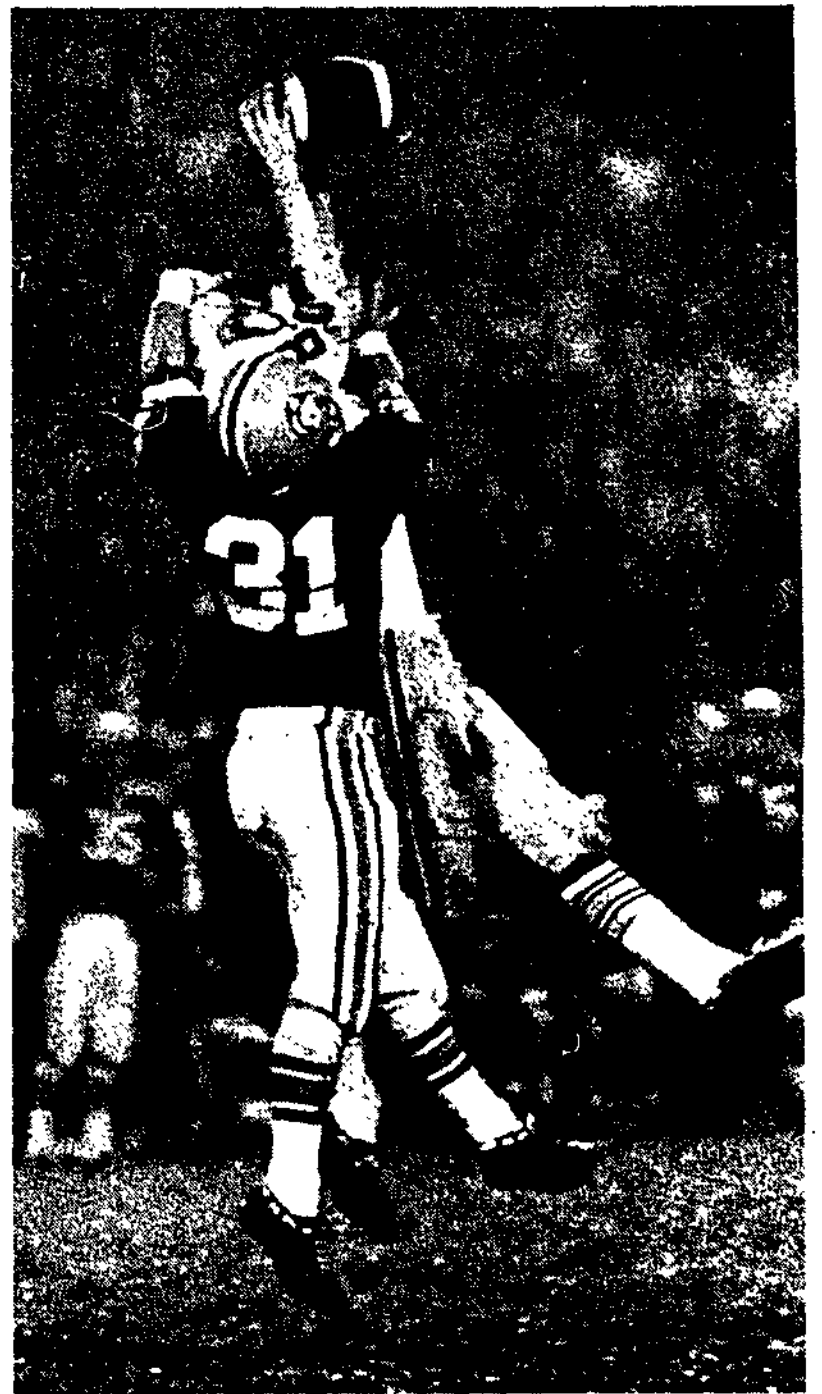

State highway officials said last week that realigned Arlington Heights Road is completed and will be opened as soon as two of four new lanes on Dundee Road are paved later this fall.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS Road was realigned further west to hook up with the existing extension of the thoroughfare north of Dundee Road.

Old Arlington Heights Road which ends in a T intersection at Dundee, will remain open.

The potential developers of the shopping center have argued that a retail center would be both a convenience and the highest and best use of the land without depreciating the value of any surrounding property.

"The land would not have to include just manufacturing, but research and office buildings as well," Kester said.

CONNECTIONS are made on leaping catch by Forest View end Rod Kiolbassa on first-half pass from Ray Meinsen, despite efforts of Hersey's Chip Nowak (31) to defend. This play covered 33 yards in explosive first half, but Hersey rode its momentum to a big 31-21 win Friday night. See sports for details. (Photo by Tom Grieger).

STEVE GOODMAN, one of Chicago's leading song writers and folk musicians, was among a dozen performers who appeared at Arlington Park Race Track this weekend during a stereo trade show there. Rain prevented an outdoor concert on Saturday and Goodman and the other performers held an indoor session in front of about 100 fans.

Shortage!

From tennis balls to candy bars — village merchants report supplies down, prices up

by BETTY LEE

There's a paper shortage, fuel shortage and food shortage. But there doesn't seem to be a shortage of shortages.

Local shops in Arlington Heights are finding it harder to order and stock certain items as they receive partially-filled orders, cancellations and notices of price increases.

The manager of Ben Franklin Variety Store, 9 W. Campbell, received a two-page letter describing the shortages to be expected. "We wanted to provide you with a very brief summary of what is happening in prices and availability for the next six months," the president wrote.

Toys, towels, crayons, candles and housewares are on the Ben Franklin list. According to the letter, candy prices will increase, including the price of candy bars.

Fabrics is a big concern, especially in clothing. Bob Russo of Hagenbrink's Department Store, 105 W. Campbell, reported a big shortage in blue jeans.

"It's because of a lack of cotton," said Russo, adding that wool and cotton yard goods also are becoming scarce. "Customers haven't noticed yet. It is rough and I don't see it getting any better. Prices will go up in the spring."

THE EVER POPULAR blue jean is in demand and there are not enough of them to meet the demand, said Jim McDonald, asst. public relations director of Levi-Strauss and Co., a manufacturer of blue jeans in San Francisco, Calif.

"It isn't because we're getting less denim," he said. "The production hasn't increased and now more and more people are wearing jeans." Last year the company sold more than 100 million pairs of jeans and slacks.

Business officials at Lisa's Draperies and Interiors, 11 S. Dunton, are telling their customers of fabric shortage. "It's not so bad yet, but I expect it to be worse," said O. Wellborn, owner. "The Japanese are buying it all up, so it's going to be very, very bad."

A representative from a national fabric supplier said that deliveries of fabrics from the mill to the distributor are taking up to

School district wrapup

Changes weighed to aid students

School Dist. 21 will take steps to improve pupil skills in areas where results of last year's annual achievement tests indicate work is needed.

The Iowa Test of Basic Skills, a package of tests in all academic areas, is administered to students in grades three through eight in the district each spring.

Dist. 21 serves Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and portions of Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect.

Administrators and teachers in the district are analyzing test scores to see what changes, if any, should be made in materials and techniques used in classroom instruction.

Marjorie Beu, curriculum director, said the results are studied to determine several things including:

- The appropriateness of material used in each grade.
- The effectiveness of teaching techniques on all levels.
- The varying abilities of students.
- The need for specific extra training for teachers in a particular area.

Miss Beu cited the current Dist. 21 math program as an example of how achievement test scores are used to improve the effectiveness of instruction.

About four years ago, math scores in the district were low, she said. Teachers adopted a new textbook shortly after the results of the tests were released and the scores have improved ever since.

Compared to last year, achievement test scores were lower for fifth and sixth grade students this year, especially in the area of language arts.

Miss Beu said part of the reason for the low language arts scores could be the emphasis placed in the district on creative writing. She said creativity will not be deemphasized, but teachers will increase work on grammar skills this year.

Junior high bids to be awarded

The school board plans to award the contract of the construction of $1.8 million in additions to the district's three junior high schools Oct. 11.

The additions will provide extra classrooms besides providing areas for a new vocational arts program.

The district hopes to begin construction as soon as possible after the contract is awarded and have the additions ready by the time school opens next fall.

Several alternative ways of funding the construction are being studied including the possibility of state aid and using $300,000 in funds from the district's 1970 referendum.

The referendum monies were intended for the purchase of the Irving and Stevenson school sites. Because those sites were donated, the district may still sell $300,000 in bonds authorized by the referendum.

Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill said if the referendum funds can be used for the junior high additions, the district will probably wait until March to sell the bonds.

Transportation request denied

The Dist. 21 School Board last week denied a request from a group of parents of students attending Stevenson School for bus transportation.

The parents, most of them residents of nearby apartment complexes, feel it is dangerous and too far for their children to walk to the school on Wolf Road in Wheeling.

The board rejected the busing request because the students involved live less than 1½ miles from the school.

Anticipating the school board decision, the parents have agreed to pay $60 each annually to finance their own bus.

U.S. REP. PHILIP M. CRANE, R-12th, center, listens to an explanation of paramedic emergency medical techniques by Arlington Heights fireman and paramedic Gerry Collignon. Crane met with Fire Chief John Hayden, left, last week to learn about the Northwest suburbs' program. Crane told the paramedics he supported

President Nixon's veto of the emergency medical aid bill, which would have helped finance the paramedics, because other portions of the bill were supporting substandard hospitals. However, he said federal "seed money" should be forthcoming to help establish similar paramedic programs throughout the country.

High building costs

Financial woes for 3 junior highs?

Financing of $1.8 million for additions to Dist. 21's three junior high schools may be a problem due to high building costs.

Bids for the construction of the additions to accommodate new vocational programs were opened last week. Six base bids were received, ranging from the high bid of $2,652,963 from the Egyptian Construction Co. to the low bid of $1,839,939 from Walson Construction Co.

Administrators say the projected costs are more than funds currently available. The district had hoped to begin construction of the additions next month, completing the work in time for the 1974-75 school year, but that timetable is not definite.

"They (the bids) are higher than we're prepared for," said Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill. "The first thing we'll do is see what, if anything, can be trimmed out."

GILL SAID there are also several alternative ways of funding the construction that will be explored. Because some special education classrooms will be included in the new additions, Gill said the district may be able to use monies from the special education levy.

Funds may also be gained from a new capital assistance program recently signed into law by Gov. Daniel Walker, Gill said.

The amount of money Dist. 21 would be able to get from the capital assistance program for the junior high additions is not known at this time, Gill said. No guidelines for the distribution of funds have yet been established. It may be six to eight months, he said, before they are set.

Although Gill did not entirely rule out the possibility of conducting a referendum to finance the additions, he stressed that it would be used only as a last resort.

Gill said if a referendum were conducted, it would probably be for between $200,000 and $300,000. He pointed out that under the new state formula for school aid, local tax rates will drop over the next three years, somewhat minimizing the effect of a tax increase for the additions.

School additions may be financed with '70 money

Money left over from the 1970 School Dist. 21 $4.5 million referendum may be used to help finance planned additions to the district's three junior high schools.

The referendum was to purchase sites for Irving and Stevenson schools and to construct vocational education wings at Cooper, London and Holmes junior high schools.

Because both the Irving and Stevenson school sites were donated, the district still has about $300,000 in referendum funds.

Dist. 21 Assistant Supt. John Barger last week told the school board it may be possible to use those funds to build the junior high additions. Barger recommended that the school board prepare to award the contracts for construction at the next Dist. 21 board meeting, scheduled for Oct. 11. Meanwhile, Barger said several other possible alternatives for funding the junior high additions will be explored.

No word on youth missing in Chile

Concern increased over the weekend for the fate of a Des Plaines man who now has been listed as missing in Chile.

U.S. State Department officials reported that Frank R. Teruggi Jr., 23, of 7311 S. Third Ave., Des Plaines was not being held by military officials in the South American nation which underwent a massive political upheaval earlier this month.

This latest information contradicted earlier reports that the young man, who was studying economics at the University of Chile, was being held with hundreds of other persons in a Santiago soccer stadium.

The government said Saturday that after exhaustive inquiries the young man's whereabouts are unknown at this time.

Teruggi's father, Frank told The Herald over the weekend that he still has not heard from his son, but had been told by the State Department he had been released on Sept. 21. The family last heard from their son on Sept. 17.

"Today I am very concerned about my son, they have told me that he is not being held, and he is not in any hospital, but I know that he would have called by now," the father said.

THE YOUNGER Teruggi's roommate, David Hathaway, was released from Chile on Wednesday, but he has apparently not been able to shed any light on the local man's condition. State department officials said they had conflicting reports as to whether or not Teruggi was with Hathaway on the day Hathaway was captured. The Herald was not able to reach Hathaway over the weekend for additional information. He is expected back in the U.S. today.

When the Des Plaines family last heard from their son, he told them he was in good condition and planned to leave Chile by way of Argentina. State department officials said they have also made inquiries in Argentina, but have received no information on Teruggi.

"This is all very confusing," the senior Teruggi said. "Everytime the telephone rings I hope it is Frank or someone with information about him."

"From his letter to us and his sister, Frank did not seem to be involved in anything political down there, so I do not know why they would want to hold him for any time," the father said.

TERRUGI HAD been in Chile for about two years. He had previously been an engineering student at the California Institute of Technology. He is a graduate of Notre Dame High School in Niles.

At the request of The Herald, representatives of U.S. Senators Charles Percy and Adlai Stevenson and U.S. Rep. Samuel Young, R-10, have interceded with the government in an effort to learn more about the young man.

Even the state department has given the family conflicting reports about their son. Teruggi said the two calls he received late last week indicated his son had been released on Sept. 21, but another state department spokesman told them it was highly unlikely the government would take someone into custody one day and release them on the next. Most persons taken prisoner during the military overthrow have been held at least a week, government officials said.

Clearbrook head plans to leave

Byrn Witt

Witt, who has been the center's director since July, 1964, submitted his resignation to the center's board of directors in June but did not make his resignation public until last week.

He will not leave the center until Dec. 1 to give the institution time to find a new director, Witt said Friday. A search committee has been appointed to find a new director and Witt said he will probably time his leaving with the arrival of the center's new director.

Youth, 22, charged with hitting cop

Gary Tostado, 22, of 1729 Potomac, Chicago, was charged with aggravated assault Saturday after striking Arlington Heights patrolman Charles Waite in the mouth.

The incident occurred at 8:53 p.m. when officer Waite responded to a request for help at the Arlington Park Race Track. Tostado and a male companion were found in the track area and advised it was not open and shown the exit to the grandstand area. When Tostado ignored the directions, Officer Waite took him by the arm and was escorting him to the exit when he was struck in the mouth.

Officer Waite was taken to Northwest Community Hospital where he received two stitches on his lower lip and was released.

No shortage of shortages, price hikes

three to six months instead of the usual couple of weeks. "We just can't get the materials and the prices of synthetics are so high."

THE SHORTAGE in fabrics slowed down the production of other goods which include cotton and wools. Carpeting, furniture with upholstery and other home furnishings are affected by the shortage.

Tennis players might have to take on another sport due to decreased production of tennis balls. "There are only two tennis ball manufacturers in the country and one's on strike," said Bill Flannigan, manager of Cunningham and Kelly Sporting Goods Inc., 43 S. Dunton. Coupled with the growing popularity of tennis and the strike, tennis balls are becoming a scarce item, he said.

Flannigan also is experiencing a shortage of socks, bowling balls and bowling bags. "The reason? They didn't give me any reason," he said. Orders for bowling balls are usually filled immediately, he said, but now it's taking two to three months.

Don't be surprised if you don't see dark raisins on the grocer's shelf, because there's a shortage on those, too. "They (suppliers) told me that more of the crop went to wine this year," said Pete Martini of Martini's Food Shoppe, 4 N. Dunton. "Instead I was fortunate enough to get these bleached raisins." Canned fruits and canned fish are also difficult to order, he said.

Shop owners speculate on various reasons for these shortages, but most agree that if there's a slack of one item, it affects another, creating a multitude of shortages.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS United Fund campaign for 1973 begins Friday when volunteers will be collecting door-to-door contributions. Resident chairman Mel Born, left, and general campaign chairman Red Clark, center, are pictured with Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson in front of the sign that will record the organization's progress toward this year's $75,000 goal.
